PRE-HISTORIC INHABITANTS.

Our county records claim
No heroes known to fame,
No mystic legends old;
No monuments are found,
No ruins mar the ground,
No minstrel tale is told.

PLATTE COUNTY has little to inspire the rhapsodist, or to kindle the enthusiasm of the antiquary. Our native rocks have no rude inscriptions; no chronicler records the prowess of our aborigines, and few remains attest the high civilization of a race now extinct. But our undulating prairies, our fertile soil, our ancient forests, and our gurgling streams charm the utilitarian and philanthropist. Sublimity may attract us for a day, or desolation awe us for an hour, but we make our home on the well-watered domain, where fields of cereals wave before the breeze, and grazing herds respond to our call.

Relics are rarely found. I have never, myself, picked up an arrow-head, but I have seen several collections of arrow-heads, tomahawks, and mills, or mortars. Dr. J. A. Baldwin has the largest store of Indian relics in the county.

Except on the bluff at Iatan, and in the extreme southeastern corner of the county, no mounds appear. No Indian village was ever established, and scarcely a wigwam erected on our soil. Though the Iowas and the Sacs and Foxes set up claim to our lands, their titles were shadowy, and not supported by prescription.

EVIDENCES OF A PRE-HISTORIC RACE.

In 1859, Col. Geo. S. Park plowed up in his orchard, adjacent to Parkville, large, square, well-burned brick, held together by straw, in the Egyptian style. They were covered by only a foot of earth, and were part of a large building.

In 1877, a party of antiquarians, from Kansas City, opened four mounds on the Peter Brenner farm, below Parkville, and found stone enclosures eight feet square and four feet high. A number of human skulls were uncovered, some indicating large, and others very small, people. They suggested an earlier race than the Indians, but scarcely above them in intelligence. Near the mounds were scattered large quantities of flint arrow-heads, tomahawks, and spear-heads. They discovered a large number of small mills for crushing grain. See the Landmark for March 22, 1877.

In the Reveille of May 19, 1871, is an account of the mounds on Dan'l Pixley's farm, four miles east of Parkville. One large central mound is surrounded by sixteen smaller ones, the whole occupying only a few acres of ground. It is stated that early in May, 1871, a party of Indians came down the Missouri River, and went straight to these mounds, and opened several of them. They took out many human bones, and threw them away, but the purpose of the visit is a mystery. Further examination of these mounds disclosed human bones in layers, separated by large flat stones.

Near Iatan, on a bluff overlooking the Missouri, is a group of mounds, several of which have been opened by Prof. George J. Remsburg, of Atchison. Under date of July 16, 1896, he writes to the St. Joseph Gazette an account of his explorations, from which I extract the following account of the contents of a mound on the farm of James Palmer, two miles east of Iatan:

"The mound measured 25 feet in diameter and was probably the largest ever explored in this vicinity. Huge stones were imbedded firmly in the earth and formed a rude vault. There were about three wagon-loads of rock in the mound. These had been carried by the Indians from the base of the bluff and served as a protection from the ravages of wild animals. But it remained for the eager antiquarian, who is always prying into the mysteries of the past, to visit the sepulcher, and, like the angel of the resurrection, 'roll the stone away.' What did it reveal? Lying prostrate in the vault, under this massive pile of earth and stone, with the head to the north, was the skeleton of an Indian almost completely decayed.

"We first commenced removing the earth and stone on the north side of the mound, going no deeper than the base of the tumulus or the surface of the earth. We first struck the skull, but it was so nearly decayed that it could only be traced by the crumbling particles in the soil. By allowing the earth to adhere to it and by very delicate handling, we managed to save a small portion of one of the jaws containing six teeth. They were worn down very short and smooth, which would indicate that the deceased was of an advanced age or that he had subsisted on a very coarse diet.

"We gradually penetrated the mound, working like tigers in the oppressive heat, removing the huge stones, most of which seemed to be set in the ground with the larger end down, which made them difficult to remove. Some of the stones were over a foot in thickness and from two to three feet long.

"By carefully removing the earth with a pocket-knife, several good-sized pieces of the leg-bones were saved. One of the thigh-bones has a small round hole in it, which very much resembles a bullet-hole. It is singular, considering the decomposed state of the skeleton, that one of the bones of the toe with the nail on it was well preserved. The few remaining fragments were charred and calcined, and the walls of the vault were red, showing unmistakable signs of fire. There were also bits of charcoal and burnt earth in the mound. It is evident that cremation was practiced by the tribe to which the deceased belonged. It seems that the stone vault had been built on the surface of the ground, the body placed in it and burned, and then the pile of stone and earth reared above it. No relics of any kind were unearthed except a few pieces of wrought flint.

"The mound was located on one of the highest points in this region and commands a splendid view in every direction. No doubt at least a century has elapsed since the mound was built. Mr. Palmer, who settled there in 1845, more than half a century ago, says the mound looked as old then as when it was opened yesterday. A large white oak tree originally grew on top of the mound, but it was cut down in 1866 and converted into ties for the K. C. railroad. The tree measured nearly four feet in diameter.

"On the same hill, about 10 or 15 rods south of this mound, is another similarly constructed, but a little smaller. There is also one in Mr. Palmer's garden, and several on another hill just east of his house. Looking northwest from the mound opened yesterday, one may see three very prominent mounds on Bud Smith's farm, about a mile away. There is a very large mound in front of John Vandrel's kitchen door. Several men dug into the side of it some time ago, and exhumed several skulls. There are a number of smaller mounds on the terraces of the creek bottom which runs through Iatan. Several of these are near the old mill on the south side of the creek, and one on the north side, in Bud Palmer's field. Some of these mounds are the remains of Indian lodges, and the writer found a portion of a pottery vessel near one of them.

"Some time ago the writer explored a small mound on the old Major Bean farm near Bean Lake. Although similarly constructed, it presented somewhat of a contrast to the mound on Mr. Palmer's farm in some respects. From the large mass of charred bones it was evident that several Indians had been deposited in one mound. The bones were scattered about promiscuously, which indicated that they had been buried with little or no regularity. A layer of burned substance resembling brick had to be penetrated before reaching the remains. The pieces of skull found in this mound were unusually thick. Indian mounds, camp-sites, and other remains are scattered along the bluffs at intervals all the way from Rushville, in Buchanan County, to Iatan and Weston, in Platte County, and it presents one of the best fields for the antiquarian in this region. Hundreds of interesting relics have been picked up in the fields hereabouts. The writer has a tomahawk which Mr. Palmer's father picked up in 1845."

Ancient walls and graves have been uncovered, near Parkville, but little of interest has been disclosed.

MINES.

Sulphur, in large quantities, was discovered near Beverly, but no mines of any kind have been opened. Chalybeate and other mineral waters are found in many places.

COAL.

Coal has been found cropping out in many places. Near Linkville, in the bed of Second Creek, a layer of coal appears, and many tons of it have been used by blacksmiths, but the admixture of sulphur has condemned it. Near Waldron there is a vein of coal of better quality, and, at one time, plans were laid to mine it. Coal has been found near the surface in other places, but not in paying quantities and qualities. The miners of Leavenworth County, Kansas, find an excellent article of coal at a depth of seven hundred feet. They are now removing coal from beneath the Missouri River, and have even reached our shore. They have bought coal rights under some twelve hundred acres of Platte County lands, and, in a few years, expect to open shafts on this side of the river. There is no doubt that, at the depth of five to seven hundred feet, there is an abundant supply of the best of coal. Though companies have been formed to bore for coal at Platte City, at Weston, and at Parkville, and the necessary funds raised, yet the money was returned and nothing done. The day will come when the rich stores of coal beneath our soil will be a source of wealth to our people.

The steamers Expedition, Captain Craig, Jefferson, Captain Offut, and the R. M. Johnson, Captain Colfax, with nine keel-boats, left St. Louis June 21, on the long, arduous, and perilous voyage to the mouth of the Yellowstone, to ascertain the practicability of navigating the Missouri. Accompanying the voyagers was part of the 5th U. S. Infantry, under command of Colonel Chambers. The Jefferson sank at Cote-Sans-des-Sans. Smith Calvert, then a lad, was errand-boy on the steamer Expedition. At Cow Island, the winter of 1819-20 was passed. In the spring, the steamers ascended the Missouri to Council Bluffs, and here young Calvert was detailed with a party to construct Fort Atkinson.

The crew preferred to winter at Cow Island, opposite Iatan, because some cabins were found there, left by Captain Martin. A cow, found on the island, doubtless left by Captain Martin, gave it the name of Cow Island. John C. McCoy, late of Kansas City, in a paper entitled "Survey of Kansas Indian Lands," read January 15, 1889, before the Kansas State Historical Society, and printed in the fourth volume of "Kansas Historical Collections," page 303, writes:

"Captain Martin, in 1818, camped for the winter with three companies of U. S. Riflemen, on Cow Island, ten miles above Leavenworth, and during that winter killed between two and three thousand deer, besides great numbers of bears, turkeys, etc."

I have often conversed with Mr. Calvert upon his stay at Cow Island. He said that hunting companies often crossed to the Missouri side, in Platte County, and found abundance of game. Indians were not found east of the Missouri.

VALENTINE BARNARD'S STORY.

In the Landmark of March 23, 1883, is a long, rambling, and apocryphal statement, by Mr. Barnard, which is reproduced in Gatewood's "History of Platte." He says that, with several young friends of Clay County, he boarded one of the Yellowstone steamers, and was put off at Rialto, below the site of Weston, where a few Indian traders had established themselves. Mr. Barnard did not come to Missouri earlier than 1835. About that time a gang of discharged soldiers built cabins at Rialto, and engaged in the illicit sale of whisky to soldiers of Fort Leavenworth and to the Indians. To dislodge them, the northern limit of the Military Reserve was extended so as to embrace Rialto. But Mr. Barnard's story is absurd in its conception and contradictory in its details.

1823.

A wagon road is opened from Liberty, by way of Smithville, to Council Bluffs. An express was at times run on the trail, by contractors, traders, and trappers. Smithville, being the last town a train of pack-mules left, and the first to entertain the drivers on their return, became for a few years a resort for drunken whites and begging Indians. This ceased when Fort Leavenworth was established, and when steamers ascended the Missouri frequently.

WHITE ALLOE BRANCH.

A French Canadian trader and trapper spent his winters in a cave or "dugout" on the bank of the branch emptying into the Missouri at Parkville. His name was Aloe; and the Kickapoo Indians, across the Missouri, called him "White Aloe," and gave this name to the branch. That is the name by which it is known to-day.

SMITHVILLE.

Humphrey (Yankee) Smith, in 1822, located on Smith's Fork, so named from him, near what was then the western line of the State. Here he built a dam, and constructed a mill of round, unhewn white-oak logs. A pair of 2½-foot millstones were cut from what was called "lost rock," or boulders. The wheel was the old-style flutter wheel. A horse mill had previously been erected near Liberty by Tillery, but Smith's was the first, in Clay, run by water power. It was a matter of immense interest, and half of the people of Clay attended the raising. In 1827, Mr. Smith cut from "lost rock" a pair of  $3\frac{1}{2}$ -foot stones, and bolts were added to the mill. Thus the first flour mill arose in Clay and was a great convenience. I patronized these mills for a number of years and used dark but wholesome bread.

STEAMERS.

The Western Engineer, with a corps of topographical surveyors, reached Old Franklin May 19, 1819, and went up as high as Chariton, returning the 22d of May. The people were intensely excited, and Old Franklin was ablaze with gunpowder. In 1819, Clay County received its first pioneers, and, the same year, a portion of the land was surveyed.

MISSOURI ADMITTED.

March 6, 1820—Congress passes the Compromise Bill, admitting Missouri. The Constitutional Assembly met in St. Louis, and assented to the terms of admission. August 10, 1821, President Monroe recognized Missouri as a State. The first governor of the State was Alexander McNair. He was elected in August, 1820. His successor, Frederick Bates, was elected in August 1824. John Miller succeeded, December 8, 1824, and was followed, in November, 1832, by Daniel Dunklin. In November, 1836, Lilburn W. Boggs became governor, and was followed, in November, 1840, by Thomas Reynolds. This completes the list down to the first general election in Platte County.

CLAY COUNTY.

In 1822, Clay was organized. It extended north to the Iowa line. The same year, Liberty was made the county seat. February 11, 1822, the first county court was held at the house of John Owens, in Liberty. John Thornton, Elisha Cameron, and James Gilmore were Judges; William L. Smith, County Clerk; and John Harris, Sheriff.

August 5, 1822—The first election was held in Clay County, in a booth at Liberty.

December 9, 1822—St. Louis is incorporated.

Commissioners are appointed to locate and open a road to Santa Fé.

1825.

April 29—Lafayette is in St. Louis. Westport is the starting-point for Santa Fé. Kansas City was then known as Westport Landing. Steamboats commence to make occasional trips up the Missouri. One or two reach Liberty Landing, each season.

1826.

This is the year of the great rise in the Missouri. The rise of 1844 was four feet higher. The Indians say the Missouri overflows every fourteen or fifteen years.

November 11—A company of 93 emigrants from Bourbon County, Kentucky, arrive in Clay, after a long and tedious overland journey, and settle near Smithville. The heads of families are: 1, Captain James Duncan; 2, Matthew Duncan; 3, William Duncan; 4, Rice Davenport; 5, James Winn; 6, Sarah Music (widow); 7, James Gray (teacher). The caravan embraced 7 wagons, 4 carts, 5 dearbons, 150 sheep, and 75 cattle. In their immediate settlement they found only the following families in possession: 1, Humphrey Smith; 2, Cornelius Gilliam; 3, John Gilliam; 4, William Riggs; and 5, Samuel Croley. There were no other neighbors.

1827.

THE CANTONMENT OF LEAVENWORTH LOCATED.

The following order was the initiative step for the establishment of Fort Leavenworth:

“Adjutant-General’s Office,

“Washington, March 7, 1827.

“Colonel Leavenworth, of the 3d Infantry, with four companies of his regiment, will ascend the Missouri, and when he reaches a point on the left bank, near the mouth of the Little Platte River, and within a range of twenty miles, above or below its confluence, he will select such position as, in his judgment, is best calculated for a site of a permanent cantonment. The spot being chosen, he will construct, with the troops at his command, comfortable, though temporary, quarters, sufficient for the accommodation of four companies. This movement will be made as early as the convenience of the service will permit. }

“By order of Major-General Brown.”

R. JONES, ADJUTANT-GENERAL.

April 17, 1827—Colonel H. L. Leavenworth and his four companies of 3d Infantry came up the Missouri on a steamer, touching at Liberty Landing, as Mrs. Shubal Allen well recollects. At the mouth of the Platte (Parkville) he landed and made an accurate examination of the locality, but condemned it as a site for a cantonment.

May 8, 1827—Colonel Leavenworth reported that there was no place on the left bank of the Missouri he could recommend; but that there was a site on the right, or west, side of the river, known as Rattlesnake Hills, that he approved. His recommendation was approved September 19, 1827. In the meantime Colonel Leavenworth had erected temporary barracks, and his men had named the post "Cantonment Leavenworth." The name is adopted in General Orders, dated November 8, 1827. But February 8, 1832, by General Order No. 1, the title "Cantonment," in this, and all other instances, is changed to "Fort." Its locality is 39 degrees 21 minutes north latitude and 96 degrees 44 minutes west of Washington.

THE MILITARY RESERVE.

A large body of land on the west side of the Missouri was, at an early day, reserved from Indian grants, and in 1838 President Van Buren designated the lands previously surveyed between Bee Creek and the Missouri, as a Military Reserve for Fort Leavenworth. The northern line was so run as to embrace Rialto, and dislodge a nest of outlaws, who had established themselves at that place, and were selling liquor to soldiers and Indians. October 18, 1844, a large portion of the Reserve, on the Missouri side, was vacated, and, after survey by Daniel G. Saunders, was entered by preëmptors. The present Reserve contains only 936 acres. Most of it is low and swampy bottom land. The original timber has been removed, and the land is now a waste of young elm, sycamore, willow, and cottonwood. It is of no use to the Government, and ought to be sold to settlers. When I first passed, in 1839, through the Reserve, it was densely set in large cottonwood and sycamore trees.

ROBERT ELLIS,

Late of Weston, was a corporal in one of the companies that located the Cantonment. He always took to himself much honor for the part taken by himself. With his little hatchet, he blazed an oak tree, and inaugurated the grandest military post of the West.

FISHING AT THE FALLS OF PLATTE.

George E. Duncan, now of Clinton County, Mo., but in 1828 of Smithville, says he accompanied James Winn, Abijah Brooks, and Alex. B. Duncan on a fishing excursion to the Falls of Platte. Three wagons were taken, and provision for man and beast. Fish were then—in the spring—coming down the river; and as they descended the inclined plane of flat rocks, the fishermen caught them in nets, or lanced them with pikes. There were some buffalo, but catfish were abundant, and weighed from 10 to 70 pounds. The wagons were well loaded. Zadock Martin had not then come to the Falls, and the military road from Fort Leavenworth to Barry had not been opened.

THE MILITARY ROAD.

For ten years after Fort Leavenworth was established Clay County was the base of supplies for the soldiers. Beef, bacon, lard, and vegetables, and other marketing were brought from Clay. But there was no wagon road. Platte River was often past fording. Bee Creek had no fords, and at that time every branch was a creek, and every creek a rivulet. In the first settlement of Platte, hundreds of mill-sites were selected on streams that now do not run three months in the year. In the summer of 1828 soldiers were detailed to open a good road from the Fort to Barry. A ford of brush and stone was made on Bee Creek, and a perfectly straight road from the Missouri to Bee Creek was cut out, twenty feet wide. At Whiteley's farm it rose to the top of the ridge, and followed the divide to within a mile of the Falls. After crossing the road, it followed another divide to Barry. It passed in front of Garrard Chesnut's, crossed Todd's Creek at Ben Jack's, headed the hollows to Longpoint, and by a straight course went to Barry. The heavy work on the west end of the route was done by soldiers; but the people of Clay gave much assistance on the east end.

FERRIES.

But still two streams had to be crossed; and Zadock Martin was authorized to settle at the Falls and keep ferries over both the Platte and the Missouri rivers. Keel-boats were used on the Missouri, and for the Platte gunwales were hewed, and plank ripped out by the whip-saw.

ZADOCK MARTIN,

In the fall of 1828, came from Clay with his sons and slaves, and built, of hewed lynn logs, a two-room house on the bluff on the eastern shore, below the Falls. Two shed-rooms were added, making a house of four rooms. Here he kept a tavern in the wilderness. His force was a half-dozen negro men and as many stalwart sons. Besides these, there were his good wife and three handsome daughters. He had no neighbor within fifteen miles.

Martin was peculiarly fitted for his calling. Tall and brawny, he weighed about 175 pounds. He wore a broad-rimmed hat and carried a hickory cane. His eyes flashed lightning, and his mouth reverberated thunder. He demanded instantaneous obedience of friend or foe. Yet he was just and charitable, and loved by his family and his servants. His sons and negroes formed a military troop that even the commander of the Fort hesitated to exasperate. He cultivated corn in a field opposite his house, in the bottom, and in a thirty-acre field where Tracy now stands. He also had a field of corn in Sand Prairie, opposite the Fort, and another in Fancy Bottom, above Weston. He had a sugar camp on the bluff, above the present mouth of Bee Creek. His hay was cut on the prairie, three miles southeast of his home. His cattle wintered on the rushes that then abounded in all the Missouri bottoms. His hogs ran wild, and fed upon the mast, that consisted of acorns, hickory-nuts, and pecans. His hog-killing was done with dogs and guns. When pork was wanted, he shouldered his rifle, called his dogs, and went game-hunting. His negroes had cabins scattered around on his lands and were ready at all hours to do him feudal service.

POST-OFFICE.

May 29, 1828—A post-office was established at Fort Leavenworth, and Philip P. Rand was the first postmaster. Previously, the officers and men received their mails at Liberty.

STATEMENTS OF WOODS AND BERRY.

Adam C. Woods and James H. Berry were citizens of Clay in 1828, and frequently visited the Fort. They saw the soldiers constructing their quarters of hewed logs, and their stables of round cottonwood trees. The Cantonment afforded a market for the surplus produce of the west half of Clay. There were no Indians in Platte. A few Iowas were at Blacksnake Hills, and at Agency, in Buchanan. The best-known officers at the Fort were Maj. Riley and Cols. Sumner, Harvey, and Kearney.

THE FALLS OF PLATTE.

Mr. Geo. B. Duncan says: "I travelled the new road from Barry to Fort Leavenworth, by way of the Falls, in the autumn of 1828. The road in the timber was very rough. We crossed the Platte between the upper and the lower falls, which were about 2 perpendicular feet each, and about 200 feet apart. The interim was a gently inclined plane, formed of large flat rocks, divided into parallelograms by seams, 4 to 6 inches wide. They extended from shore to shore, and when the river was full, a sheet of water, with flume-like rapidity, descended over them. When low, the surface of the rocks was bare, and the noisy water rippled through the seams. The natural fall, before the dam was built, was about 6 feet."

FORT LEAVENWORTH, PRICES, GAME, ETC.

Mr. Duncan continues: "In the fall of 1829, Rice Davenport and my father, James Duncan, sold a lot of bacon to the quartermaster at the Fort for  $1\frac{1}{4}$  cents per pound. I drove the team. We crossed the Missouri in a flat-boat, constructed at Liberty, and brought up the river by a steam-boat. Two yoke of oxen were first taken over, and then the wagon. Net pork, in 1829, sold for 75 cents per hundred; horses brought \$15 to \$20, oxen per yoke \$30, and large steers \$10. A purchaser of horses took a lot to Ohio. I made two trips to Ohio as a drover. After selling our horses, I returned on foot. We often visited the Platte territory, hunting deer and bees. Both were abundant. Ben Cornelis was the champion bee-hunter. He often camped on Bee Creek, and gave it its name. One fall I killed one hundred and twenty deer. There were no buffaloes on this side of the Missouri. I never saw but one elk, and that was after it was killed. Beeswax was a staple. It sold for 25 cents per pound. John and William Livingston had a large quantity of honey, and pressed it for the wax, throwing away the honey. They sold the wax to John Aull, of Lexington, and with the proceeds entered 80 acres of land. We had a sugar camp, but our neighbors sweetened their coffee with honey, which was called "sweetening." It sold for 10 cents per pound. Bear's meat was not sold; but when one was killed, the meat was divided among the neighbors. The first winter after our arrival in Clay we found a bear's hole, near the house. When, by stratagem, we had killed it, it weighed 310 pounds. Wolves were abundant, and would have annoyed us, had we not kept dogs."

September 24, 1829—By treaty, the Delaware tribe of Indians were granted a body of land extending from the Kaw River to the Leavenworth Reserve.

BARRY.

March 9, 1829—A town and post-office are established at Barry. They were so named in honor of W. F. Barry, Postmaster-General. The enterprise of Peter H. Burnett made it a point of importance. He afterwards became the first territorial governor of California, and lately died in San Francisco.

1830.

STEAMBOATS.

Prior to 1830, only an occasional steamer ventured up the dangerous Missouri. The first regular boat was the Otoe, Captain J. B. Hill. She was succeeded by the Hancock. The Globe, Captain Wineland, made a trip for the Government in 1830. Boats came in the spring and summer, but never stayed over winter.

SURVEYS.

In the fall of 1830, John C. McCoy, who died at Kansas City September 2, 1889, surveyed the north line of the Delaware lands, and laid off the Reserve, on the east side of the Missouri. The south and east line of the Reserve was the old bed of Bee Creek. The original limits of the Reserve, east of the Missouri, embraced 6,000 acres—but it has been reduced to less than 1,000 acres. On the west side of the Missouri, 5,904 acres were reserved. The south line is four miles long.

INDIAN COUNCIL.

September 24, 1830—Maj. John Dougherty, agent for the Pawnees, held a council with his tribe at Fort Leavenworth.

1831.

The mails from Liberty to the Fort, at first carried weekly by horse, are now conveyed tri-weekly by hack. Robert Cain is allowed to settle at Todd's Creek, for change of horses. Subsequently change of horses was made at the house of Wm. Fox, of Longpoint—so called because a long point of timber there extended out into the prairie.

BEE CREEK.

Several crossings of Bee Creek were constructed by the soldiers, between 1828 and 1839. In the latter year a high frame bridge was built at the point where Bee Creek enters the Missouri bottom. It was erected at the joint expense of the county and the Government. This was, for many years after the settlement of the county, the approach to Weston. It was much later that the direct route from Platte City to Weston was opened.

1832.

The Mormons come to Jackson County.

Liberty Arsenal is erected this year. David Bivens did the carpenter's work, and Riley and Dykes the brick-work. The Arsenal and Robert Aull's house were the first brick buildings erected in Clay.

About 1832 the main channel of the Missouri changed from the west to the east side of Weston Island.

1833.

The Mormons, robbed and threatened by the people of Jackson County, pass over into Clay, and thence move on to Caldwell County.

1835.

This spring Thos. Johnson and Sashel Brown, of Clay, crossed the State line into Platte and raised corn, which they sold at Fort Leavenworth.

ANNEXATION OF THE PLATTE COUNTRY.

At this time the western boundary of the State of Missouri was a north-and-south line running through the mouth of the Kansas River. The territory lying west of the State line and east of the Missouri, and traversed by the Little Platte, was known as the "Platte Country." The Iowas and the Sacs and Foxes set claim to this land. Gen. Andrew Hughes was agent for these tribes, holding his headquarters at Agency, in what is now Buchanan County. By the treaty made with these tribes July 15, 1830, the Government was granted the privilege of locating other tribes temporarily on this territory. In 1832, it was offered to the Delawares, and refused by them, because there were no buffalo upon it. In 1833, the Iowas and Sacs and Foxes expressed a desire to sell their territorial rights, on account of the encroachments of the whites. In 1834, by the treaty of Chicago, a part of the Pottawatomie tribe was located, temporarily, in Platte County. This called forth from Senator Linn, of Missouri, the following letter to H. Ellsworth:

SENATOR LINN'S LETTER.

“Washington, January 23, 1835.

“Sir.—It has long been desired by the people of Missouri to have annexed to the State that portion of territory lying between the western boundary of the great river Missouri, for the purpose of preventing the location upon it of an annoying Indian population; and for the purpose of having points to receive their supplies, and to ship their produce, within a moderate distance from their homes, upon the frontier. The location of the Pottawatomies, by the treaty of Chicago, on this territory, interposes a barrier to the attainment of these objects so important to the welfare and tranquillity of the inhabitants of the western counties. Will you be so good as to furnish me your opinion of the propriety of ratifying that treaty, and the dangers of a collision between the two races, from placing the Indians between the white population and the Missouri River?

“Very respectfully,

“L. F. Linn.”

Mr. Ellsworth, January 27, 1835, replied favorably to Senator Linn's suggestions, and advised the rejection of the Chicago treaty, and thus prevent the occupancy of the Platte Country by the Indians. Other correspondence on this topic will be found in Gatewood's "History of Platte," pages 545-9.

GEN. HUGHES AND ANNEXATION.

In the summer of 1835, at a militia muster on Weekly Dale's farm, three miles north of Liberty, Gen. Andrew Hughes, agent of the Iowa, presented the matter of annexation to those present, and a committee consisting of D. R. Atchison, A. W. Doniphan, W. T. Wood, Peter H. Burnett, and Ed. M. Samuel, was appointed to prepare a memorial to Congress, in favor of extending the limits of the State to the Missouri, so as to embrace the Platte Country. The memorial was written by Judge Wood, and was numerously signed.

But action had already been commenced by our Legislature. In 1834 and 1835, Article 2 of the State Constitution was so amended as to embrace the Platte Country, with a proviso that it should not take effect until the assent of Congress is given. This assent was given by act of Congress, approved June 7, 1836, conditioned upon the extinguishment of the Indian title, and the acceptance of the terms by the State. This acceptance was given by the Legislature December 16, 1836.

FIRST SETTLERS.

In 1835 and 1836, many of the people of Clay crossed the line and made improvements in Platte. Though Senator Linn estimates their number at three hundred, I have been able to get only the following names: Robert and William Asher, Felix Beauchamp, Nat Boydston, William Brown, Ar. and Rob't Chance,

Chas. Cook, Ben Cornelis, Sol Eades, Leander Jones, Jos. Porter, Eph. Gilliam, David and Jas. Rupe, H. Vance, and William Woods. An officer and posse were sent from the Fort, and with kindness they were required to leave. Several of their cabins were burned. Nat Boydston and others returned in 1836, and no notice was taken of them. But, for the convenience and safety of travelers, Rob't Cain was allowed to remain at Todd's Creek, and Joseph Todd between Fort Leavenworth and the Falls of Platte. Zadoek Martin, with his servants, family, and hands, kept the two ferries; but in 1837, Rob't Cain took charge of the ferry at the Fort. William Brown and Wilson Williams lived at the Issue House after the arrival, in 1835, of the Pottawatomies.

THE POTTAWATOMIES.

In the summer of 1835, two parties of this tribe, of several hundred each, were located, temporarily, in Platte. One party was placed in what has since been called the Pottawatomie Prairie, and the other in the bottom and hills opposite Fort Leavenworth. Rations of beef, flour, bacon, etc., were issued to them. An issue house was built some sixty yards north of the present house of B. F. Whitely, of round logs, floored with puncheons, and covered with clapboards. Thompson, Wallis & Co. had the contract to furnish the Indians with beef. John Boulware was their superintendent. I remember attending Esquire Chas. Wells' court, in this old landmark, in 1839. Justice's courts, at that day, were attended by hundreds of men, and a jury was easily summoned. The Indians were here only two years. They were removed to western Iowa in the summer of 1837.

PERSONAL NOTES—JOS. TODD (iii).

Mr. Todd having been driven from the claim he selected in 1835 on Todd's Creek, which took its name from him, he applied for permission to settle on the Military Road, three miles west of the Falls. This license was granted him, and the rich body of hackberry lands is still called the Todd Settlement. His neighbors were Martin, at the Falls, and Boulware, Brown, and Williams, at the Issue House. The Pottawatomies were around him, and the old chief, called Col. Caldwell by the whites, and known by his warriors as Socanois, pitched his wigwam in Mr. Todd's yard. He took pleasure in reciting his adventures in broken English. He claimed that he was with Tecumseh at the battle of the Thames. With assumed dignity, he would say: "Before the battle, Tecumseh gave me the order: 'You go to the left, and I will go to the right. But farewell; you will never see me again.'" Socanois was straight, and about 6 feet 3 inches high. He was kind and genial, and a great favorite with Mr. Todd's family. He had some education, and read newspapers with difficulty. He was much interested in the Florida War, and did not conceal his sympathy for the Indians. Mr. Todd's post-office was at the Fort, he traded at Liberty, and did his milling at Smithville. He said that squirrels were rarely seen, but became abundant after the country was settled. There were no quails. Paroquets, with green and yellow plumage, went in flocks, screaming as they passed. Bald eagles were common, and wolves and owls made night hideous. Before removing to the west of the Falls, Mr. Todd had a sugar camp at the mouth of Todd's Creek.

LONGPOINT, BILLY FOX AND BILLY LEWIS.

Billy Fox settled half way between the Falls and Liberty. The stage there changed horses. He was a genial and companionable host. William Lewis, who lived with him, was a curiosity. He was called "Laughing Billy" Lewis. His stentorian laugh would shake the hills. He would come to town, and, when merry, would commence his performance. Everything was the subject of ridicule. In a few minutes the whole town would be out. He proved the old saying true, that laughing is catching. After his loudest and merriest cachinnation, all present would join in chorus, until one would think Bedlam had been turned loose. I have heard him tell how he outwitted a steamboat captain. He had but one dollar, and had not paid his passage. The captain tapped the bell, and Lewis begged him to let him tap it again. He did so, and then burst into one of his loudest laughs. The passengers came forth, and were merry. The captain tried to stop the sport, but the passengers enjoyed it. Finally, Lewis offered his dollar if he would let him go on tapping the bell. The captain accepted it, thinking that Lewis would soon get tired. But he was mistaken. He grew more and more hilarious, until the captain gave him back his dollar, and agreed to charge no fare for his passage.

ROBERT CAIN

Possessed all the kindness, hospitality and good nature of the typical pioneer. No kindness was ever asked of him in vain. He had nothing too good for a guest. He was true and generous to a fault. He was rich in lands and stock; but he could not cope with the arts and frauds of civilization, and he left but little for his children.

JOHN BOULWARE

Took charge of the Issue House in 1835. It was located on his claim. He sold goods to the Indians and early settlers. He led a battalion to the Mormon War, and for years was a leader in civil and military affairs.

J. BRADLEY COX

Still lives on the old Military Road, three miles from Barry. He selected land in 1835, while living in Clay. He often visited the Fort with marketing, from the first year of its location in 1827. He was born in Virginia January 6, 1806. When he was a child his parents removed to Anderson County, Kentucky. In 1827, they came to Clay. In 1837, he settled where he yet lives. He m'd Angeline Arnold, dr. of Younger Arnold. She died in 1895. Their ch:

THE TREATY

For the extinguishment of the titles of the Iowas and the Sacs and Foxes was made at Fort Leavenworth September 17, 1836. It consisted of four articles:

Art. I. The tribes relinquish to the United States their rights of every nature, to all the land lying between the State line and the Missouri River, for the consideration of $7,500.

Art. II. The United States assigns to the tribes, as a reservation, a strip of about 400 square miles, on the south side of the Missouri River, between the Kickapoo northern boundary and the Grand Nemaha River.

Art. III. The United States are to remove the Indians to their reservation, and to build temporary lodges, and to supply agricultural implements and stock.

Art. IV. The treaty is to take effect when ratified by the Government.

It is signed by William Clark, Superintendent of Indian Affairs; by White Cloud and eleven Iowas, in behalf of the Iowas; and by Red Fox and fourteen others, for the Sacs and Foxes. Among the witnesses are John Dougherty, Andrew S. Hughes, and H. Roubidoux, Jr. The full text of the treaty may be found in Gatewood's "History of Platte," page 550.

PLATTE ATTACHED TO CLAY.

December 6, 1836—In advance of the settlement of the lands, Platte County, by an act of the Legislature, was attached to Clay for civil and military purposes. The law was to take effect on the ratification of the treaty. All the territory between Clay and the Missouri River was attached to Clay; and all north of a line running to the Missouri from the northwest corner of Clay was attached to Clinton County. This left to Platte less than the constitutional limit of 400 miles; and hence, on the survey of Platte, the north line was extended several miles further north.

TREATY RATIFIED AND LAND SETTLED.

February 15, 1837—The Indian treaty was ratified, and immediately the horde of “sooners” gathered in Clay and Clinton dashed into the new territory. Jackson, Lafayette, Boone, and Howard counties sent contingents, but Virginia, Kentucky, and Tennessee sent thousands of their sturdy, intelligent, and enterprising citizens—constituting a population equal morally and superior physically to any other people on earth. Choice claims were selected, cabins erected, clearings opened, fences built, and corn planted. The roads were crowded with emigrants. They dashed north until stopped by the Iowa line. They sought the lands densely covered with timber of the most superior quality, and at once commenced to destroy it. The lovely prairies, ready for the plow, were neglected. In the summer of 1839 I first passed through the lovely undulating meadows between Barry and the Falls, and not a house was found, except that of John Bryant; and as late as the fall of 1840 the beautiful prairies between Second Creek and Todd’s Creek were in Nature’s loveliness and without a tenant. But the rocky hills along the wooded streams were taken up. In 1841 I built the first house on the open prairie east of Todd’s Creek. I bought a claim in what was then called the White Oak Woods, on Smith’s Fork, for rail timber. At that time the forest was unbroken—the white oaks were crowded, were about twenty inches in diameter, and as straight as southern pines. I hauled to the prairie ten thousand rails, and they are there now after nearly sixty years.

JUSTICES OF THE PEACE APPOINTED.

There is very little found in the records of Clay in relation to Platte. But the county court appointed justices of the peace, as follows: William Banta, Jacob Adamson, P. S. Benton, J. R. Bonds, Michael Byrd, Henry Brooks, J. C. Bywaters, And. Campbell, Daniel Clary, J. B. Collier, Peter Crockett, Jas. Flannery, Wm. A. Fox, Jas. Fulkerson, J. W. Gibson, Josiah Higgins, Arch. Hill, Jas. H. Hord, Hugh McCaffrey, Matthias Masten, H. D. Oden, Robert Patton, J. B. Rogers, Jacob Smelser, J. P. Smith, John Stokes, Robert Stone, Jer. H. Spratt, S. B. Thorp, Chas. Wells.

These justices were farmers, of native intellect, and, with scarcely an exception, of unimpeachable integrity. I venture to say that we have never since had a board of justices to equal them.

MARTINSVILLE.

Zadock Martin, who for nine years had had undisputed sway, set up claim to all the lands adjacent to the Falls. But the demand for business property, and the liberal prices offered for lots, induced him to issue permits to build houses on the hill-side, near where the African M. E. church now stands. He gave no written conveyances. In the fall of 1837 there were some 35 houses and 200 inhabitants in the town of Martinsville. I became a citizen of Martinsville in 1839, and I remember the following: Adkins, Jos.; Bonnell, W. D. (carpenter); Branham, C. C. (merchant); Brown, Milt.; Burnett Bros. (merchants); Cannon, Alex. E. (lawyer); Compton & Morin (merchants); Dorriess, G. P. (merchant); Faylor (hotel); Gibson, Dr. J. W.; Hope & Irwin (saddlers); Johnston, Jas. H. (postmaster and merchant); Johnston, Stephen (merchant); Marshall, Dr. F.; Martin, Z. and family; Martin, Anderson; Mulligan, John and Joe (saloon); Owen, Riley (deputy sheriff); Paxton, Wm. M. (lawyer); Samuel, G. W. (merchant); Sherwood, A. B.; Spratt, W. H. (saloon); Thomas, Jas. S. (lawyer).

Martinsville was a busy little town, but drinking and gambling were the chief employments.

PLATTE CITY MILLS.

In 1837 Martin and his sons built a substantial dam, a few yards above the falls, tore up the large flat rocks on the west side of the river, and constructed a mill with one turbine water-wheel. A pair of good stones were cut from "lost rock," found on the east of Platte, three miles northeast of Platte City. On these stones only corn was ground. But in the spring of 1838 a larger building was constructed, a pair of French buhr millstones were brought up the Missouri, bolts were put in, and a good article of flour was made. It was a better mill than that of Yankee Smith at Smithville; and the abundant water-power never failed. Running night and day, accommodation was afforded not only to Platte, but to numbers from Clay, Clinton, and Buchanan. Wagons from a distance would remain for a week, to secure their turns. Some brought provisions for man and team; but parched corn was the staple. Some two to three hundred hogs were fed. In 1838 a saw-mill was added, and thenceforth good farm-houses were erected.

Zadock Martin had little use for horses. His hauling and plowing were done by oxen. His teams seldom got an ear of corn. They worked by day and grazed on native grasses and rushes by night. His cattle were of primitive breeds. Among them was a buffalo steer. He had caught it when a calf, and reared it with his cattle. His hogs were of the "wind-splitter" breed. Their fat yielded oil, and not lard.

GAME AND FOWL.

Game was never so abundant on the east of the Missouri as on the west. Buffalo and antelope were unknown; and the elk was seldom seen. Until cereals were cultivated by man, no quails, and but few squirrels, turkeys, and prairie-fowl, were seen. Rabbits at an early day were scarce, because the wolves destroyed them. Bears were seldom seen. I never saw a wild bear, and have no personal evidence that there was a wild bear in Platte. Wolves seldom raised their young on this side of the Missouri. They came over in vast numbers whenever the Missouri was frozen. They lived on rabbits. They did little harm; but their dismal howling made the night hideous. Though their presence was unknown to the sleeping family, the morning disclosed their tracks at their very door. Gophers cast up their little hills in all the wet prairies. Deer had been abundant; but, after the country was settled, they were seldom seen. In the prairies west of the Clay line there were what were called "deer-licks." They were bare places in the prairie, visited by deer to lick the soil for salt. The hunter erected three poles, twenty feet high, and on the top laid a platform. Here the huntsman lay awaiting his victim, and assassinated the unwary animal. But the invasion of man was followed by the exodus of the deer. In winter the prairie-fowl were too abundant, and did damage to the standing corn. An occasional prairie-hen remained over summer and reared her young. I have found their nests. Otters, minks, beavers, and musk-rats were found in the Platte and are not yet extinct. Paroquets were here still in 1839. A beautiful flock made their home at the Falls. They were not disturbed, but in circles they flew, like pigeons, screaming in their course.

SNAKES.

The rattlesnake was found in timber and prairie. Cattle and horses sometimes suffered from their bites; but I have never known a man fatally poisoned by them. Blacksnakes were more domestic. Pardon me if I relate

AN ADVENTURE WITH BLACKSNAKES.

In October, 1839, I bought the claim owned now by Jesse Collins, one mile southwest of Martinsville, and, to secure a pre-emption, made the cabin thereon my home. The cabin was of round logs, pointed on the outside with mud, and the cracks covered within with clapboards. My bed was four poles on tressels, covered with hazel brush. This I placed against the wall, blew out my candle, and went to bed. But I could not sleep, because of a noise of something rubbing behind the clapboards at my side. Expecting to dislodge rats, I re-lit my candle, and, with a pole, prized off a board. Two large blacksnakes, wrapped in close embrace, fell into my bed. These I dispatched with the pole, crushed their heads, and cast out of the cabin. I then provided myself with an axe, and prized off another board. Two other large blacksnakes fell, which I cut in pieces, and cast out. I then removed my cot into the middle of the puncheon floor, and slept until morning. But the two snakes whose heads I had crushed were gone, while those I cut up remained. I lived in this cabin three months, and secured my land by preëmption.

FISH.

As in most new countries, fish were abundant. The creeks were stocked with perch and catfish; and, with these, buffalo, bass, and campbellites were found in the lakes and larger streams. The Falls of Platte was a favorite resort for fishermen from abroad. I have sometimes seen, at one time, a hundred persons fishing at the Falls. At the spawning season vast quantities of large catfish, unable to pass the falls, would gather in the rapids below. In the rifles I have seen the tails and fins of large fish so close and numerous that a spear cast in would often bring a fish to the shore. Venturesome watermen would go under the dam with a grab-hook, and harpoon large fish lying in the crevices of the rocks. As buffalo and catfish were coming down the river, great numbers were caught in the trap set at the foot of the falls. The water-wheels of the mill were sometimes stopped by them. But from year to year they became less. Bean's Lake and other lakes of the county still supply quantities of buffalo fish. Traps and seines are prohibited.

IMPROVEMENTS.

The first homes of the settlers were rude huts constructed of round logs, daubed with mud, floored with puncheons, and covered with clapboards held down by weight-poles. The chimney was of logs to the arch, and then of laths filled in with mud. The door was of clapboards, and the latch-string, night and day, hung outward; for the pioneer is both fearless and hospitable. But, as soon as lumber could be procured, these cabins were succeeded by warm hewed-log houses, with plank floors and stone chimneys. Stoves came in later.

CLEARING LAND.

Prairies were neglected, but farms were opened in the timber with much labor. All trees under a foot in diameter were felled, and cut into lengths of ten feet, for rails. The brush was piled, and the large trees were girdled. For these services $5 per acre was the usual price. As the trees decayed and fell, they were dragged together and burned. Log-rollings were common. The rule was, You help me and I will help you. A jug of whisky and a general notice of the day brought together a merry crowd. The larger piles of logs were covered with rock, to be burned into lime.

FARMING IMPLEMENTS.

Blacksmiths used charcoal, made from burning large piles of timber covered with dirt. I made many of them, for one of my servants was a blacksmith. Many a bar-share and Cary plow he made. The moldboard was made from a twisting oak, which always, like the bean-vine, follows the sun in twisting. An improvement on the bar-share was the Cary plow, and the next advance was the Diamond plow. A story was told on an old farmer, who had always used the bar-share. A friend prevailed on him to try the Diamond plow. After a day's work, he returned the plow, saying: "It won't last a week; for it has already turned as bright as a dollar." The top of a bushy tree was the ordinary harrow, and wheat was cut with the sickle or the cradle. Oxen were used for all kinds of farm-work. Wagons were made by the carpenter, and ironed by the blacksmith.

SOCIETY.

The settlers had come from all States and countries. Each brought the arts, skill, and acquirements of his old home. Society, as a whole, has never been better. Every trade and profession was represented. Each one contributed something to the general fund of knowledge. Society was not divided into classes and circles. Each was esteemed according to his merit. No one was arrogant from wealth, and none cast out from poverty. Family distinctions were unknown. People were genial and social. All were on a level.

RELIGION.

Hardshell Baptists were the leading denomination. Their log churches, built in the form of a cross, were found in every settlement. They were an excellent people, but their ministers were not educated, and were seldom paid. The Missionary Baptists, Cumberland Presbyterians, Methodists, and Disciples divided the people. They preached in the log school-houses and in camp-grounds. No churches were built for ten years after the county was settled.

MILITIA.

In the fall of 1837 the State Militia was organized in the county. S. L. Leonard was appointed major-general, and Wm. B. Almond brigadier-general. The 77th Regiment was commanded by Col. Fielding Burnes; H. L. Wilkerson was major, and Lewis Burnes adjutant; Jas. Bradley was drum major, and John A. White, D. D. Burnes, and others were captains. The 78th Regiment was commanded by Colonel H. D. Oden, with John Mulligan as lieutenant-colonel, and John Boulware, Jas. Lilliard, and others as captains. Drilling, musters, and reviews were grand occasions.

SUPPLIES FOR FT. LEAVENWORTH.

Prior to 1837, and for five or six years after the opening of Platte, Clay County furnished the supplies for the Fort. Thos. Gordon was the largest contractor for corn, bacon, and beeves. When the Mexican War commenced, there was great demand for horses, mules, oxen, and wagons. Business upon the plains built up Platte County in wealth.

TOWN SITES.

I have already referred to Martinsville. No reliable titles to land could be procured until March, 1843, when the Plattsburg Land Office was opened. Yet towns grew up at Weston, Parkville, Iatan, New Market, Ridgely, and other places. The Missouri strikes the bluff at but three places in Platte, and each has a town or two—Iatan, Weston, and Parkville, with Rialto and Winston. The law to grant towns a preëmption, and to authorize sale of lots, was not passed until 1843. No good improvements were made until after the land sales. But there was a Federal law granting to counties a preëmption of 160 acres for county seats. Under this law, Platte City was the first town in the county where good titles could be obtained.

WESTON.

In 1837 Joseph Moore took up the claim upon which Weston is situated. Several streets were laid off and some locations sold. But Moore possessed no business qualifications, and the town did not prosper. In 1838 Gen. Bela M. Hughes, the only child of General Andrew S. Hughes, already mentioned, purchased a half interest in the claim. The new firm laid off what is known as the city proper, and commenced selling lots. At that time, there were only two families in the town. General Hughes yet lives in Denver, burdened with age and honors, but he was then only 21 years old. He took control in the winter of 1838-9, and sold many lots. The purchasers took the risk of getting the fee-simple title. Some lots were given away, to secure good and enterprising settlers. The first store was established by Thornburg & Lucas. It stood on Warner's corner. I was in Weston, July 14 to 20, 1839. It was a busy, bustling town of three hundred people. Ben Wood was a saddler. Ben Holladay kept a saloon. I had my first case in Missouri. A man was taken up for stealing a saddle, and was tried for the felony by a justice. A jury was summoned and instructed. If found guilty, he was to go to the penitentiary. I let the jury try him, intending, in case he were found guilty, to move to set the verdict aside. But the jury cleared him, and I got my fee. I remember meeting John B. Wells, Smith Calvert, Ben Holladay, General Hughes, William and D. P. Willingford, Dr. Sam'l McAdow, and Milton Byrum. I attended the sale at Nelson P. Owens' place, where the brick house of the late Lewis Pence stands. But among the new-comers some roughs and desperadoes, who "jumped" lots and defied all authority. The town was on public land, but we had a State law—"forcible entry and detainer"—that was used to put trespassers off of claims. Right or wrong, the settlers interpreted the law to suit their purposes, and "jumpers" had to beware. General Hughes was equal to the emergency, and the lot-jumpers had to be quiet or leave. Weston, under General Hughes' wholesome management, became a safe and prosperous town. A man named Ferguson made a deadly attack upon Hughes with a knife, but the latter eluded the stroke and with his fist felled the assassin. Ferguson, when well, thought it prudent to enlist in the army. James Moore, a brother of Joseph, had to be brought to terms, and a man named Durbin was ordered to leave. Other jumpers were chastized until peace and prosperity reigned. Though the town site was not entered under the Federal law until 1844, nor the plat filed until September 19, 1844, yet in the meantime the town grew in numbers and in the enterprise of its inhabitants. After the plat was filed and the town chartered, the board of trustees gave deeds for lots at nominal prices. There were no public sales of lots. Except Platte City and Weston, no towns succeeded until after the land sales.

March 27, 1837—Geo. W. Smith and Sallie Gentry were married. This is the first entry of a marriage in Platte in the records of Clay.

July 20, 1837—Ben Jacks born. He is supposed to have been the first child born in Platte. R. N. Harrington, late of the Dearborn Democrat, was born July 24, 1837.

1838.

The season of 1838 was propitious. The most interesting event was the passage of a general preëmption law, granting 160 acres, each, to settlers. This law gave preëmptions to all who were then, at the passage of the law, actual settlers on public lands. A sale or abandonment of the claim worked a forfeiture. But in 1841 the present prospective preëmption law was passed, and such as bought claims and took possession at once acquired title which he could enforce at law. The law of 1838 quieted titles, improvements progressed, population increased, churches were organized, school-houses built, orchards planted, and prosperity ruled.

APRIL.

April 7—A Methodist church was organized in the vicinity of Weston. The original members were: Wm. Adkinson, Joel Albright, Wm. Bailey, Henry Barker, Wm. Clay, Thos. Edwards, Thos. Farmer, Phil. S. Gill, Jesse Green, B. Holland, H. Hopeland, Thos. Kenion, Frank Newnan, C. C. Nichols, and Wm. Toole.

AUGUST.

Aug. 4—The county court of Clay, having divided Platte into townships, appointed justices and constables, and designated places for voting, the regular election was held. The county was then, as now, thoroughly Democratic, and the officers elected were of the same political faith. No county officer was elected, as the appointments made were until the general election of 1840. Platte was regarded as part of Clay. The State senators elected were: Judge Jas. T. V. Thompson, of Clay, and Cornelius Gilliam, of the attached part of Clinton. The representatives were: D. R. Atchison and Jas. M. Hughes, of Clay, and Jesse Morin, of Platte. T. W. Boggs was chosen governor.

NOVEMBER.

Nor. 19—The Legislature convened at Jefferson City.

DECEMBER.

THE COUNTY ORGANIZED.

Dec. 31—The act to organize Platte and Buchanan counties approved. The north line of Platte was to be run west from the old boundary of the State, so as to embrace 400 square miles; and to this end the governor was to appoint a surveyor. He was also to appoint three county justices and a sheriff.

The county court was to meet the second Monday in March, 1839, and was authorized to appoint a county clerk, a treasurer, and an assessor.

The county was attached to the First Judicial Circuit (Judge A. A. King), and to the Twelfth Senatorial District.

Circuit courts were to meet the first Mondays in April, August, and December, and the judge to appoint a circuit clerk.

The Falls of Platte was to be the temporary seat of justice, and S. D. Lucas, of Jackson, John H. Morehead, of Ray, and Sam'l Hadley, of Clay, were appointed commissioners to select a permanent seat of justice.

One representative was granted to Platte.

THE MORMONS.

In the fall of 1838 Governor Boggs called for a contingent from Clay and Platte to aid in suppressing the Mormons of Caldwell County. Three companies were raised in Platte, by Major John Boulware. They hastened to the scene of war, but order had been restored, and the battalion returned, and were discharged.

SURVEY OF THE COUNTY.

The governor appointed Matthew M. Hughes as surveyor, to run the line between Platte and Buchanan, so as to include 400 square miles. Mr. Hughes, assisted by James Brasfield, repaired to the southeast corner of the proposed county, and meandered the east bank of the Missouri River to a point at which a line running east to the Clinton County line would include exactly 400 square miles. No islands of the Missouri were embraced in this survey; nor did Applegate, in his subsequent survey, include any island. When the county was sectionized by Applegate, in 1840, it proved to be 412 square miles. Applegate's lines run about one half degree east of north, and north of west, as compared with the surveys of the east and the north lines of the county. There is no copy of Hughes' survey found in Platte. I presume the original field-notes are at Jefferson City.

MARCH.

June 4—Lisbon Applegate commenced his work of sectionizing the county. He started at the old State line, between townships 50 and 51. The work was finished in June, 1840. A certified copy of his field-notes, originally in two volumes of 1,100 pages each, is in the custody of the county surveyor, and is the "Domesday Book" of Platte. Surveyor Applegate was experienced in his calling, and no errors have been detected in his work. He died, greatly honored and loved, in Chariton County, Mo., in January, 1875.

"We settled in what was known as the "Great Bear Rough." We caught four cubs. I worked on the farm; paid off father's security debts; had to walk three miles to school. A sow was given me; raised a litter of pigs; sold 1,200 pounds of pork for $12; bought a fiddle with $4; borrowed $2 from our old servant, Aleck, and bought four calves for $10; broke them, and had two yoke of oxen. In 1842, went to Santa Fé; was hunter and cook for the party; was once near being captured by the Comanches; returned with a pack-mule and $55; became a clerk in a store at $25 per month. In the spring of 1849 went to California with brother William, John G. Haydon, Wm. Davenport, and R. P. Wood. In Humboldt Desert we were lost; R. P. Wood became crazy for a time; Davenport dashed forward, and returned with water; wintered at Hang-town; went to Sacramento; was offered $350 per month to clerk, but declined it. Potatoes sold at $1 per pound, and eggs at $1 each; the proceeds of my 1,200 pounds of pork would have bought a dozen eggs; our teams came through in good order. I engaged in mining, and made $1,500; went into the mercantile business with L. J. Wood and J. M. Clay as my partners; went to San Francisco, and returned with a stock of goods; sold them at great profit. My brother William died; and, in discouragement, I came home."

December 11, 1851, Mr. Brasfield m'd his relative, Kate Brasfield, dr. of Claiborn. She was b. in Woodford Co., Ky., October 15, 1826; d. March 30, 1890. Several children were born to them, but died in infancy. He m'd 2d, Sept. 1, 1894, Kate Briggs, of Kansas.

In 1870, Mr. Brasfield was elected a judge of the county court of Platte, and served three years. He is an enthusiastic Mason, and has attained the highest honors of the order. His genial, generous, and hospitable nature has made him a general favorite. His first wife was a beautiful and lovely woman, and possessed a remarkably sweet disposition. The Judge is wealthy, and, with his young and accomplished wife, lives on his farm adjacent to Tracy.

V. ELIZABETH WILLIS BRASFIELD, the youngest child of Major Brasfield, was born June 3, 1831; m'd January 18, 1849, Judge Jas. G. Spratt, who came from Smith County, Virginia, in 1842. August 7, 1843, he was appointed a justice of the peace of Carroll Township; was deputy county clerk in 1852; read law privately; was elected probate judge in 1858, over Jas. Kuykendall, the late incumbent. Mrs. Spratt was an intelligent and amiable lady. She died May 9, 1861. In September, 1864, Judge Spratt went to Virginia City, and, while practicing law, engaged in speculation in mining stock. He died Nov. 13, 1881. His remains were brought back to Platte, and found rest beside his wife. In the practice of law, he was partner of Hon. Joseph E. Merryman, in Platte City. He was a good lawyer, and was an honorable man. Ch:

2. Edgar Spratt, b. Aug. 30, 1855; d. Aug. 11, 1882; m'd Aug. 30, 1877, Salena (Sibbie) Thatcher, b. April 27, 1860; d. April 8, 1882. He was a merchant of Smithville. The deaths of husband and wife within four days of each other, of typhoid fever, created much alarm. Both were buried in the Brasfield Cemetery.

JULY.

July 3—Zadock Martin is granted ferry license at the foot of the Falls of Platte.

July 15—Judge King held his first term of the Buchanan Circuit Court at Roubidoux.

July 17—The first deed filed for record in the recorder's office for Platte County. It is from Church to Hughes, for a lot in Weston. Deeds were seldom made, as no title passed. A pre-emption right could not be assigned, but it might be leased. Hence many leases for 99 years are found of record.

This month I arrived in Platte. I landed from a steamboat, with several companions, at Lexington. We purchased horses, and rode through Lafayette and Jackson counties to Westport—then three houses in the woods. Thence we went to Liberty, crossing at Fort Osage. After passing through Barry and Martinsville, we reached Weston, by way of the lower Bee Creek bridge. Between the bridge and Weston, on what was then the Military Reserve, the ruins of a number of cabins, whence trespassers had been driven by the soldiers, were still smoking.

Judge King held his second term of circuit court at the tavern of M. D. Faylor in Martinsville.

AUGUST.

Aug. 7—The county court appointed for Carroll Township the following patrol: 1, Milton Brown; 2, David Carson; 3, A. B. Sherwood; and 4, W. H. Spratt.

JOHN DUNCAN.

The county court appoints Hiram Stephenson administrator of John Duncan. His widow is named Elizabeth, and his children: 1, Williamson Duncan; 2, Adeline; 3, Tilford; 4, Nelson; 5, Davis; 6, Susan Stephenson; 7, Martha Duncan; 8, Sam'l; 9, Mary.

SEPTEMBER.

Sept. 2—Sol. L. Leonard is appointed county surveyor.

Jones H. Owen gives bond of $5,000 as collector.

HENRY DEAL—A FREE BLACK.

Sept. 4—In a habeas corpus case before the county court the following order is of record:

"On motion, the court resumes the examination of the case of Henry Deal. Whereupon, it is considered by the court that said Deal is not a runaway slave, as was alleged, but the said Deal not establishing a right to reside in this State, as the law requires, it is therefore ordered by the court, that he be fined $20; and that he be hired out by the sheriff, as the law directs, for such time as shall be sufficient to raise from the hire the sum aforesaid, together with the costs and expenses of imprisonment. And it is further ordered, that the said Deal shall depart this State, within three days after such time of service expires, allowing one day for every twenty miles he shall necessarily have to travel to get out of the State.

Sept. 7—One hundred dollars is allowed Harrison Linville for assessing the county, one-half to be paid by the State.

OCTOBER.

Oct. 7—Preston Dunlap is appointed administrator of Alex. Houston. Bond, $3,000. Ch: 1, Robert F. Houston; 2, Mary F.; 3, Virginia A.; 4, William P.; 5, Jas. A.

NOVEMBER.

LOCATION OF THE COUNTY SEAT.

Nor. 10—The county court ordered notices to be served on the commissioners appointed by the Legislature, to meet at the Falls of Platte, and select a site for the county seat of Platte. On the 15th Hadley and Lucas appeared, but Morehead made default. The report made is as follows:

"Martinsville, November 16, 1839.

"To the Hon. Circuit Court of the County of Platte, State of Missouri:

"The undersigned commissioners, appointed by the Legislature of the State of Missouri, on the 31st of December, 1838, to select a seat of justice for the county of Platte, beg leave to report: That in obedience to an order of the tribunal transacting county business for such county, they convened at Martinsville, in said county, on the 15th inst. and entered upon their duties as commissioners aforesaid, and that they have selected a portion of Sections 25 and 36, Township 53, Range 35, near the Falls of Platte River, in said county, as an eligible and suitable site for the seat of justice of said Platte County. For further particulars, etc., we respectfully refer you to the bond of Zadock Martin, herewith enclosed.

"Samuel Hadley,

"David O. Lucas,

"Commissioners."

I have been unable to find the bond of Zadock Martin, returned with the report. He was desirous of securing the water-power at the Falls of Platte River, and set up a pretended Spanish "float," which he said had been located on all the lands contiguous to the falls. The falls are on the S. W.  $\frac{1}{4}$  of Sec. 25, T. 53, R. 35. The county was to take so much of this quarter as lay east of Platte River. But this fraction was less than 160 acres, which the Federal law allowed counties to preëempt. The bond of Martin was an agreement to convey to the county 24 acres from the N. W.  $\frac{1}{4}$  of Sec. 36, T. 53, R. 35, upon which he held a pre-emption. On this 24 acres, which Martin conveyed, the first addition to Platte City was located.

The question of the propriety of this contract with Martin was by the county court referred to Judge King. In a letter from Judge King now on file, and dated December 3, 1839, the county court is advised to approve the contract. On the 4th of December the court approved the location, and named the county seat Platte City.

COURT AT ROUBIDOUX.

Nor. 25—The third term of circuit court was held by Judge King at Faylor's hotel. His next term was for Buchanan, and this I attended. I went up to Roubidoux the evening before court. His house was perched on the hill-side. It was of logs on a stone basement. I was shown to my bed on a plank frame in the basement, and was given two blankets. I spread one blanket on the boards, and covered with the other. It was a cold, blustery night, and I nearly froze. In the morning, before day, I heard Roubidoux stirring in the room overhead, and I went up the rude ladder. He asked me in his broken English, French, and Indian how I had passed the night. I told him I had suffered from the cold. "What!" said he, "cold with two blankets?" I explained how I had used the blankets. He replied with contempt: "You haven't got even Indian sense, or you would have wrapped up in them."

The old man had built a roaring fire, and two prairie-chickens and a half-dozen ears of old corn on the cob were boiling in the pot. I made a hearty breakfast on these viands. Before court met, I took a survey of the future site of St. Joseph. I saw but two houses: that where I had spent the night and the store above the mouth of the creek. The Blacksnake Hills were romantic. They seemed to be composed of red crumbling earth, with here and there a tuft of grass. From the sides of the hills, at intervals, broke out oozing springs of pure water, which gathered into a bold stream that coursed the prairie bottom to the river. In the rear of the house, on the hill-side, stood four or five scaffolds, supported by poles. On these scaffolds lay the bones of Roubidoux's children. His wives were Indians, and he buried his dead in Indian fashion.

Court was held in one room and the elevated porch. The docket was short. The most interesting cases were several indictments against Roubidoux for gambling. All the bar except W. T. Wood, the circuit attorney, entered our names in the margin of the docket as for Roubidoux. We got the old man clear on some quibble, and he was happy. We charged him nothing, but he made all of us pay our tavern bills.

DECEMBER.

Dec. 4—The county court, having approved the location of the county seat, appointed Jesse Morin to enter the land. Sol. L. Leonard, county surveyor, was ordered to lay off the town, and Stephen Johnston was selected as commissioner of the seat of justice.

Dec. 15—S. L. Leonard commenced the survey of Platte City. I helped him in running the first line, on the east side of the town. The ground was covered by a foot of damp snow, and the Platte was hard frozen; and we could cross it conveniently. The work was complete in time for the sale of lots February 3, 1840.

NEWSPAPERS.

No newspaper is published in Platte County. During 1837-38-39-40 legal advertisements were published, chiefly, in the Far West, issued weekly at Liberty, by Benj. Hays.

1840.

Population of Platte County, 8,913, of which 858 are slaves: 1 white over 100. Engaged in agriculture, 2,207; in commerce, 56; in manufactures and trades, 195; in professions, 37. Pensioners, 3; deaf and dumb, 2; blind, 6; insane, 11. Schools, 27; scholars, 1,048. Population of the State, 383,702; the United States, 17,068,666.

Assessment of Platte County: slaves, $223,620; money and notes, $21,642; other property, $123,814; total, $369,076. Land not taxed.

BUSINESS MEN AT WESTON. 1840.

N. J. Alexander, Thomas Aull, H. Basye, Blaine, Tompkins & Barret, A. M. Belt, A. G. Cunningham, G. V. Dawson, Thos. Ellis, Abel Gilbert, Ben Holladay, A. N. Hailey, Bela M. Hughes, Geo. Keller, A. J. Lucas, Richard Meek, W. S. Murphy, Chas. Neal, W. A. Newman, W. G. Noble, G. P. Post, John Thornburg, Thornton & Burnett, Ben Wood, Jerry Woods, Wells.

AT PLATTE CITY. 1840.

In the spring of 1840 Martinsville moved "bodily" over into Platte City. In addition to those named as citizens of Martinsville, I recollect: Wm. B. Almond, Jas. Athy, Wm. E. Black, Sam'l Benton, Isaac Burnes, Hamp. Brown, G. W. and W. P. Dougherty, Jas. H. Baldwin, Isaac Farris, J. R. Hardin, W. R.

Kelly, Col. Lancaster, Dr. W. M. Macey, Jones H. and J. R. Owen, John S. Porter, Geo. Strouse, Sam'l Paul, W. C. Remington, Shad. B. Taylor, John D. Murray, Jacob Baker.

FEBRUARY.

Feb. 3—The first sale of lots in Platte City. Alternate lots were sold, and in June the remainder were offered. Smith Calvert was auctioneer. The lots were sold on the ground, the party going from lot to lot. The weather was favorable. Geo. McAfee was living where the cemetery now is, and had a preëmption on the whole quarter under the law of 1838. No respect was shown to his rights, and he was too poor to assert them. Lot 1, Block 29, where the post-office is now kept, was sold to G. P. Dorriss for $709. This is the highest price paid for a lot. Bidding was spirited, and the sales of February and June aggregated $20,000. The law appropriated the proceeds of the lots to the erection of public buildings. Improvements were rapidly constructed, and, in a few months, there were six dry goods stores and about 400 inhabitants. All trades and professions were represented. Carpenters were in demand. The first brick house erected was J. H. Johnston's store, on Lot 9, Block 25. It still stands.

COURTS.

Feb. 23—The February term of circuit court was held in the double log cabin, on Lots 11 and 12, Block 34. This was bought by the county court from Zadock Martin for $100. Until the courthouse was complete, this house was used for county courts, and for preaching. I kept my office there until I built one on Lot 10, Block 24 (the present public square). The next circuit court was held in a booth constructed of poles and brush, back of G. P. Dorriss' store. Several terms were afterwards held by Judge Atchison in Murray's store, on Lot 8, Block 25. Preaching was also held at the latter place.

SALE OF 16th SECTIONS.

Applications were made for the sale of the 16th sections which a Federal law gave to the State for school purposes. Township 54, R. 33, and T. 53, R. 35, were the first to file petitions; and the county court made the orders. These sales passed a good title. The squatter generally got his land. Nearly all the school lands were sold in 1840 and 1841.

BANK NOTES.

The banks, with the exception of the Bank of Missouri, suspended specie payments in 1837, and gold, silver, and Missouri money were demanded for lots and for 16th sections.

This State was flooded with Kentucky and Ohio money, which was exchanged for gold at a shave of 5 to 20 per cent. Yet it was the currency of the State. Property had three values: 1st, specie; 2d, currency; and 3d, trade or exchange.

S. L. Leonard was allowed $50 for his survey and plat of Platte City.

Lots 10, 11, and 12 in Block 25 were set apart for public buildings. Lots 7 and 8, Block 23, were selected for the jail.

The purchasers of lots were authorized to cut and use the timber in the streets.

A road from Platte City to Smithville was ordered to be opened.

A road was ordered from the east end of Main Street to connect with the old Military Road a mile from town.

A FREE FERRY.

The county court ordered the bank of Platte River, at the west end of Main Street, cut down, and established a free ferry. Zadock Martin found his occupation gone, at his licensed ferry below the falls, and sued the county for damages. Nothing came of it.

MAY.

May 3—Dr. F. Marshall is appointed treasurer of Platte County in place of Ira Norris, who resigned. Bond, $10,000.

WESTON TOWNSHIP FORMED.

May 4—A petition was presented to the county court for a new township. It states that Weston has 72 voters; and it is signed, among others, by Robert Allen, Isaac Archer, Aquilla Aull, Nick Benner, Henry Basye, Henry Brill, Jas. Burnett, L. B. Church, Jas. Cox, Jos. Cox, W. H. Crawford, A. G. Cunningham, John S. Davis, Sam'l Downey, Dan'l Durbin, Nat Finch, S. C. Fugate, Geo. Goss, Hiram Hailey, Jacob Hamm, Ben Holladay, Ben Leachman, Jas. Leachman, A. J. Lucas, Geo. J. Lucas, Jas. Lynch, Hus. McFarland, W. S. Murphy, W. A. Newman, W. G. Noble, Wm. Noel, Hosea Norris, Lawrence Page, Elkanah Risk, John Stillwell, Elisha Stone, John Thornburg, M. A. Thornburg, Jesse Vineyard, J. W. Vineyard, Barnet Wells, H. L. Wilkerson, Ben Wood, Jerry Woods, A. G. Woodward.

The prayer of the petition was granted, and Weston Township was cut out of Marshall and Lee.

CULTURE OF TOBACCO.

Emigrants from Virginia, Kentucky, and central Missouri entered enthusiastically into the culture of tobacco, and realized large returns in quantity, but the article was not of the quality to suit the market. Freights were high, prices low; and in some cases, expenses exceeded returns, and the shipper was brought in debt. For ten or fifteen years the culture of tobacco continued, but finally was given up.

HEMP.

From the first settlement of the county, hemp was the staple product. We became wealthy by its culture. No soil on earth, whether timber or prairie, is better adapted to hemp than Platte County. After a few years, the South looked more to Missouri than to Kentucky for a supply of hemp for bagging and rope. Platte, for several years prior to the war, was the banner county of the world. But no machinery ever invented superseded the hand-break in cleaning it; and that was such arduous labor that the abolition of slavery put an end to the culture of hemp. Negroes were, therefore, in demand, and stout men sold readily for $1,200 to $1,400. But in 1840 there were not 200 negro men in the county. This number had quadrupled before the war came on.

* LAND TITLES.

June 22, 1838, the first general preëmption law was passed, giving the actual settler the choice of the quarter-section whereon he resided, or that on which his field was situated. June 1, 1840, a second law, of like provisions, was passed. September 4, 1841, a third law was passed, in favor of such as thereafter might settle on public land. But these rights were not assignable; yet the purchaser would take possession, and the law of 1841 gave him, at once, a preëmption. The prohibition of selling thereby became a dead letter. The owners of the 16th sections, and of lots in Platte City, could convey fee-simple titles.

COUNTY REVENUE.

The collector's settlement for 1840 shows the county revenue collected was $942.84. The levy was 25 cents on the $100.

JULY.

July 4—The national anniversary was observed for the first time. Sherwood & Martin were erecting a storehouse at what is now the southwest corner of the public square; and from the lumber provided we erected a platform, and had a glorious time. I read the Declaration of Independence, and Dr. D. R. Holt delivered an excellent oration. He was then a candidate for the Legislature.

July 27—Robt. C. Ewing and W. M. Paxton were enrolled as attorneys.

July 30—J. H. and L. D. Winston are appointed administrators of Gen. Jos. Winston. Bond, $20,000. General Winston had a store at the mouth of the Platte, at the point at which the town of Winston was afterwards laid off. When last seen, he was on the bank of the Missouri. He was supposed to have been drowned.

AUGUST.

At the State election held the 1st Monday in August, 1840, the following officers were chosen:

Oct. 5—John Boulware contracts with the county to run a free ferry at the foot of Main Street for twelve months, at $250.

NOVEMBER.

Nov. 6—The county court made an order that Grand Jurors must serve without pay!

Kuykendall and Lewis take their seats as county court justices. Judge Hughes does not qualify until December.

DECEMBER.

Dec. 7—David R. Holt dies at Jefferson City. He was our county representative, and had been chosen speaker of the House. The Legislature honored him by naming a county for him, and, at the cost of $15,000, erected in the State Cemetery at Jefferson City, where he was buried, a beautiful monument, with the following inscription:

"Sacred to the memory of David Rice Holt, M.D., late representative from Platte County, Missouri, who was born in Green County, Tennessee, the 8th of March, 1803, and died the 17th of December, 1840. Erected by an act of the General Assembly."

ROADS.

The county court of Clay County never established a road in Platte. The Garrison Road was made by military authority, and had no civil sanction. Up to 1840, roads generally followed the ridges; but now farms are fenced on the lines of the surveys, and there are calls for established roads. For several years the county records are filled with proceedings to establish roads. The settlers had no well-defined titles, and no damages were allowed. The best ground was chosen, and subsequent changes injured the roads.

CHURCHES.

The earliest and largest churches in the county were those of the Hardshell Baptists. The Methodist Church and the Disciples, or Christians, followed. The Cumberland Presbyterians were numerous. The two last named sects had just come into existence, and were full of fire and zeal. Immense camp-meetings were held in the woods, with logs for seats. Sectarian zeal was warm and religious discussions enlivened society. The mode, subject, and design of baptism, the operation of the Spirit, creeds and confessions of faith, education, the anxious seat, call to the ministry, and close and open communion called forth the polemic talent of all classes.

THE COURT HOUSE

Was built in 1840. Demetrius A. Sutton, an experienced architect, drew the plan and specifications, and was paid for his work $10. He and Jesse Morin, with Elijah Moore, were the building committee. The house was built on Lots 10, 11, and 12, Block 25, and 20 feet back from the streets on the south and east. It was 50 feet square, two 12-foot stories, and pointed roof, surmounted by a cupola, ball, and spire. There were four offices on the south, 18 by 18 feet, two below and two above. A passage led from the front or south door to the court-room below, and another on the second floor to a large room, long used for preaching. The circuit clerk used the lower office in the southeast corner, and the county clerk used the room in the southwest corner. The rooms above were for the probate judge and for juries. The work was sufficiently advanced as to be used for the November term, 1841, of the circuit court. The whole house was, at first, covered with tin; but so defective was the work that all the tin was removed, except upon the cupola, and shingles substituted.

The following marriages, 1840, are not elsewhere noted:

March 19, 1840, Metcalf Smith married Mary Collet.

December 3, 1840, Hosea Norris married Mary Pettigrew.

JANUARY.

Early in 1842, E. Sangston Wilkinson started the Eagle, the first newspaper printed in Platte. March 5, 1842, Allen McLane took editorial charge of the paper, and made it interesting and influential, as well as strongly Democratic in its politics.

E. S. WILKINSON until 1895 resided on a ranch near Denver, Colo. He was born in Harrisonville, Va., 1819; died 1896; was married June 21, 1837, in Indiana, to Maria Freeland, b. May 20, 1820; d. 1896; daughter of the late Judge John Freeland. After editing the Shelbyville, Indiana, Statesman two years, he came with the Freeland family to Platte; here he spent nineteen years in editing and publishing the Eagle, the Argus, the Tenth Legion, and other papers, all strongly Democratic. But when the war came on, and dangers threatened on account of his Southern sympathies, he went to Helena, Montana, where he published the Rocky Mountain Gazette, from August 11, 1866, to September 2, 1872. He afterwards published the Bozeman Times for three years. His living children:

I. ALLEN McLANE WILKINSON, b. at Platte City, November 13, 1848.

II. RALEIGH T. WILKINSON, b. at Camden Point, August 13, 1853. His ch:

1. Henry C., 2. John W. (a captain in the U. S. Army).
3. Dora.

Mr. E. S. Wilkinson was in Winston's Regiment, and at Pea Ridge, Corinth, etc. He and his wife both died in Cal. in 1896, whither they had gone for their health.

WESTON INCORPORATED.

Jan. 11—The county court incorporated Weston. Geo. Beeler, Abel Gilbert, John Thornburg, T. F. Warner, and Jerry Woods were the trustees.

ORGANIZATION OF SCHOOL TOWNSHIPS.

Jan. 12—The county court, on application, ordered notice to be given for the inhabitants of T. 52, R. 34, to meet at the house of Michael Byrd, to organize for school purposes, the 3d of March, 1842. The State law made each congressional township a corporation, to be divided into districts, for separate schools. The 16th sections were "squatted" upon, and no one dared to bid against the "squatters" for their lands. They therefore got their lands at the minimum price of $1.25 per acre. The principal of the Township School Fund is only $21,000. Had there been a fair sale, the fund would now be $200,000. Allen McLane had independence enough to condemn this fraud, in the Eagle, and when he offered for office, he found his course had lost him votes. Nearly all the townships of the county were organized in 1841 and 1842, and school-houses were built in many districts. They were of round or hewed logs, with a door on one side, and a long horizontal window on the other. Below the window a sloping board served for desks. Seats were puncheons or slabs set upon wooden poles, for legs.

FEBRUARY.

Feb. 7—Peter Simmons' will probated—John Bretz executor. Bond, $2,000.

Martha Ambrose, administratrix of Wm. Ambrose. Bond, $1,500.

Feb. 9—Park & Parsons are granted tavern license at Parkville.

Feb. 11—The county clerk is ordered to procure copies of the Official Survey of the lands of Platte County. The field-notes were furnished. They consisted of two thick square volumes, of 1,100 pages each, and are now in the possession of the county surveyor. They are invaluable, and I have made and indexed a copy for use in my business of abstractor of titles.

CROPS, MARKETS, ETC.

Abundant crops were raised in 1842, but there was no market for them. New settlers, however, had money to spend, and needed supplies. Corn sold for 10 cents per bushel, and wheat at 50 cents. Freights to St. Louis were from $1 to $2 per 100 pounds, and the tobacco and hemp shipped brought but small returns. All good lands in Platte had claimants, and emigrants pressed further north. Claims upon the best land sold for $3 to $8 per acre. Under the law of 1841, the new settlers got a preëmption right. With no market, money became scarce.

IMPROVEMENTS.

Farms were rapidly opened, and substantial and comfortable houses erected. Martin & Sons have added an upright saw to their mill; Hall Medlin has constructed a grist- and saw-mill, on Smith's Fork; and Judge M. M. Hughes and Capt. Andrew Johnson have each built a good mill on Bee Creek. Huston McFarland has a saw-mill near Weston, and the Perrys are building a large flouring-mill at Weston. The finest oak and walnut timber ever seen is offered for nothing; and $1.25 is the price of the best squared timber. Goods are selling at from 50 per cent to 150 per cent on cost.

NEW-COMERS TO PLATTE CITY.

Howell Jenkins (see), a native of Wales, settled at Platte City in 1842. A stonemason by trade, he built with his own hands the rock mansion on Lots 4 and 5, Block 28, and did all the best stone-work in town for years. From our native rock, he cut out and lettered all the tombstones for our graveyard, for twelve years. The first marble monument erected in the cemetery was at the grave of Dr. N. M. Shrock in 1855.

Robert Davis Johnston (see), a native of Kentucky, came to us, by way of Indiana, and formed a partnership with John Lewis, in a general store, on Lot 6, Block 29. He subsequently formed a partnership with Jas. H. Johnston, in the same line. The adversities of trade and the calamities of war drove him from the mercantile business. His military career is familiar to all.

DRS. SHROCK, McFALL, AND CALLAHAN.

The two first named were brothers-in-law. Dr. McFall died soon after his arrival from Kentucky, and Dr. Shrock formed a partnership with Dr. H. B. Callahan, and they were favorite physicians for years. Dr. Shrock was an enthusiastic Mason, and to him we owe the organization of Platte Lodge, No. 56. He was well informed in the mysteries of Masonry, and with diligence instructed his brethren. Dr. Callahan left us in 1857, and in the war found no rest for his feet. He resided at Leavenworth many years, honored as a physician and revered as a citizen. He died in 1896 and was buried at Platte City.

John Zeek established a tan-yard on Block 17, but found it not profitable, and left us for some better location.

Benj. R. Morton (see) worked on the court-house, and erected a carding machine on Block 28.

William C. Remington (see), a handsome and genial youth, wrote an excellent hand, and found ready employment as deputy clerk, until he arose to the office of circuit clerk.

William E. Black, after working on the bridge over the Platte, became a merchant, and then a physician. He returned to Virginia.

John Ritner located near Smithville, and, being an excellent millwright, became a partner with Jas. B. Martin in the Platte City Mills.

James Davis, a large, genial, and agreeable gentleman, and an excellent clerk, wrote in the circuit clerk's office, read law, formed a partnership with John W. Forbis, and disappeared very mysteriously; but was heard from again in one of the Northwestern States.

Archibald Woods and James M. Estill came from Kentucky with money, bought a large body of land, and built the Union Mills. They became also merchants in Weston. Their business was immense, and their creditors suffered. Estill went to California, took some large contracts, and speculated unsuccessfully.

E. S. Wilkinson removed the Eagle to Weston, but the winter caught him without paper. He went on horseback to Boonville, but got but little paper. The Eagle therefore was issued only as a handbill, until the river opened in the spring.

THE STATE LAND OFFICE.

September 4, 1841, Congress granted the Western States public lands within their borders. Five hundred thousand acres were granted to Missouri. The gift was accepted, and commissioners were appointed to select the lands. They were located chiefly in the Platte Purchase. S. L. Leonard and Dr. A. M. Robinson were commissioners. The Federal law required locations to be in bodies of not less than 320 acres. To induce the settlers to give in their lands to the State, a liberal preëmption law was passed, giving time for payment, and sanctioning sales by the settler, after the first payment. These lands appear on the official plat as "Internal Improvement Lands." About one-eighth of the county of Platte was selected as State lands. The land office was located at Savannah.

MAY. COUNTY FINANCES.

Amount received. . . . .	$2,017.12
Paid out. . . . .	1,622.07
	$395.05

The season was backward, and no ground was plowed before the 20th of April. For three weeks the ground was in good order for the plow, and corn planted before the 10th of May did well; but in May the windows of heaven were opened, and late-planted corn and hemp were failures. Hemp and wheat were covered by snow from November to April. Wheat was protected by the snow, but hemp did not rot until the spring rains; and then the weather was so wet that the hemp could not be broken out. Much of it was left in the shock and lost. Throughout the winter one snow was added to another, and by spring formed a solid covering for the earth, a foot thick. Not half the corn was gathered before the snows commenced, and vast flocks of prairie-fowl from the west damaged the standing corn.

LAND ENTRIES.

Sammel and Birch were able and accommodating officers. A specific time was fixed for the settlers of each township to prove their preëmptions. The settlers of each neighborhood went in a body, and there was no trouble to get witnesses to prove residence. A prescribed oath was taken, a neighbor was called to prove settlement, the money was paid in gold, silver, or Missouri bank-notes, and a certificate given that made the preëmptioner a freeholder. There were but few controversies, and these generally were settled to the satisfaction of both parties. There was not an appeal from Platte County. It required $320,000 to enter the lands of Platte, or $2,000,000 for the Platte Country. Until the Mexican War brought relief, I witnessed a state of awful pecuniary distress. Some of the settlers had money laid by to enter lands; but a greater number had to sacrifice their personal property to save their lands. Property had three prices: 1st, trade or exchange price; 2d, currency price; and 3d, land-office money price. The unfavorable seasons of 1843 and 1844 added to the distress. In 1843 the county assessment of slaves and personal property, including notes and money, was only $412,000. Land was not assessed.

JUNE.

The Oregon emigrants, having gathered at Westport, organized by choosing Peter H. Burnett as captain, J. W. Nesmith orderly sergeant, and 9 councilmen.

PETER H. BURNETT.

We will hear no more of Peter H. Burnett in the history of Platte; and I cannot dismiss so honored a friend without a tribute to his merits. The whole family possessed talent, and a religious sentiment made them enthusiasts in every good cause. The enterprise, hardihood, intelligence, and devotion of Peter H. Burnett have blessed and benefited four States of our Union. He was our first prosecuting attorney, and discharged the duties of his office with marked success. He led the first overland expedition to Oregon, amid untold dangers, privations, and suffering; passed to California over a trackless wilderness, became the first governor of the newly acquired territory, and surrendered his office with clean hands and an unclouded name. He published "A Lawyer's Reasons for Joining the Catholic Church" in a neat volume; and in another volume, "An Old Pioneer," he has given sketches of his eventful life. His style is plain and simple, and his adventures are replete with interest. He died in San Francisco May 18, 1895. I will give his genealogy:

THE JARVIS MURDER.

This spring, a gang of desperadoes, chiefly from Clay County, went west on the Santa Fé Trail, and met the train of Jarvis, a Mexican, coming with money to buy goods at Independence. After killing Jarvis, they robbed the train of a large amount of money and everything valuable. The perpetrators of this crime bragged of their success, and it was found that other men of good standing had furnished the outfit, and had shared in the booty. Brown, a saloon-keeper at Hell-Town (Ridgely), and McDaniel, a son of a worthy farmer of Clay, were apprehended, tried in a Federal court, convicted, and hung. Quite a number implicated suddenly disappeared.

THE OVERFLOW.

For several weeks, this month, the Missouri and Platte rivers spread from bluff to bluff, driving out to the hills families and their stock. The site of the town of Tracy was covered. This is the only flood ever known to cover the highest grounds in the Missouri bottoms. The overflows of 1858 and 1881 left some ground above the water. The Indians have no tradition of its equal. The great rise of 1826 was 4 feet lower. That of 1858 was 3 feet lower. The Platte kept pace with the Missouri in every great rise. I had marks in the old mill at Platte City, of the overflows of 1844, 1858, and 1881. The waters in 1844 were 20 inches higher than 1858, and the waters in 1858 have never since been reached by 2 feet. The Mississippi River attained its greatest elevation at St. Louis, June 24th. It was then 7 feet 7 inches above the city directrix. The overflow of 1844 is an era in our history. Sickness, especially chills and fevers, followed the overflow, and the mortality was fearful. The people were discouraged. Their fields were overgrown with weeds, the furrows were running with water, the land sales had exhausted their money, and to the failure of their crops, sickness is added. With fainting hearts, they stood upon the bluffs and cast tearful eyes upon the dismal and ruinous waters.

June 14—The floods are at their height.

June 25—Geo. B. Sanderson buys a large body of land between Weston and Platte City.

Continued high water in the Platte tempted several steamers to ascend the river to Platte City. Among these steamers were the Col. Woods, the Anawan, and the Lexington. A small steamer subsequently sank in the woods below the Falls and a man named Hutchinson lost all he had on her. The visit of these steamboats excited the visionary people, and, for some years, it was thought Platte City was destined to become an important seaport. Ground for a wharf was reserved, an act was passed to lock and dam the stream, and a company was formed which bought the steamer Haidee, and with Anderson Martin as captain, Jas. S. Thomas as clerk, and John Bane as mate, ran the Missouri for a few years, but never ventured into the Platte.

ITS CONTENTS.

The first two columns are from the Missourian and the Courier, deploring the rejection, by the State Senate, of the appointment of Allen McLane as register of the State land office at Savannah. Mr. McLane is extolled, and his qualifications commended; but ah! he was a Benton man.

The 8th Senatorial District, composed of Clay, Ray, and Platte, has 14,421 free white males—more than any other district in the State, except St. Louis. The districting bill was passed by the last Legislature.

The controversy with England over the northwest boundary is the chief topic of discussion. The war-cry is "54° 40' or fight!" The message of President Tyler, declining to make public the correspondence with the British minister, is printed.

G. P. Post, of Weston, at the last election of officers of the Lexington Branch of the Bank of Missouri, was chosen a director.

Many are starting to Oregon. H. D. Martin is president of the Emigration Company.

A Democratic meeting at the court-house is called for the 14th of April, signed by 150 names, to express condemnation for McLane's rejection as register.

A list of 140 letters is published, as remaining in the post-office at Platte City, by J. H. Johnston, postmaster. At that day every letter in the office at the end of the quarter was published. The Legislature repealed the barbarous "forthwith law," by which a poor debtor was apprehended and security for the debt demanded. If not given forthwith, the justice rendered judgment. Nothing but one's clothing was exempt from execution. Constable sales were almost daily. The "forthwith law" was a disgrace to our civilization.

INVESTIGATING SCHOOL FUNDS.

A grand jury having reported a deficiency in the Township School Funds, of more than a thousand dollars, the county court appointed a committee, consisting of W. B. Almond, James Davis, and W. M. Paxton, to investigate the matter. The committee discovered that the county court had attempted to cancel sales of the 16th sections, and had returned to purchasers the money paid. Upon the report of the committee, these purchasers were required to restore the money. Patents had been issued for the land, and yet no payment had been made or secured. All was satisfactorily adjusted.

HEMP CROP.

Dec. 22—A private letter of this date, speaking in relation to the hemp crop of Platte, says: "The farmers of Platte County put in less hemp than usual last spring (1846), but the fiber is better and heavier, and will equal last year's (1845). Lafayette County produces the most hemp—perhaps 1,500 tons. Platte and Jackson come next, producing, each, 1,000 tons; and Clay 900 tons. Hemp has sold here as low as $1.50 per 112 pounds, and none, since spring, at over $2. The farmers of Missouri seldom stack hemp. They suffer it to receive enough rain, after cutting, to color it. It is then taken up and shocked, without binding. About the middle of October it is spread out to rot. Our winters are so dry that the hemp must receive several rains before it is shocked. I have frequently seen hemp taken up in the spring not half rotted."

Dec. 24—Isaac Dean, administrator of Francis Dean. Bond, $2,000. Francis Dean and Patsy Swearngen were married February 15, 1844.

Green T. Martin sells to Jas. B. Martin his half of the Platte City Water Mills.

Dec. 25—Battle of Brazito, New Mexico.

REVIEW OF THE PAST YEAR.

The year of 1846 was the transition period from financial distress to financial prosperity. From this time until 1860, the county advanced rapidly to wealth. Every article of produce rose in price: hemp, from $2 to $4; hogs from $1 to $3. I sold, myself, potatoes at 6, and butter at 5 cents. Constables were busy collecting money on executions. I saw many poor families robbed of beds and household furniture. There was no exemption law worthy of the name. The situation of the poor called for pity.

But the Mexican War made a change. Produce, as well as land, went up in price; and every hand found employment. To carry on the war, a foreign loan was made, and German gold took the place of silver and depreciated paper. The low tariff that prevailed had carried to foreign lands the little American gold in circulation. The balance of trade was against us. Horses, mules, oxen, wagons, forage, and provisions were demanded at Fort Leavenworth for the Army of the West. The discovery of gold in California added to our prosperity. Every article of produce was wanted by the overland emigrants; and when the Civil War commenced, we were in affluence.

For years Mexican silver and American half-dollars were the chief circulation. From 1845 to 1849 I was buying hemp for the Louisville Manufacturing Company and dealt chiefly in silver half-dollars. In 1847 German gold was abundant. For several years I purchased one-third of the crop, and paid for it chiefly in subsidiary silver. Bank notes were at a discount. Merchants often sent silver to St. Louis by steamboats. There were no banks then, and there were no robbers. I made hundreds of horseback trips, from Parkville, Platte City, and Weston, with saddle-bags weighted with silver. The foreign gold soon disappeared.

The building of the Hannibal & St. Joe Railroad is now agitated.

Mr. Flannery's life was the visit of a prince to his garden: He plucked the flowers, inhaled their fragrance, cast them to the ground, and left to return no more.

I knew and admired both his wives. I paid to each, at her death, a poetic tribute, from which I select a stanza:

TO MRS. MARY L. FLANNERY.

The loveliest flowers are culled to grace
 The halls where royal feasts are spread;
 And so the purest of our race
 Adorn the banquet of the dead.
 No vestal had a purer heart—
 No seraph had a sweeter voice.
 Her sympathy could joy impart,
 And make despairing souls rejoice.

TO MRS. ISSIE D. FLANNERY.

The earth is fresh upon thy grave;
 No evergreens above it wave;
 For only yesterday we gave Thy body to the sod.
 A few years since, a lovely bride,
 You came in health and youthful pride,
 And chose the Savior for your guide,
 And in His footsteps trod.

Two brothers, Wilson and Abel Owen, were reared in North Carolina. Their ancestor came from Wales. Only one of Wilson Owen's children interests us—Stacy Owen, who married L. C. (Cub) Jack. She d. Feb. 3, 1896, in Grant City, Mo., and will be noticed with her husband. But three of Abel Owen's sons were distinguished in the annals of Platte;

- I. JONES HARVEY OWEN, was appointed by Gov. Boggs, early in 1839, the first sheriff of Platte, and was subsequently elected to the same office. He possessed vigor, both of body and mind, and made an excellent officer. He went to Santa Fé with Gen. Doniphan, and distinguished himself as a soldier. After the Mexican War, he went to California, where he d. May 8, 1858, aged 55. He never married.
- II. JOHN RILEY OWEN'S death has just been noticed. He was deputy sheriff under his brother Jones H., and was a merry, carousing young man; but sobered down after marrying the lovely Josephine Martin, dr. of Zadock Martin, the pioneer. She died a year after marriage, leaving an infant, Susanna Owen, who died just as she was verging on womanhood. Mr. Owen then entered the Army of the West, and was killed as stated.
- III. MOSEBY NEELY OWEN, son of Abel Owen and Eliz. Gooch, was b. in North Carolina Oct. 11, 1802; d. in Platte City July 4, 1860; m'd April 1, 1831, in Lexington, Mo., Eveline Jack, dr. of Capt. William Jack. She was b. Jan. 4, 1810; d. in Jacksonville, Oregon, Dec. 14, 1869. Mr. Owen was a Whig, but was twice chosen sheriff of Platte. His agreeable manners and just deportment, his generous nature and boundless hospitality inspired love and confidence and made him exceedingly popular. He purchased Dr. Callahan's interest in the Platte City Water Mills, and, for years we were partners. The following verse from a poem I wrote at his grave expresses my esteem:

An honest man lies 'neath this sod—
 My genial friend and elder brother.
 We knelt together serving God;
 With mingling souls we loved each other.
 His generous heart and open hand
 In hospitality abounded;
 His hand was true, his words were bland,
 And faithful friends his board surrounded.

REVIEW OF THE YEAR 1847.

Heaven was propitious, and crops were good. The hemp crop reached 1,500 tons; at $100 per ton, this brought $150,000 into the county. But chills and fevers were almost universal. I, myself, suffered with them for three months. Lands were in demand at $8 and $10 per acre. The war brought gold into circulation. The paper of only specie-paying banks was received. Owen & Estill put up a $10,000 packing-house and bought 8,000 hogs. Perrys & Young erected a spacious steam flouring mill. Freight to St. Louis is 37 cents. The rushes in the Missouri bottoms are exhausted and herders are now driving to the islands, above, in the river.

James C. Cochran came in 1847, and settled in Preston Township, and has prospered by farming. He is a son of Jonathan Cochran, and was b. in West Virginia Oct. 15, 1820. He m'd Mary Ann Payne, of Fleming Co., Ky. Ch:

Valliant, b. in Talbot Co., Md., April 12, 1835; came west, enlisted in the Confederate army, and served four years; went to Clarksville, Tenn.; was ordained an Episcopal minister in 1878, by Bishop Quintard; the same year commenced preaching at Weston, and in a short time came to Platte City to take charge of the business department of the Landmark. In a short time he became proprietor and editor. He was a true friend of the South, and an ardent Democrat. He was a good writer of sketches, proficient in rhetoric, but deficient in logic. Under his management the Landmark became an influential paper. His Christian spirit, kindness of heart, and his suavity of manner made him a general favorite. Though I repeatedly offered to pay for the paper, he would accept nothing. With so unselfish a spirit, he was always in pecuniary straits. Of course he was loved and trusted. In December, 1888, he determined to devote his life fully to the ministry, and the Landmark was sold to J. B. Mundy. But an insidious disease had already attacked his frame, and Feb. 6, 1890, he was called to a glorious reward. He was an ardent Mason, and found delight in the duties of that fraternity. Ch: [a] Louise Valliant, b. Aug. 10, 1868; d. Aug. 5, 1890. He went to Atchison Co., Kansas, prior to the war, and was elected sheriff of the county, member of a Constitutional Convention, and of the Legislature. But he was not allowed, for political reasons, to take his seat in the House. Returning to Platte, he served as deputy sheriff, under Bryant, and was three times elected representative; he died in office.

Mr. Adkins was one of my intimate friends, and in the embroglio of Ring and Sorehead, we stood shoulder to shoulder, in support of the latter. A stanza from one of the poems I published in his memory expresses my appreciation of his character:

A bold and magnanimous knight,
 He knew neither fear nor reproach;
 On innocence, virtue, and right
 He suffered no man to encroach.
 Impetuous, firm, and severe,
 Discouragement quickened his zeal;
 And prudent, when dangers were near,
 His nerves were as rigid as steel.

Feb. 3—The discovery of gold in California creates intense excitement. Wm. B. The volume in which their proceedings were recorded has lately come to light. It is now a record of the San Francisco Court of First Instance, and was used as a minute book in the court over which Gen. Almond presided, from October 17, 1849, to May 6, 1850. The book shows the company was organized February 3, 1849. The last entry is July 29, 1849, when the company reached Fort Sutter, and dissolved, with a vote of thanks to Capt. The family removed to Howard Co., Mo., and thence to Randolph Co. Here Joseph, the father, died in 1826. His widow came to Platte, and died in 1853. In 1842 the three brothers came to Platte. Felix G. went into the mercantile business in Weston, and Fielding and Clinton settled three miles west of Platte City, on a splendid body of land. Ch:

I. FIELDING COCKRILL,

Born in Fayette Co., Ky., April 10, 1804; d. in Platte Jan. 28, 1852; m'd Sept. 3, 1834, Martha A. Chapman, b. April 6, 1806; d. Sept. 4, 1859. She was a dr. of Edmund Chapman, b. Jan. 3, 1764. Mr. Cockrill was tall and imposing in person, formal in address, deliberate in speech, and sound in judgment. After engaging successfully in various enterprises in Randolph County, Mr. Cockrill came to Platte, and selected, three miles west of Platte, a fertile and beautiful farm, and was accumulating wealth, when death called him away. Ch:

I. EDMUND CHAPMAN COCKRILL, b. in Randolph Co. Feb. 4, 1840; d. at Kansas City Nov. 11, 1892, and buried at Platte City; m'd Feb. 3, 1863, Lucretia McCluer, b. Nov. 24, 1840; living in Platte City. She was a dr. of Maj. John H. McCluer and Ann McGrew; and a most lovely woman. Mr. Cockrill was a gentleman of education, business qualifications, and urbane address. He held the offices, successively, of treasurer and collector of Platte County. He was a zealous member of the Christian Church in Platte City, an elder of the church, and a superintendent of the Sabbath-school. He removed to Kansas City a few years before his death. His generous heart and liberal hand caused him to live beyond his income, and he left little more than a good name to his widow and children.

He was a man of engaging address, gentle manners, and much beloved for his amiable disposition. He received a finished education at Bethany College, Va., and, from 1872 until his death, he was the senior member of the banking firm of Cockrill & Co., at Platte City. We were friends, and met daily in our respective duties; and when cut off by death, I paid him a poetic tribute, from which I copy a stanza:

We grieve not if the fruit-tree die,
Before it blooms, or after bearing;
But o'er its lovely flowers we sigh.
If rudely crushed by hand unsparing.
Farewell! the flower so harshly crushed
In heaven is now in beauty blooming:
Farewell! the lamp that feebly flushed
Is now the throne of God illuming.

His children:

Mr. Cockrill learned the hatter's business, but never engaged in it. He also tried merchandising with success, in Randolph Co., Mo. In 1842 he came to Platte, with his brothers, and settled three miles west of Platte City. He purchased a large tract of land, which he distributed among his children. He is the largest capitalist in the county, and is still wealthy, though he has advanced his children largely. He loans money on real estate, makes his office in the Exchange Bank, and, though hard of hearing and of defective sight, manages his large estate with judgment and success. His insight into character is remarkable, and his judgment is so profound that he is seldom deceived. The aged couple celebrated their golden wedding in 1886, and on every birthday of the father the whole family gather around their parents. Mrs. Cockrill yet seems a young woman. Mr. Cockrill depends upon his own judgment in all his dealings. He never formed a partnership, and has but seldom had a lawsuit. Ch:

SENATOR BENTON.

June 18—Senator Benton spoke at Platte City, in support of his appeal to the people from the Jackson resolutions, passed March 10, 1849, intended to instruct Benton out of the Senate. In his circuit of the State, Benton appeared at Platte City. A stand had been erected, where Koster's Addition was subsequently laid off. The town was full of people opposed to Benton. At the stand there were only two or three hundred. Representative Wilkerson, who had voted for the resolutions, took a prominent place, immediately in front of the speaker. I was reclining on the grass, in the rear, conversing with Col. J. W. Reid, who had just returned from the Mexican War. Suddenly, Benton's voice rose to its highest pitch, and Col. Reid instantly sprang to his feet, and dashed to the stand. I followed, and found him standing at Benton's side, with two revolvers in hand, and two more at his sides. Wilkerson having pronounced some statement of Benton's "a lie," the latter was pouring bitter denunciation on the treasonable Legislature, and pointing the finger of scorn and the voice of imprecation upon the pale and crouching form of Wilkerson. Benton was severe in his denunciation of Judge Birch, and brought charges for which a suit of slander was instituted, but which never came to trial.

CHOLERA.

The first visit of cholera to Platte City was this summer. A stranger got out of the stage, and commenced screaming and cramping, at the post-office. A hasty consultation was held, and Judge Norton, N. H. Hope and W. M. Paxton determined to lead him to a vacant house, standing on the lot occupied by the present jail. But the man fell on Main Street, with cramp, and screamed so as to alarm the town. We gave him the best of care, but, in thirty-six hours, he died. The breath had hardly ceased before a trembling gang, who had given no help in the man's lifetime, hurried him off in a box, by night, to an improvised grave. His name was never learned. Fear settled on the whole county. The disease was fatal among emigrants on the plains. Several strangers and some citizens died at Weston.

FEBRUARY.

Feb. 17—Joseph Todd (i) died at his home four miles west of Platte City.

THE TODD FAMILY.

Early in the eighteenth century, Thomas Todd and his wife, Elizabeth, came from England, and settled in central Pennsylvania. They removed thence to North Carolina. They had other children, but we are interested in only two:

I. JEMIMA TODD

Was the younger of the two. She was b. in Pennsylvania Jan. 19, 1759, and d. in Platte April 30, 1850; m'd in North Carolina March 17, 1778, John Wagle, b. in North Carolina Oct. 9, 1751. He was a son of John and Mary Wagle. John and Jemima were progenitors of the Platte County family of that name, and will be noticed.

II. JOSEPH TODD (i)

Was b. in Pennsylvania about 1748. He m'd Ann Crose, a German lady, and, after residing a time in Rowan Co., N. C., removed to Hardin Co., Ky., and thence to Madison Co., Ky. In 1817 he pressed forward to Howard Co., Mo. Here most of his children remained. We will name his 13 children, reserving full notices for those who came to Platte:

I. THOMAS TODD, lived and died in Howard.

II. ISAAH TODD, went to St. Louis Co.

III. ELISHA, lived in Clay.

IV. DAVIS, lived in Howard.

V. JONATHAN, was killed by Indians.

VI. LEVI, lived in Howard.

VII. JESSE, lived in Clay.

VIII. JOSEPH, came to Platte.

IX. NANCY TODD, m'd Murphy, and went to St. Louis Co.

X. SUSAN, m'd McCrea, and went to Illinois.

XI. BETSY, m'd Burnan, and lived in Howard.

XII. PHOEBE, m'd John Wagle, perhaps a cousin.

XIII. MAJ. WILLIAM TODD, came to Platte.

Joseph and William were the only sons that came to Platte. We will therefore notice them only:

I. JOSEPH TODD (i).

He was b. in Rowan Co., N. C., Nov. 4, 1777; d. in Platte Feb. 17, 1851; m'd in Madison Co., Ky., Cynthia Williams, dr. of Jarret Williams, of Jefferson Co., Ky. She d. in Platte June 27, 1870, aged 89. The marriage took place about 1803. In 1817 the family came in wagons to the Boonslick Country of Missouri, and formed a large settlement in the new lands. In the spring of 1823 the pioneers pressed forward to Clay, the utmost verge of civilization. Mr. Todd's homestead was one mile east of the site of Barry. Here he was known as an expert hunter, and an unerring rifleman. Attracted by the lovely prairies and the noble forests of our present home, frequent excursions were made into the territory. Mr. Todd and his sons, with Robert Cain, established a sugar camp at the mouth of the creek still known as Todd's Creek. Long before our lands were open for settlement, the patriarch and his sons had chosen valuable claims in the neighborhood known as "Hackberry," which is remarkable for fertility. It lay three miles west of the Falls of Platte, and on the Military Road from Ft. Leavenworth to Liberty. I often met the tall and stately old gentleman. He was upwards of six feet high, and weighed over 200 pounds. He had spent his life on the western border, and was a typical backwoodsman. He was buried in the sacred graveyard of the Todds, where several generations of his descendants already lie. Children:

I. ROBERT TODD, was b. in Madison Co., Ky., Oct. 28, 1804; d. Aug. 23, 1843; m'd Aug. 13, 1826, Ann Mullins, who d. in 1852. His grave was the first in the Todd cemetery. Ch:

1. Susan E. Todd, b. Feb. 24, 1828; d. April 12, 1870; m'd 1st, Dr. Chas. R. Drake, who d. childless. She m'd 2d, Dr. Jos. M. Holt. (See.)

2. Joseph Todd (iv). 3. Robert Todd (ii).

4. Annie T. Todd, b. Sept. 26, 1837; d. Jan. 17, 1878. She m'd 1st, Dr. J. P. Earickson, who d. childless. She m'd 2d, Sept. 28, 1866, Hon. Joseph E. Merryman (see) (his third wife). Mrs. Merryman possessed beauty, vivacity, grace, and amiability. I was a law partner of Mr. Merryman for ten years. He was one of the most successful practitioners I ever met. She left: [a] Joseph Merryman; [b] Robert; [c] Todd Merryman.

5. James Todd. 6. Benton Todd, d. in the Southern army.

In her maidenhood she was chosen Queen of Love and Beauty, by a vote of all the ladies attending the first great tournament held at the fair grounds. Maj. McCluer is a handsome and well-educated gentleman. At one time editor, and for many years a contributor to the Landmark, his literary talent is established. For many years he has devoted his attention to fire insurance, and in this department he has few equals. Though his business calls him to all parts of the West, his family and home are now at Platte City. Ch: [a] Edna McCluer, b. May 1, 1868; m'd Dec. 25, 1887, Hugh C. Gilbert. Ch: [1] Frances; [2] Sylvester Gilbert. [b] Beaumont McCluer, b. July 16, 1870; [c] Jas. L. (ii), b. Aug. 23, 1872; [d] Bennett W., b. June 18, 1876; [e] John D., b. Mr. Todd has already been noticed as a pioneer; but he deserves further honor for his generous heart and liberal hand. When, in 1858, the raging Platte overflowed and destroyed for us, at the Platte City Water Mills, many thousand bushels of grain, which had been deposited by farmers, he was the only one who offered to sustain the loss of his wheat. But I knew that, by law, we were to suffer the loss, because we had mixed his wheat with other lots; and we declined his generous offer. Whenever he left home, he filled his saddle-bags with the choicest fruits, for his friends. He lies beside his father in the family burying-ground. His widow m'd John Ellet. (See.) Children:

1. Joseph Todd (v), b. Feb. 2, 1840; m'd Jan. 8, 1868, Jose Madding, b. Aug. 23, 1851. He is a highly respected gentleman, and lives among his kindred, near the old homestead. IV. JOHN W. TODD, b. Feb. 20, 1810, in Harden Co., Ky.; d. Dec. 29, 1894, in Colorado; m'd June 23, 1836, Nancy Chance, b. June 3, 1817, dr. of Allen. She d. in 1859, and Mr. Todd lived single thereafter. He was a soldier in four wars: the Black Hawk, the Mormon, the Mexican, and the Civil War. He was with Gen. Price in 1961. From his own lips I took the following statement of his pioneer experience: "I was 12 years old when my parents settled in Clay. We took a farm a half-mile east of Barry. When we left, my father sold to Wm. Thompson. Among our neighbors were Robert Cain, Wm. Woods, Wm. Brown, Jos. Gash, Geo. Burnett (father of Peter H.), and John Wilson. In 1827 Fort Leavenworth was located. I was on the hill when the soldiers were in tents. Col. Leavenworth was in command. The Third Infantry first came, and then the Sixth. There were no buildings of any kind. At first corn was taken from Clay County to the Fort. The next year a detail of soldiers cut out a road to Barry, by way of the Falls of Platte, where the river was conveniently fordable. The citizens of Clay helped on the east end of the road. The Platte was forded on the rapids, between the upper and lower falls. The stream was then much larger than it now is. The water descended the inclined plane of the falls in an unbroken sheet with a mournful murmur. It was found necessary to have ferries upon the two rivers, and Zaddock Martin was employed to keep them. An old Mackinaw boat had been used at the Fort. Martin built a flat ferryboat for the Platte. In 1830 I was employed to assist him, and continued three years in his service. Though harsh and overbearing, Martin was humane and just in his dealings. He was large and muscular, and at that time about 50 years of age. His children were: 1, Green T. Martin; 2, Harden D.; 3, William J.; 4, Gill E.; 5, James B.; 6, Milly; 7, Elizabeth; 8, Jane; 9, Josephine. Where Tracy now stands he had a 30-acre field. Another field was in Sand Prairie, opposite the Fort. In 1830 he had a contract to furnish the Fort with beef. He bought his cattle in Clay and Ray. When, in 1836, the Pottawatomies were preparing to leave, I was employed by Wm. Gordon, their agent, to go with him and 25 of the Indians to select a reservation for them. We traveled up the Missouri, on horseback, with packed mules, as far as Council Bluffs. Thence we passed through Iowa to Rock Island, and through Illinois to Chicago. Here I was paid my wages, and returned by stage to St. Louis, and by steamer to Clay. The Pottawatomies chose land in Iowa, east of the Missouri. The Indians left in 1837, just as the flood of white population poured upon the rich and virgin soil of Platte." Ch:

II. MAJ. WILLIAM TODD (i) AND FAMILY.

He was a soldier of the War of 1812, under Gen. Andrew Jackson, and acquired his title in the Southern campaign. He was born in Rowan Co., N. C., came with his parents to Kentucky, thence to Missouri in 1817, and to Clay in 1823. In 1837, with the flood of settlers, he came to the Todd settlement, three miles west of Platte City. His first care was to set out a large and well-selected orchard. He originated the splendid White Pearmain, or the Todd apple, and in honor of his faith he called it the Campbellite, which for a generation, was the finest apple grown in the West. It has now run out. Mr. Todd was genial and companionable. He often came to town with his pockets filled with choice apples. He would dwell upon the excellencies of the Campbellite, and then would hand you for contrast, a knotty and sour apple, which, with a scowl, he called the Methodist. Maj. Todd was born about 1782, and died in April, 1861. He married Lucy D. Fugate, who survived him. Ch:

I. MARION TODD, born in a tent, in Clay Co., Mo., Aug. 10, 1823; d. Oct. 3, 1893; m'd March 22, 1849, Mary Sutton, dr. of Demetrins A. (See.)

Tim, as his name intimates, was a genial, hearty, and good-humored Irishman; and, as his nationality implies, a splendid stonemason. He was a master workman on the first court-house and the abutments and pier of the Platte River bridge. But, as Tim's pedigree necessitates, he was a Roman Catholic, while his father-in-law was a Campbellite. These extremes could not dwell together at peace, and a feud was the natural consequence.

III. MARY J. TODD, m'd Tim Gley.

IV. FANNIE M. TODD, m'd March 19, 1848, Albert Kutchenthal, b. in 1818; d. Feb. 21, 1872.

PLATTE LODGE, No. 56, A. F. &amp; A. M.

This lodge was incorporated by the Legislature, with N. M. Shrock, W. M.; W. E. Black, S. W.; and John E. Pitt, J. W. The lodge had been incorporated or chartered by the Grand Lodge as early as 1846, and this legislative charter was to enable the lodge to hold the real estate it acquired the following year, when the Presbyterian Church and the lodge built a meeting-house and hall.

The meetings of the lodge were held each Saturday night before full moon, in the upper story of Johnston & Lewis' store, on Lot 6, Block 29, in Platte City, until about 1853, when the new hall was built over the Presbyterian church, on Lot 6, Block 31. The lodge became very prosperous, but was in debt. This was more onerous from a division made by the members from Todd's Creek taking dimits, and forming a new lodge, chartered as Zerubbabel Lodge, No. 191. The colony consisted of the Darnalls, Brasfields, Swaneys, Moores, and De Berrys. But the war came on; the brethren were scattered; and, July 14, 1864, the hall of Platte Lodge, No. 56, with all its records, was burned, and little left but the debt. A few of us determined this should be paid, and we brought about a reunion. The charter of Platte Lodge, No. 56, was surrendered, and the colony took in the members of the mother lodge, under the name of Zerubbabel Lodge, No. 191. This name may still be read on the tablet on the front wall of Platte City Lodge, No. 504. After the reunion, we worked in the upper room of the brick warehouse, in the rear of the Virginia Hotel. We applied to other lodges for help to rebuild, and about $100 was contributed. After working for twenty years under the charter to Zerubbabel Lodge, it, too, was surrendered, and Platte City Lodge, No. 504, was chartered.

Lots 11 and 12, Block 30, in Platte City, were purchased and a brick two-story school-house, 35x50 feet, erected, and seated. Archibald Patterson, a scholar and a learned Mason, was the first teacher; Prof. Wm. Dickey was the next, and Prof. Gaylord the last. The house was burned, July 14, 1864, by Federal orders.

THE BURNES LINEAGE.

I. The first of the family of which there is reliable record was Campbell Burness (sic), sometimes written "Burnhies." He was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, about 1718. His connection with the political troubles of 1745 brought about the confiscation of his property, and he fled to the mountains of Batlock, in Kincardineshire, where he died, disappointed and disheartened. He was buried in the churchyard of Lochlea, near Alloway Mill, on the Doon. His children were left without means, a charge upon his younger brother, William Burness, whose wealth consisted chiefly of a noble and motherly wife, whose maiden name was Agnes Brown.

II. Among the children thus left was Peter Burness. He was born in Kincardineshire in 1752. Without education or fortune, Peter came to America in 1771, and settled at, or near, Norfolk, Va., where, in 1777, he married Charlotte Hayden, and in his marriage record for the first time the name is written Burnes. He removed to Spottsylvania Co., Va., where

III. James Burnes was born February 14, 1779, and Dan'l Burnes November 17, 1781. Their mother died February 8, 1782, and in 1790 Peter Burnes married a second time; but his wife was of violent temper, and so disagreeable to her step-sons that they went to Chillicothe, Ohio, in 1803. But James Burnes returned to Virginia, and married December 29, 1805, Mary Thompson. Of this marriage were born seven sons and three daughters: 1, Nelson; 2, Lewis; 3, Fielding; 4, Daniel D.; 5, Milton; 6, James N.; 7, Calvin F.; 8, Mary; 9, Charlotte; 10, Susan Burnes. Of these, Milton, Mary, and Charlotte died in infancy.

In 1824 Mr. James Burnes removed to Morgantown, Ind., and subsequently to Vermilion County, in the same State. He became a merchant, and laid off the town of Springfield. The father possessed sound judgment, with energy and independence. In 1836 Lewis Burnes, on horseback, visited the Platte country, and brought back such a favorable report that in 1837 the whole family came west. Lewis and his family settled in the Missouri bottom, near Farley. Fielding and his father located a mile or two north of Camden Point, opened a store, and called it Buena Vista. After a few years, Lewis and Daniel D. engaged in the mercantile business at Weston. The policy of the father was to unite his sons in business, that they might be of mutual help. Thus the power and influence of the family was augmented, and, in politics and business, they became the most influential family in northwest Missouri. Their united powers gave them wealth and honor.

Oct. 28, 1860, graduated at the State University at Columbia; studied law, and was admitted to the bar; m'd Jan. 6, 1892, Evelina Boone, of Fayette, Mo., a lady of intelligence, beauty, and various graces. Mr. Burnes resides at Platte City, and has one of the most valuable law libraries in the West. His practice is large, and he is fast rising to distinction. He served two terms as county attorney, and was chosen, one term, president of the Agricultural M. & S. Co. of the county. 1 child: [<sup>a</sup>] Boone C. Burnes, b. Feb. 12, 1894; d. Jan. 4, 1896.

4. Cammilla S. Burnes, b. March 29, 1873; m'd April 21, 1892, Dr. Spence Redman, who graduated at Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, April 2, 1883. She is a lovely lady, and Dr. Spence Redman is highly regarded by his professional brethren. 1 child: [<sup>a</sup>] Marguerette.

5. Buena Vista Burnes, b. April 9, 1876; m'd Feb. 21, 1893, R. Harry Hunter. 1 child: [<sup>a</sup>] Fielding B. Hunter.

Col. F. Burnes m'd 3d, July 23, 1892, Miss Gertrude L. Bangs, of Washington City, from whom he has been divorced.

Mr. Burnes was a large farmer, and still owns Buena Vista, a body of 400 acres of choice land. He rents his land, and resides at his home in Platte City. His children are all married. He was, in 1837, elected colonel of the 77th Regiment of Missouri Militia. For the Mexican War he raised a part of a regiment of volunteers, but peace interfered with his plans. He engaged in mercantile ventures at Parkville, Hampton, Weston, and Platte City, successively. He was receiver at the State land office at Savannah; held a Federal office at Washington, D. C.; tried the insurance business, at Leavenworth; and by his versatility of talent found many vocations.

- IV. DANIEL DEARBORN BURNES, b. in Indiana August 11, 1822; d. in Platte Co., Mo., April 13, 1867; m'd May 14, 1851, Virginia Winn, dr. of Geo. and Emily; Mrs. Burnes d. April 22, 1866. She was a lady of grace and beauty, and by her charms won general favor. Mr. Burnes was a gentleman of captivating address, and by his urbanity won the confidence and esteem of the people. He had more suavity of manner than any of his brothers. He represented the county in the Legislature, and was elected to the State senate, but was "counted out." His death, just as he was entering upon a new political career, was much lamented. Children:

1. Mary Burnes, m'd Col. Milton Moore, of Kansas City. 3 children.
2. Emma Burnes, m'd Theo. Winningham, of Chicago.
3. Kate Burnes, m'd June 8, 1887, Elias S. Gatch. She was called "The Fairie of Ayr-Lawn."
4. Virginia Burnes. 5. Jas. N., Jr. 6. Lewis C. Burnes.

Mr. Burnes and his brother, James N. Burnes, made a covenant that the survivor should take the estate of the deceased, and adopt his children. This agreement was consummated by Col. Jas. N. Burnes, and the children of Daniel D. inherited their shares in the estate of James N. That estate is now a corporation, and is called "The Burnes Estate."

V. COL. JAMES N. BURNES, b. in Morgan Co., Ind., July 15, 1827; d. at Washington, D. C., Jan. 24, 1889; m'd July 15, 1847, Mary A. Skinner, b. Oct. 2, 1828 in Kentucky; living at St. Joseph. Mr. Burnes was ten years of age when the Burnes family settled in Platte. After receiving the best education attainable in the West, he entered Harvard College, and graduated with credit in 1852. He was admitted to the bar Dec. 6, 1853. He opened a law office in Weston, and, with his partner, H. J. Wolf, did an extensive business throughout upper Missouri and eastern Kansas. He became interested in every scheme or enterprise for the improvement of society and the welfare of the people. February 1, 1867, he was appointed judge of the Weston Court of Common Pleas, which office he resigned in 1872, to remove to St. Joseph. To his energy, chiefly, we owe the Weston & Atchison R. R., the Chicago & S. W. Ry., and the Leavenworth and the Atchison bridges. With his brother, Calvin F. Burnes, he started the National Bank of St. Joseph and the waterworks of that city. His financial power and integrity were seen and acknowledged by all, in 1877, when his name was found on the bond of State Treasurer Gates, and the deposits of that officer, amounting to over a million dollars, were in the Mastin Bank, at Kansas City, and the Bank of Missouri, at St. Louis, and both were broken. While the other sureties despaired, or covered their property from execution, he was firm and true; took the assets of the defunct institutions, closed them out, and paid every dollar due the State. It is said that in these operations he cleared $100,000. His character as a financier was established, and political honors were thrust upon him. In 1882 he was elected to Congress, as a Democrat, and reelected a second and a third time, from this district. He took a high position in Congress as a statesman and orator. He had already at tained the name and character of the best debater from the West, when he was suddenly cut down by death, even in his very seat in the House. His speeches in Congress, with a handsome portrait and a short sketch of his life, written by De Knight, his private secretary, have been published in an octavo volume of 480 pages. His name is revered as a public benefactor, a profound statesman, and a successful financier.

Mrs. Burnes is a daughter of Phineas Skinner, an early merchant, farmer, and trader, of Platte. She still lives in the Burnes mansion near St. Joseph. She is a woman of intelligence, and is honored for her virtues. Besides the adopted children of Daniel D. Burnes (ii), she has but one living child:

1. Daniel D. Burnes (iii), was b. at Ringold, Platte Co., Mo., Jan. 4, 1851. He is a graduate of Washington College and the Law Department of Harvard. He m'd May 17, 1877, Minnie Farrar, of St. Louis. He has had at different times, as his partners, Judge Silas Woodson, Judge O. M. Spencer, and Hon. S. B. Green. His name stands with the most illustrious lawyers at the St. Joseph bar. In November, 1882, he was elected to Congress as a Democrat. At the end of his term he declined another nomination, and is now engaged in a lucrative practice of law, in St. Joseph. But death has removed his wife, leaving a lovely child: [a] Kennett F. Burnes, b. in 1878.

2. Calvin Carr Burnes, b. in 1856, was rising to distinction when death called him hence Nov. 20, 1893. He located in Chicago, and there m'd Fannie Byram, who survives, with: [a] Myrtle, her only child.

VI. CALVIN F. BURNES, b. in Indiana Feb. 18, 1830; d. at St. Joseph July 29, 1896; m'd Sept. 27, 1859, Kate Hughes, dr. of Hon. Jas. M. Hughes, one of our earliest congressmen. Mr. Burnes was president of the Bank of St. Joseph and its chief stockholder. He was regarded as one of the best financiers of the age. He was connected in business with his brother, James, throughout the life of the latter, and many attribute the financial success of the firm to his prudent management. While James N. engaged in his daring enterprises abroad, Calvin F. supplied the funds and kept the accounts at home. He is blessed with only one child:

1. Mary Burnes.

Jan. 19—Capt. Andrew Johnson sells to James Kuykendall the E.  $\frac{1}{2}$  of Block 37, Platte City, for \$1,200.

FEBRUARY.

Feb. 3—Platte City is granted, by the Legislature, a new charter.

DELANY BOWLIN.

Feb. 9—Delany Bowlin's will probated. Jas. Kuykendall qualifies as his executor. Bond, $8,000. His will names his wife, Elizabeth, and his children, Ben Bowlin and Elizabeth McGee. Others are referred to, but no names given. In the partition of his lands, the following children are parties: 1, Polly, wife of Stephen McColum; 2, Elizabeth, wife of John S. Bigbee; 3, Jackson; 4, Joel W.; 5, Sarah C.; 6, Ben, Jr.; 7, Eliz. J. Hosea; 8, John; 9, Frank M.; 10, Maria, wife of Elisha Baker.

William Bowlin (not named above), is a son, and names many other children not mentioned in the records.

Delany Bowlin seems to have been an extraordinary man. Born in Scotland, he came to Virginia, thence to Kentucky, and lastly to Platte in 1837. The records show he was married February 6, 1848, to Hannah Noland; and again, January 20, 1850, to Lizzie McDaniel. She is, perhaps, the wife he names Elizabeth in his will. He married seven times, and had children by each wife. Their total number was 30. One of his sons married nine times, and had no child. Delany Bowlin was 118 years old at his death. I find in the census of 1840 there was one person in Platte over 100 years of age. This must have been D. Bowlin, for I have never heard of any centenarian in this county except D. Bowlin and Thos. Jones. Wm. Bowlin, and others in the neighborhood of Waldron, will testify to the truth of these statements. If D. Bowlin was over 100 in 1840, and did not die until 1853, there is some color to the 118 years claimed.

Feb. 10—Solomon B. Park buys the Robert Cain farm, for $8,000.

At Ridgely: Black, Clark, Chinn, Ellington, Phillips, Sayle (postmaster), Smither.

THE SEASON, CROPS, ETC.

This was the famine year. Crops were short in Missouri, but nearly a failure in Kansas. H. D. Oden and others came over to solicit supplies for the starving people of Kansas; and liberal contributions were made. But the year is more memorable as the beginning of the border warfare, that ended in the civil war between the North and South.

JANUARY.

Jan. 1—Dram-shops are freely licensed for $20 county tax, and $10 State tax.

L. C. Jack buys of W. B. Almond the S.  $\frac{1}{2}$  of Block 40 in Platte City, and removes into town.

Jan. 21—David Bowman's estate administered on by Jacob Meyer.

FEBRUARY.

Feb. 1—Louis Neudorf's house burned on Lot 8, Block 26, in Platte City. The thermometer stood 30° below zero, and the fire seemed to cast off no heat. We saved the log house adjoining, by piling snow on the roof. In the intense cold, the snow melted only at the eaves of the house.

Feb. 21—Samuel Tincher's estate administered on by Levi Long. Bond, $3,000.

Feb. 23—Ben Fry purchases of Jesse Morin 320 acres in Secs. 4 and 9, T. 54, R. 35. for $9,039.

HEMP, THE SEASON.

Feb. 25—In an old letter of this date, from Platte City, I find the following passage: "Our dry winter has caused the farmers to be very backward in breaking hemp. But, this week, we have had several good rains, and hemp is pretty well rotted. The lint is remarkably heavy, and the article is superior. The crop will be larger than last year. It is selling for $5.75 to $6.25."

MARCH.

March 6—James Doniphan is enrolled as an attorney.

March 16—The Baptists buy of John Boulware Lot 10, Block 29, Platte City, and this season erect a church, 40x60, of brick.

TODD AND SKINNER.

A bitter feud arises between two parties in the Christian Church at Camden Point. Phinehas Skinner leads one party, and Prof. H. B. Todd, principal of the Female Academy, the other. The whole community is excited, and takes sides. Todd is charged, by many responsible parties, with "lying." He sues for slander, and Skinner sues for debt. After two years of wrangling, the matter is settled, to the satisfaction of no one. The school suffers. Todd resigns, comes to Platte City, raises a large subscription, and in 1857 builds the Platte City Female Academy.

March 21—Wm. McNeil Clough enrolled as an attorney.

APRIL.

April 7—W. H. Bryan died at Ringold. He was a partner of Phinehas Skinner in the mercantile business, and was highly esteemed. His children have all left the county.

EMIGRANT AID SOCIETY.

The Legislature of Massachusetts chartered a company by this name, which was never organized. But February 25, 1855, The New England Emigrant Aid Society was chartered, and went into operation, with Eli Thayer as president. They were active in promoting the settlement of Kansas with Free Soil men.

MAY.

May 1—If any financial exhibit was made this year, it cannot be found. It is not of record.

ASSESSMENT OF 1854.

Slaves, $1,323,300; money and notes, $592,550; other property, $449,976; lands and lots, $3,278,550; total, $5,644,376.

May 6—The Delaware tribe of Indians cede to the United States the larger part of their lands in Kansas.

May 18—The Kickapoos cede their lands in Kansas to the United States.

JAMES H. JOHNSTON.

May 23—James H. Johnston dies at his new house, a mile southeast of Platte City. He was born in Ohio May 27, 1813. He received his mercantile training in Cincinnati, came West early in 1838, and with Stephen Johnston, who was not related to him, opened the second store in Martinsville, held the office of postmaster at Martinsville and Platte City until 1850, when he sold his store to Paxton & Callahan and retired to his farm, where he had just completed a spacious brick dwelling. He married in 1840, Martha Henderson (see), a younger sister of Mrs. Geo. P. Dorris. She survived him, and married September 17, 1860, Hon. A. W. Morrison, State treasurer, and is again a widow. Capt. R. D. Johnston, another partner, yet not related, administered on his estate, giving bond for $40,000. Ch:

L. ANNA B. JOHNSTON, m'd Feb. 17, 1860, Hon. Ben. J. Franklin, now governor of Arizona. He was a native of Mason Co., Ky.; educated at Bethany; admitted to our bar in 1857. After a short residence at Platte City, he located at Leavenworth. He was outspoken for the South. In 1860 he removed to Kansas City, entered the Confederate army as a private, was promoted to captain, and served throughout the war. He was elected to Congress from our district, which then included Kansas City, in 1874, and was re-elected in 1876. He is a man of independence, intelligence, and moral and personal courage, and took a high station in Congress. In March, 1896, he was appointed governor of Arizona.

II. REBECCA JOHNSTON, m'd Wm. Ford, and is now a widow.
Children:

1. Annie Ford. 2. Willie.

III. GEO. D. JOHNSTON, was killed in an affray in central Missouri; never married.

Mr. J. H. Johnston and I were intimate friends, and in a poem I dedicated to his memory I write:

He was a merchant trained from early youth;
Good name and wealth were honestly acquired.
He rose by promptness, energy, and truth,
And, having gained a competence, retired.
But prowling death stalked forth at radiant noon,
And rudely foiled his plans of ease and splendor—
As biting frosts will sometimes come in June,
To nip the buds and flowers, when young and tender.

May 30—The Kansas-Nebraska bill approved by the President. It submitted the question of slavery to the people of each Territory, and so far violated the Missouri Compromise. No effort was made to introduce slavery into Nebraska; but Kansas bordered on Missouri, and it was thought it could be easily colonized by Pro-slavery men. The Free Soil party were conscious that it would cost much labor and money to secure Kansas to freedom. The Northern people, therefore, entered heroically into the work, and, though often cast down, in the end succeeded.

JUNE.

June 10—A meeting of Pro-slavery "squatters," three miles west of Fort Leavenworth, declare Kansas slave territory, and refuse protection to Abolitionists.

LEAVENWORTH'S BIRTHDAY.

June 13—The Leavenworth Company formed at Weston. G. W. Gist was chosen president, H. Miles Moore secretary, and J. B. Evans treasurer. Amos Rees, L. D. Bird, and Maj. A. E. Ogden were members. Thirty-four signed the constitution. The only living members are H. Miles Moore, J. C. Gist, A. T. Kyle, Jos. Murphy, and J. B. Evans. The first sale of lots was in October, 1854. The ground was surveyed by J. C. Gist, G. W. Gist, and Sam'l Fernandes.

JULY.

July 1—At this time it was a common story that the Southerners kept a cow at every ferry on the Missouri River, and every stranger that applied for passage was asked to name the animal. If he answered, "A keow," he was turned back. But the Free-State ferrymen showed a bear, and if the stranger called it "a bar," they refused to cross him. The joke is as old as the shibboleth of Jephthah.

The Atchison Town Company formed, with P. T. Abell, president; J. H. Stringfellow, secretary; and J. N. Burnes, treasurer.

PLATTE COUNTY SELF-DEFENSIVE ASSOCIATION.

July 29—A meeting was held to-day, in pursuance of a call signed, among others, by W. B. Almond, D. R. Atchison, J. N. Burnes, Dr. G. W. Bayless, Jas. Adkins, P. T. Abell, Dan'l Cary, J. V. Cockrill, Geo. Galloway, Jesse Morin, W. J. Miller, W. H. Spratt, B. F. Stringfellow, J. H. Stringfellow, Jarret Todd, Jno. M. Wallace, J. W. Vineyard. Geo. Galloway was made president, and J. H. Stringfellow secretary. After resolving that all settlers sent to Kansas by aid societies must be turned back, they formed a society, to be known as the Platte County Self-Defensive Association, to hold public meetings, and urge the settlement of Kansas by Pro-slavery men, and to guard elections against the frauds of Abolitionists. Under the patronage of this institution, Atchison, Bayless, Stringfellow, and others made frequent public addresses.

THE KANSAS LEAGUE.

The Kansas League was a subsidiary institution, to carry into effect the decrees of the Platte County Self-Defensive Association. It was composed, chiefly, of the same persons, bound to secrecy by an oath, and holding meetings in the dark, wherever and whenever called out. Through the agency of this institution, newspapers were suppressed and Northern Methodists silenced.

AUGUST. THE ELECTION.

Aug. 1—The vote for Congressman was: Mor. Oliver (Whig), 6,129; S. L. Leonard, 4,998; Lowe, 2,787. W. H. Spratt (Whig) was chosen sheriff; A. M. Robinson senator; and D. D. Burnes, John Doniphan, and G. P. Dorriss representatives.

THE SMITHVILLE TRAGEDY.

Aug. 7—This day occurred the terrible affray in Smithville, in which John W. Douglas and S. J. Ross were killed, and Samuel Shackelford, Wm. Shackelford, and John W. Calloway were lynched. Samuel Shackelford was the leader of a gang of lawless men who met at Smithville, and, being armed, brought on an affray. He killed the two men named, but his skull was broken by a club; and, with his two companions, he was hung to the limb of a sugar-tree, across the creek from Smithville.

PARDEE BUTLER.

Aug. 16—Pardee Butler was an outspoken Free State man of Atchison, Kansas, and was seized by Pro-slavery men, and placed on two logs, and set adrift in the Missouri River. A flag fastened to the raft proclaimed his principles. I met Mr. Butler years later, and heard from his lips the story of his voyage. He had upon his person $125, which he asked might be deposited with a merchant at Atchison; but he was commanded to take his money with him. His orders were not to take down the flag; but, when out of sight, he tore it down, and, with it as a paddle, reached the Kansas shore. Two years later, at Atchison, he was treated to a coat of tar. He was a Baptist elder. He died in Kansas, a few years ago.

THE DROUTH.

This was the famine year for Kansas. The winter had been remarkably dry, yet early corn sprouted and produced more than a half crop; but not one grain in five planted in May came up. In Kansas it was worse. Southern men were helped by their Missouri friends, and the Free State men were supplied by contributions from the North. Corn sold for from $1 to $1.50 per bushel, and wheat brought the same. Later in the fall, grasshoppers made their first visit to Kansas, and in places hatched out in the spring.

SEPTEMBER.

LAW AND ORDER MEETING AT WESTON.

Sept. 1—In opposition to the Self-Defensive Association, a meeting of citizens favorable to law and order was called September 1st, at Weston. The call was signed, among others, by J. C.

He was born in east Tennessee May 15, 1801; died January 9, 1855; in 1818 he married Malinda Green (no kin to Mr. Green). In the spring of 1826 he removed to Lexington, Mo., and thence to Platte, in 1837. He purchased a wigwam of a Pottawatomie Indian, and settled in the Missouri bottoms, near Farley. In 1844 he removed to Platte City, and erected the hotel still known as the Green House. His hotel was the resort of a club of Democratic politicians, and professional and literary gentlemen. It was the home of Senator Atchison while he lived in Platte. Mr. Green was a man of enterprise and energy, and Platte City owes to him many valuable improvements. At the time of his death he was building a costly mill, to be run by steam, just below Platte River bridge. But upon his death all operations ceased. He was the life of the town—ever ready with a good story or a practical joke. His surviving friends often speak of his hospitality, enterprise, and humor. Mrs. Green was born in Henrico County, Va., May 22, 1800, and died in Platte City October 9, 1875. She was a large, brisk, independent, and kind-hearted woman.

II. MISSOURI A. GREEN, in early life was handsome, spirited, and independent. She labored effectively in every good cause; was ever generous and kind to the poor and zealous for the Church. For years she hovered on the borderland of death, but is now in health. She m'd 1st, Dr. Frederick Marshall, who was b. in New York in 1814, and d. in Platte June 1, 1861. Mrs. Marshall m'd 2d, Hon. E. H. Norton, who will be noticed hereafter. Dr. F. Marshall was regarded as one of the best physicians of his day. He came to Platte in 1837, and settled at Martinsville. He built a log office, ten feet square, and boarded with Zadock Martin. He was not able, at first, to meet his board bills by the returns of his practice, and went forth to the prairie to mow hay for his host. But the people soon discovered his virtues, and he became the most distinguished physician of the county. He possessed sound judgment and confidence in the advance of real estate; and wealth came to him as a reward. Handsome in person and cordial in his manners, he won the hearts of every household he entered. A pleasant smile upon his face invited confidence and inspired friendship. He was treasurer of Platte County for many years, and his official acts were universally approved. Ch:

1. Mary Clemmie Marshall, b. Nov. 16, 1844; d. Dec. 3, 1877; m'd Nov. 16, 1865 (birthday), William H. Field, b. in 1840. Clemmie was a pure and lovely woman, and a devotee of music. A member of the Presbyterian Church, she led the choir and charmed her hearers by her well-trained voice. She died exclaiming, "The angels—the beautiful angels!" I wrote a poem in her memory. Mr. Field lost his life in the West. Ch: [a] Julia Field, b. March 25, 1867. Lovely, pure, and holy, her heart overflows with kindness. She m'd Oct. 14, 1886, Allen Hulett, a grocer of Platte City, b. Oct. 16, 1861. Ch: [1] Dora Elaine Hulett, b. Nov. 11, 1887; [2] James Allen Hulett, b. Dec. 1, 1889; [3] Fred M. Hulett, b. 3. Virginia Marshall, b. Jan. 28, 1854; m'd June 21, 1877, Hon. Norton B. Anderson, b. in Todd Co., Ky., Jan. 8, 1844. He was elected in November, 1888, without opposition, as a Democrat, State senator from this district, and was chosen president pro tem. of the Senate; was one of the revisers of the Statutes of 1889, and to his sound judgment and statesmanship we owe many of the reforms found in our laws. As a jurist he has few equals in the State. He is well read in history, philosophy, and science, as well as in the literature of the day. As a chaste writer he has no equal in the county, and as an urbane gentleman he is admired by all. As a member of the Norton family we will have occasion to notice him again. Mrs. Anderson is a lady of marked intelligence, grace, and beauty—a zealous Christian, and the proud mother of two lovely daughters: [<sup>a</sup>] Clemmie Anderson, b. May 3, 1880; [<sup>b</sup>] Irene, b. Nov. 21, 1882. Senator Anderson and his wife live in Platte City, and are among my chosen friends. On the occasion of their marriage I wrote and published an epithalamium, from which I select a stanza for each:

I see, in my vision of rapt inspiration,
 The husband exalted and great:
 He sits in the chambers and halls of the nation
 And joins in the councils of state.
 Success at the bar brings him clients and gold;
 His board is with luxury crowned;
 The learned and refined as his friends are enrolled,
 And hosts as his patrons are found.

I knew the bride in earlier years,
 'Mid childhood's joy and glee;
 I've joined her sports, I've quelled her fears,
 And nursed her on my knee.
 I taught to her the word of truth,
 And all her virtues knew;
 I've watched her from her earliest youth,
 And know she's good and true.

JAMES B. MARTIN.

Feb. 6—James B. Martin having died, Addison Burge administered. Bond, $6,000. He was the youngest son of Zadock Martin, and was born in Clay County, about 1822. He received a good education and read law. He married, first, October 30, 1844, Melvina Ramey, daughter of John, who died, childless, September 2, 1848. He married, second, October 31, 1850, Flora Jack, daughter of L. C. Jack. Their only child, Davidella, was born September 2, 1851, and died January 23, 1868. Mrs. Martin married, second, July 23, 1867, Geo. R. Hines, a banker of Leavenworth. They live in Texas, and will come again into notice under the Jack family. James B. Martin controlled the Platte City water mills, then valuable property, and handled much money. Handsome, generous, festive, and prodigal, he was surrounded by sycophants, who led him into vice. He was chosen a justice of the county court, and served a term in the Legislature. But bad habits brought on family and pecuniary troubles. In May, 1853, he sold his half interest in the mills, and went to Kansas, where he engaged in pasturing stock. After a night's debauch, he was found dead in his shanty, and was brought home for burial.

ZADOCK MARTIN AND FAMILY.

Mr. Martin came from Tennessee about 1820, and settled in Clay. In 1828 we have seen him in charge of the ferries over the Platte and Missouri. His name is connected with the earliest settlement of our county. His wife was a sister of Roland Brown. He had brothers, Isaac and Joseph, and a sister, Cynthia. In 1846 he left for Oregon, with several of his family. A few years later he and his wife died in the far West. Ch:

APRIL.

April 2—Jerry Woods is elected mayor of Weston. Population of Leavenworth, 500.

DESTRUCTION OF G. S. PARK'S PRESS.

The Platte County Self-Defensive Association held frequent meetings in the spring of 1855. Senator Atchison, Dr G. W. Bayless, and B. F. Stringfellow were popular speakers, and their Pro-slavery harangues provoked the people to frenzy and outrage. Those living east and south of Platte City became almost insane. Dr. Walker, Capt. W. J. Miller, J. V. Cockrell, L. Shepard, and Col. J. H. Winston were untiring in their efforts to arouse the people and to get them into Kansas. The Kansas League held frequent meetings in secret. They appointed committees to carry their decrees into execution. Northern Methodist preachers had stated meetings at their church, five miles south of Platte City. Committees waited on them, and commanded them to desist, and enforced their charge with threats of tar and feathers—and if these were not sufficient, they would be hung. Charles Morris, one of the preachers, defied them, and persisted in preaching. His temerity cost him his life, and, in 1864, was the cause of the death of Dr. Jos. Walker, in retaliation.

After the frauds perpetrated in the Kansas election of March 30, 1855, the following article appeared in the Industrial Luminary, published at Parkville, by Park and Patterson:

"There is virtually no law in Kansas, and no security for life or property, save in the sense of honor and justice cherished by every true pioneer. This may save the country from bloodshed; but the Government is held up to ridicule and contempt, and its authority disregarded. Judges of elections have been displaced.

and new ones appointed; the polls have in some instances been guarded with pistols and bowie-knives; and some of those elected are going to the governor, swearing that if he does not give them certificates of election immediately, they will 'cut his throat from ear to ear.' Is the flag of our country to be no longer protected; or are individuals or companies to declare we will, and it must be so, without regard to law? Is this what the authors of the Nebraska-Kansas bill meant by squatter sovereignty?"

That such sentiments should be published in Platte County, under the very shadow of the Kansas League, was more than could be endured. Accordingly, at the next meeting a committee of the whole was appointed to meet at Parkville April 14, 1855, to cast the press and type of the Luminary into the Missouri River, to read a sentence of banishment to Park and Patterson, and to threaten death in case of their return to the county. But the culprits got wind of what was coming, and stored away in the garret a large amount of type, which was not discovered, and afterwards taken to Kansas and used for Free-soil purposes.

On the 14th of April the Kansas Leaguers appeared on the streets of Parkville. Their hearts were fired by flaming speeches. The press was borne of many. A banner was hoisted aloft, and, amid songs and acclamations, the press and material were consigned to the yellow waters of the turbid Missouri.

Park was absent, and Patterson had to tread the wine-press alone. The decree was short: "Leave the State in three days, and never return, or be hung." Park was allowed three weeks to settle up his business affairs, and to leave.

A public meeting was held that indorsed the proceedings, threatened with death Southern Methodist preachers, and expressed the intention of dealing in like manner with other Free-soilers "not far off." These proceedings met the approbation of the Pro-slavery party at Liberty and elsewhere.

RESULTS.

1. Kansas became a free State. This outrage brought a myriad anti-slavery voters to Kansas.

2. The leaders in this outrage were sued by Park, and had to pay all damages—$2,500.

3. W. J. Patterson went to Montreal, Canada, became a wealthy merchant, and died honored and revered.

4. George S. Park gathered his scattered means, and invested them in Illinois lands, became a large capitalist, and, after the war, returned to his old home, to bless and enrich the very men who had conspired for his ruin. He, from the wealth thrust upon him by his enemies, founded Park College, the grandest and noblest educational enterprise of the West. His dust now reposes at the very spot whence he was banished in life, and a colossal marble monument to his honor overlooks the place where his press was submerged. How unsearchable are God's judgments, and His ways are past finding out!

James H. Lane and John Brown and sons appear in Kansas. The Legislature meets and passes Pro-slavery laws.

April 3—Malcolm Clark, a leading Pro-slavery man, is killed at Leavenworth, in a row, by Cole McCrea, who was apprehended and indicted for murder, but escaped.

April 30—A Pro-slavery public meeting at Leavenworth, is addressed by Jas. N. Burnes. They appoint a vigilance committee of thirty. The committee charge that William Phillips was accessory to the murder of Clark, and order him to leave.

Samuel C. Bowers having died, P. Ellington qualifies as his executor. Bond, $12,000. His will is dated February 24, 1855, and probated May 24, 1855. His second wife was Mary Dougherty, who was divorced from him. She afterwards married John Bryant. He left no children and bequeathed his property to Julia Dupey, P. Ellington, and Judge H. M. Vories, his attorney.

THE WINSTON FAMILY.

The progenitor was COL. JOSEPH WINSTON, born in 1746; died in 1814. In 1766 he removed from Virginia to North Carolina. In the Revolutionary War he raised a regiment of patriots, and served under Gen. Greene, in the Army of the South. His regiment did noble service at the battle of King's Mountain, October 7, 1780, where Gen. Ferguson of the British Army was defeated. For his services on this occasion he was granted, by the Legislature of North Carolina a sword ornamented with appropriate emblems and inscriptions. This sword and a handsome likeness of him who earned it by his gallantry are yet preserved as heirlooms by his grandson, Col. John H. Winston. Col. Jos. Winston was also with Gen. Greene at the battle of Guilford Court-House. He was elected to Congress in 1792, and reelected in 1800, and again in 1802. He served four terms in the Senate of North Carolina, and was presidential elector in 1801. The city of Winston, N. C., is named for him.

The father of Col. Jos. Winston was one of two brothers who came from Wales, and settled in Albemarle Co., Va. The other brother went, subsequently, to Alabama, and was the progenitor of Gov. Winston, of that State.

The will of Col. Jos. Winston is dated April 12, 1814. He grants to, and names, his children, as follows:

1. Robert Winston is granted lands and personal property.
2. Joseph W. Winston—lands and negroes.
3. Sallie Winston—his precious bureau, etc.
4. Lewis Winston—a valuable watch, etc.
5. Samuel Winston—his diamond knee-buckles, etc.
6. Fountain Winston—his gold sleeve-buttons.
7. William Winston is named, but no special bequest is granted him.

Eight thousand acres of land are distributed among his children. Joseph is to support the old negroes, and he is to have the sword granted him, which, he says, "is to be used only in defense of his country." Of these children we are interested only with

GEN. JOSEPH WINSTON,

Who was born in Stokes County, N. C. He married there Letitia D. Hughes, daughter of John Hughes and Annie Moore. He was a major in a North Carolina regiment, stationed at Norfolk, Va., in the War of 1812, and served to the end. He was afterwards a representative for years in the Legislature of North Carolina. In the militia of his State he was appointed brigadier general, and advanced to major-general. He came to Platte in 1839, and settled north of Parkville. He had a store at the mouth of Platte, at the town of Winston, and here he was last seen. It is supposed he was accidentally drowned in the Missouri River. Ch:

I. COL. JOHN H. WINSTON, b. in Stokes Co., N. C., Jan. 22, 1815; came to Platte in 1838, and settled seven miles south-east of Platte City; m'd Dec. 4, 1839, Elizabeth Tebbs, dr. of Wm. H. Tebbs and Lydia Kennedy, b. Aug. 5, 1818; d. Dec. 1, 1886. Mrs. Winston possessed many virtues. With a cultivated mind and literary taste she combined a tall and handsome person, stateliness of manner, and grace with truth and kindness of heart. When her husband was undergoing his long military imprisonment, she took me into her counsel; and while her tears fell freely and her prayers rose fervently, I wept with the dutiful wife and the faithful Christian.

Col. Winston was long a militia officer. In early days I mustered under him. In military matters he was well informed; and when the war broke out in 1861, his Southern enthusiasm and his soldierly bearing pointed him out as the commander of Southern troops, raised in this county. In August, 1861, a military rendezvous was formed in his neighborhood and called Camp Cain. Here the Southern bands gathered, and a number of companies were organized, under Cpts. Chesnut, Chrisman, Chiles, Miller, Mitchell, Rogers, Spratt, and others. Before the regiment was fully organized, the men were hurried to the front. They were in time to take part in the siege and taking of Lexington. They were at Pea Ridge, Corinth, and other important engagements. In the spring of 1864 Col. Winston, by order of Gen. S. Price, returned home to recruit men for the Southern army and to help them on their way to the front. While on this duty he was captured by a troop of Federal soldiers, at his home, three miles southeast of Platte City. For twenty months, until the close of the war, he was confined in military prisons—successively at St. Louis, Alton, and Jefferson City—in apprehension of death by military order, at any time. The return of peace brought him liberty. Col. Winston had long been a favorite of the people of Platte, and on his return he was joyfully received. From 1872 to 1876 he represented the county in the State Legislature, and his name has been frequently suggested for the State Senate. Col. Winston yet lives at his old home, honored and revered by all who meet him. Ch:

1. Lydia Winston, b. Aug. 14, 1843; m'd Feb. 2, 1865, Milton E. Clark, a banker and capitalist of Leavenworth. She is fond of society and spends much of her time in New England. They have three lovely daughters: [a] Nellie E. Clark, b. Dec. 13, 1866; m'd Sept. 8, 1892, Lient. Stephen M. Hadons; [b] Cora Clark, b. Aug. 6, 1868; [c] Hildah Clark, b. 2. Cora A. Winston, b. Sept. 17, 1844; m'd May 2, 1864, Judge William H. Woodson, b. Jan. 6, 1840. Cora, in the prime of her beauty, possessed commanding loveliness; and now, as a matron, is charming in grace and queenly in majesty. She would have adorned the court of an empress. Judge Woodson is a scion of a noble family. He is the son of my college companion, Hon. Samuel H. Woodson, a judge of the Independence Circuit, of Missouri, and member of Congress from that district. Judge W. H.

Woodson resides at Liberty, Mo. He has filled the offices of prosecuting attorney and of probate judge, and is recommended for Congress. He possesses native intellect, supplemented by education, ambition, and chivalry. He commenced the practice of law at Platte City in 1864, entered the Confederate army, served under Gen. Price, and became assistant adjutant-general of the Missouri State Guard. He is related to his wife through the Hughes family. Ch: [a] Winston Woodson, b. Aug. 29, 1865; d. II. LOUISA WINSTON, m'd in North Carolina Jas. B. Frost, who died there. The widow came to Platte in 1838, with her two children, and here died. Ch:

1. Elizabeth Frost, m'd in 1846, Col John E. Pitt, b. in southern Kentucky about 1822; d. in Colorado June 19, 1884. Mrs. Pitt was a handsome and fascinating woman, well read in the literature of the day, a brilliant conversationalist, and a charming companion. Col. Pitt came to Platte City in 1843, and first introduced himself to public notice by running against Judge S. L. Leonard for circuit attorney. His speeches were replete with wit and spiciness, cutting stories. His audiences were convulsed with laughter, and his well-told anecdotes are not yet forgotten. He was a Whig, but gained favor by his courteous manners and genial disposition. He was an orator and a chaste writer. He was the life of every circle he entered, and made himself interesting to all sorts of company. As a humorist he had few equals, and yet he possessed a high order of intelligence. In August, 1845, he was elected a delegate to the second State Constitutional Convention, and in 1858 he was chosen a county representative, with Dr. Samuel McGuire as his associate. In 1878 he was elected county attorney. In April, 1881, he removed to Colorado, to live with his daughter, Mrs. Katie Dameron, where he died. His children have all left us. I knew the family well, and can testify to their fascinating beauty, their remarkable proficiency in music, their charming graces, and their educational accomplishments. The three daughters of Col. Pitt were a triad of noble sisters, charming wives, and true and faithful mothers. Ch: [a] James Frost Pitt, b. in 1851; is a rising lawyer of St. Joseph. He is, even now, one of the best practitioners of the State. [b] Lula Pitt, b. Sept. 13, 1853; m'd Feb. 28, 1881, Dr. Guilford Yokom, b. in 1844. They live in Colorado. Ch: [1] Helen Yokom, b. Oct. 1, 1882; and accidentally killed in July, 1894, by a shot from a gun in the hands of a negligent youth. Lula is now a sad and childless mother. [c] Katie Pitt, b. in 1856; d. Dec. 4, 1889; m'd Sept. 21, 1876, Geo. M. Dameron. She was a delicately strung harp, sensitive to every breath of air or beam of sunshine. Her soul was from infancy attuned to harmony. She met you in ecstasies of delight, and when she left, you were sure an angel had been with you. Words of kindness and affection flowed as nectar from her lips, and to your imagination she was a bird of paradise. But these perfections were more than her nature could sustain. She lost her reason, and died in an asylum. She left a child, Warren, who, with Mr. Dameron, is in the far West. But her dust reposes in our cemetery, and a large harp, appropriately placed at the head of her grave, is garlanded with honeysuckle. Her life was a song, and her monument is a lyre whose Æolian strains lull her slumbers. [d] Lettie Pitt, m'd Oct. 29, 1885, R. H. Weller, a dealer in cattle at Kansas City. Lettie is much like her mother—a brilliant talker, and a faithful worker in the Episcopal Church. To her talent for music she adds vivacity, purity, and unwavering faith. Ch: [1] John C. Weller; [2] James W.; [3] Lizzie P.

2. James E. Frost, m'd Dec. 19, 1859, Virg. E. Almond, b. Dec. 19, 1841. To them was born one child: [a] Addie Frost. They separated, and are both in the West. The boy is with his father. Mr. Frost distinguished himself during the war as an independent soldier and daring scout in the service of the South.

III. MATTHEW H. WINSTON, b. in 1830; d., single, March 25, 1864.

He was born in Estill County, Ky., September 5, 1814; came to Missouri in 1839, and stopped at Warrensburg, where, October 1, 1840, he married Louisa Mayo, daughter of Judge H. B. Mayo. (See.) She died at Helena, Mont., March 19, 1888. He was a man of integrity, virtue, and intelligence, an uncompromising Southern man, and fearless in promulgating his principles—but died ere he reached the point of danger. I notice one trait of his character in the following verse, dedicated to his honor:

His idols were his worthy sons,
His lovely girls, and charming wife;
To train and bless these darling ones
Became the duty of his life.

Mrs. Cockrell was a woman of extraordinary loveliness, both of person and of disposition. A very child in innocence and purity, her confiding heart doubted no one, and the law of kindness was upon her tongue. Ch:

I. H. CLIFTON COCKRELL, m'd Oct. 6, 1870, Sadie Railey, the lovely dr. of J. M. Railey, the Weston banker. They live in Colorado. Mr. Cockrell received a finished education, and has become an eminent lawyer.

Mr. Cockrell was a well-educated and highly accomplished gentleman, a zealous Methodist, an earnest advocate of temperance, genial in his address, and generally beloved. He edited the Platte County Advocate during the thickest of the Ring and Sorehead embroglio, and became the mediator of peace between the hostile factions. Mr. Cockrell died Nov. 1, 1883. His widow lives in Platte City, and is highly esteemed for intelligence and personal accomplishments. In her maiden days, I often admired her rich golden tresses, her blonde complexion, her confiding heart, and modest deportment. Ch:

His mother was a Davenport. He married, in 1803, Nancy Walker, who was born in 1783, and died in 1855. On account of his outspoken anti-slavery sentiments, he was called "Yankee" Smith. In 1822 he came west with his family, and settled on the creek in Clay County, Mo., called from him, Smith's Fork of the Platte. Here, at a point where the creek breaks over a ledge of rocks, he built, of round, unhewn white-oak logs, a small mill for corn, run by a flutter wheel. At that time there was no grist-mill in Clay, except Tillery's horse-mill. The stones were cut from "lost rock," and were small. A few years later Mr. Smith cut out a 3½-foot pair of stones, from "lost rock," and added bolts. For ten years these mills afforded meal and flour for the county. Mr. Smith, about 1827, laid off a small town, which was called Smithville. His good sense, energy, and independence gave name and reputation to the neighborhood. Ch:

JOHN WOOD, TEACHER AND POET.

June 13—In the Atlas of this date are two acrostics by John Wood. On account of peculiarities and eccentricities, Mr. Wood never received the honor due him. For twenty years prior to 1876 he taught school at various places in Platte County. He published a pamphlet of 104 acrostics, to as many names, and sold it at 50 cents. He wrote a long poem, entitled "Columbus," and read it before the Platte City Lodge of Good Templars. He never rode on horseback, nor in a carriage of any sort, but trudged on foot through mud and snow, carrying a small black gripsack, which contained his worldly all. His poetry was correct in measure, rhyme, and diction; but the ornaments of rhetoric were wanting. But his speeches were logical and pointed, and were listened to attentively. He often participated in the discussions at teachers' meetings. No one could tell his generation, nor whence he came nor whither he went. I loved the old man, and tried to cheer him. He often called at my office for rest after his peregrinations. His verses showed thought, but were lacking in melody, sentiment, and sweetness. He was found dead in an orchard in Clay, where he was teaching.

GREENBURY PITCHER died in 1857. His widow was named Elizabeth, and his children: 1, James M. Pitcher; 2, Jane, wife of Simeon Hull; 3, Sarah Ann, wife of Wm. Clarke; 4, William; 5, Thomas; 6, Miles; 7, Susan.

The two upper stories were used to replace the burned water-mill, and the first story, used as a stable, was burned, with many horses.

I knew all these lovely girls. They are now the matrons in many households. By consulting my index, the reader may trace the lives of many of them. Prof. Todd did much to raise the standard of female education and wifely accomplishment in Platte County.

May 8—A public meeting at Parkville recommended the route of the Platte Country Railroad through Platte City and New Market, and asked the county court to take $200,000 stock.

JUNE.

June 1—A daily hack runs from Platte City to Leavenworth. Fare each way, $1.00.

Democratic Convention met at Barry, and nominated Judge J. T. V. Thompson for State senator.

By arrangement of the building committee, likenesses of some seventy of the patrons of the Platte City Female Academy were taken by the artist, Addis, and hung up in the hall. These were taken away by Mr. W. K. Faulconer, and I have tried in vain to recover them.

Work commences on the St. Joe & Atchison Railroad.

The port of Weston has been destroyed by a change of the channel of the Missouri River.

The Atlas is peculiarly happy in its poets. Herndon, Hutchison, "Clara" and Wood furnish some admirable pieces.

June 3—Examination of Platte City Female Academy commences, and lasts four days. It is largely attended.

June 6—Hickory Grove Church dedicated by Rev. Jos. Devlin.

OVERFLOW.

June 10—This is the year of the second great overflow of the Missouri and Platte rivers, in the records of Platte County. The overflow of 1826 preceded the settlement of Platte. The overflow of 1844 surpassed all others. The whole Missouri bottom was submerged. In 1858 the whole bottom was covered, except about fifty acres of J. E. Ireland's farm. The Platte in 1844 covered nearly all the site of Tracy. In 1858 the depot ground was scarcely submerged, and about one-eighth of an acre at the old steam mill was above water; and on this point, elevated by the sawdust, the hogs belonging to Almond, Paxton & Owen were gathered and fed. The rise of 1844 was 20 inches higher than that of 1858, and the water in 1858 was 10 inches higher than at any subsequent rise.

July 1, 1858, a second rise of the Platte occurred, 10 inches lower than June 10th of the same year. In the old water mill I had marks of both rises (1844 and 1858), and also on the large steam flouring mill, north of the Weston road. In 1838 the water was overhead at the steam mill. On the old wooden bridge at Platte City both rises were marked, showing 1858 was 20 inches below 1844. In 1858 the water was 10 inches above the second floor, and we lost 3,000 bushels of wheat.

June 15—Roads almost impassable. The ferryboat Leavenworth City brought fifty tons of merchandise from Weston to Platte City, by way of Platte River. It was the occasion of another big spree.

Fruit uncommonly promising, but wheat, though good, is ruined in the shock by rain, and, after threshing, it mildewed in the garner; much wheat brought to the mill was musty.

The Utah War is ended.

Hoopskirts are nearly out of fashion.

The grounds subsequently purchased, near Tracy, were selected, and Gen. Jeff. Williams, lately from Richmond, Ky., was chosen president, R. L. Waller treasurer, and Ethan Allen secretary. The directors were C. Cockrill, Thos. Clay, W. K. Faulconer, J. E. Forbis, S. M. Hays, S. Park, L. W. Pence, O. Steele, Jas. Wallace, John Williams, and A. C. Woods. Hasty preparations were made, a liberal subscription raised, and general interest was manifested.

The ring was surrounded by ropes. The only structure on the grounds was a flight of five board steps, badly constructed. These were assigned as seats to Prof. Todd's girls. A gallant four hundred spectators were admiring the beautiful array, when suddenly the supports of the seats gave way, and a hundred and fifty screaming, sprawling ladies called for help. ## MATTHEW MOORE HUGHES.

Jan. 3—Matthew Moore Hughes died six miles southeast of Platte City. (See the Hughes Family.) He was a son of John Hughes, and was born in Surry County, N. C., May 5, 1782. He married Mary Rogers, and came to Platte in 1837, bringing money and negroes. He settled on the headwaters of Todd's Creek, and inclosed a large prairie farm. He also purchased a large body of land on Bee Creek, and built the mill called by his name. He was a practical surveyor, and ran the north line of Platte, after meandering the Missouri River. The law under which he operated required the north line of the county to be so run as to include 400 square miles, which was the smallest area allowed a county under the Constitution. The survey, with field-notes, was filed in our county clerk's office, but cannot now be found. In the work Gen. James Brasfield and his son, Judge John S. Brasfield, were his assistants. In 1844 Mr. Hughes was appointed county court justice, and he served a term. Being one of the earliest settlers and having several lovely daughters, his house was a favorite resort for the officers stationed at Fort Leavenworth. Judge Hughes was well read in English literature. I once heard him, when "boozy" (and he drank but seldom), recite the whole of Pope's "Essay on Man." He was genial, generous, and hospitable in society, and judicious and enterprising in business. In lands and money he left a large estate for his children.

He married in 1810, in North Carolina, Mary Rogers, a daughter of Samuel. She was tall and dignified in person, and sentimental, if not flighty, in her mind. I once visited her house; the front door was open, and as I approached I saw the lady standing with her head aloft, eyes directed to heaven, and, in plaintive tones, apparently in prayer, appealing to God. My knock at the door broke her reverie, and I was received with polite condescension. She survived her husband, and died August 6, 1860. Ch:

II. MARTHA MOORE HUGHES, m'd Capt. B. D. Moore (see), b. in Bourbon Co., Ky., Sept. 10, 1810; killed at the battle of San Pasqual, Cal., Nov. 6, 1846. He entered the United States army as lieutenant of dragoons. A handsome monu ment in Platte City cemetery commemorates the death of Capt. Moore, and his brother-in-law, Lieut. Hammond. They were surrounded by an overpowering force of Mexicans, and the whole troop of 36 men were slaughtered. He left one child:

1. Matthew Joseph Moore, b. at Ft. Gibson May 7, 1840. On the death of Capt. Moore, the widow returned to her parents in Platte. The son, when he had attained the proper age, was sent to the University of North Carolina and received a classical education. When the war broke out, he enlisted in the Confederate army, and served to the end. November 20, 1867, he married in Memphis, Mary Helen Webb, b. Dec. 3, 1842. In 1875 Mr. Moore left, with his family, for the West, and may now be addressed at Carpinteria, Cal. Ch: [a] Ariana Moore, b. April 9, 1870; [b] Ben D., b. April 12, 1872; [c] Mary A. Moore, b. May 25, 1827, son of Richard Rixey (i) and Penelope Gibbs. Dr. Rixey was an excellent physician, and practiced at Platte City, Parkville, and other places in Platte and Clinton counties. The fruit of this marriage was:

1. Richard Rixey, b. in 1854; m'd March 13, 1878, Lucy Vallandigham, dr. of Madison. She d. Jan. 12, 1888, leaving 1 child: [a] Frank Rixey.

V. FRANCES J. HUGHES, m'd Dec. 1, 1840, Dr. Joseph Walker, b. in Bermuda Island, May 24, 1813; d. Aug. 28, 1864. His parents were John Walker and Fannie Penniston; and his grandfather was Jos. Walker, who was born in England and settled in Bermuda. Joseph, Jr., came to the United States, and received a classical education at Baltimore. He studied medicine, and entered the United States army as a surgeon. After marriage, he resigned in April, 1849, and settled six miles southeast of Platte City. He possessed superior mental endowments, as well as a finished education. His influence among his neighbors was boundless; but he belonged to the "fire-eating" Southern tribe, of 1856-7. His efforts to silence Northern Methodist Episcopal preachers brought upon him the vengeance of the "Red-leg" party. After Rev. Charles Morris, the Northern Methodist, had been cruelly murdered in July, 1864, in execution of the threat that all such should die, a son of Morris, at the head of a gang of outlaws, apprehended and shot Dr. Walker. Mrs. Walker still lives with her children:

THE JOHNSON FAMILY.

Berwick Johnson was a brother of Vice-President Richard M. Johnson, the hero of the battle of the Thames. The family came at an early day to Bryant's Station, so celebrated in the early history of Kentucky. Berwick was the father of Capt. Andrew Johnson, and his mother's name was Phena. I have heard Capt. Johnson tell of the dangers that surrounded the early settlers of Kentucky, and of his mother molding bullets for the men when the Station was surrounded by Indians.

Capt. Andrew Johnson was born at Bryant's Station, in Kentucky, May 21, 1790. His education was limited, but his courage and patriotic zeal caused him, at the first call, to enlist in his uncle Richard M. Johnson's regiment of mounted rifles, for the War of 1812. His chivalrous nature brought him always to the front, and at the post of danger. He rose to the command of a company, which he led at the Raisin and the Thames.

December 5, 1821, Captain Johnson married, in Scott County, Ky., Jemima Suggett, born August 22, 1805; died in Platte City in 1852. She was, when I knew her, large and fleshy. Her heart overflowed with tenderness, and her generous nature spoke in charity. In 1837 Capt. Johnson was stationed at St. Louis, as an Indian agent. In 1838 he visited Platte, and selected the quarter-section of land on Pleasant Ridge afterwards owned by Jos. Nower. In 1840 he united with the Old-school Baptist Church, and donated to Unity (Flint-lock) Baptist Church the ground upon which the church still stands.

In Kentucky, Capt. Johnson represented Scott County one term in the State Legislature. In Missouri, he was elected, in 1844, to the State Senate. His chivalrous temperament, his generous soul, his patriotism, and his eloquence, secured to him confidence and love, and made him a great favorite with the people. He came, about 1850, to Platte City, and spent a few years within a stone's throw of my home. Our relations were intimate and confidential—I attended to his legal business and administered on his estate. His noble nature and generous heart endeared him to me. Ch:

He then removed to Platte City, Mo. In November, 1868, he removed to St. Paul, where a sister, Mrs. Webb, had long resided. Dr. Baldwin was eminent in his profession, and received a second degree from the Ohio Medical College, at Cincinnati. His diligent reading and accuracy of information brought him reputation as a scholar; and his skill in medicine brought him patients and fortune. Social and genial in his disposition, his conversation was interesting and instructive. He was a student all his life, and laid by a vast fund of accurate information in history, philosophy, and science. A son of Dr. Baldwin's second wife died when four years old. By his first wife he had:

Mr. Johnson married again, and, as an auctioneer, has made a living in Kansas City, Platte City, and elsewhere.

V. RICHARD MENTOR JOHNSON (ii), b. July 31, 1836; m'd Nov. 27, 1856, Sallie A. Calvert, b. Nov. 22, 1837; d. Nov. 22, 1892. Dick is a generous soul—pure, true, kind, and unselfish; and he has troops of friends. He was well-educated and had large experience as a merchant. With his brother, George, he engaged in merchandizing in Platte City. When George died, Richard retired to his farm on Bee Creek. This he sold, and removed to Belton, Mo., where he has twice been appointed postmaster. Ch:

VII. LAURA E. JOHNSON, b. March 10, 1846; m'd Jan. 28, 1864, Richard N. Harrington, b. in Platte July 24, 1837. Laura was a beautiful girl, and is now a handsome and matronly lady. Mr. Harrington was a son of Miles Harrington. (See.) He practiced law in Platte City for some years, and then retired to his wife's Bee Creek farm and engaged in milling. April 8, 1873, he sold the mill and farm to Isaac C. Packer, and removed to Kansas City, where he engaged in several pursuits, unsuccessfully. In October, 1888, he came to Platte City, and erected a pleasant dwelling. This was sold, and at Dearborn he started the Democrat, which he published until his death. He was appointed postmaster at Dearborn in November, 1893, and his son succeeded him. Mr. Harrington was a superior rhetorician, but lacked in logic. He was a fine writer of sketches, and delighted in display; but surrendered all other principles to his Democratic politics. In society he was an urbane gentleman, and a generous and true friend. He died Nov. 22, 1896. Ch:

In April, 1890, he purchased the Plattsburg Jeffersonian, which he made one of the leading Democratic papers of the State. In October, 1894, he sold out and went west.

THE PARKVILLE & G. R. RAILROAD CO.,

Having been organized, let out to Matton, Messer & Co., the contract to do the grading of their road from Parkville to Cameron. A large portion of the work was done, and in January, 1861, the contractors failed. The county court took $200,000 stock in the company, and issued $125,000 in 10 per cent bonds. Afterwards the other $75,000 was issued by Judge Aller. These sums, with compound interest, when funded, constituted three-fourths of our county debt. Many farmers on the route of the road subscribed from $100 to $500, which they were afterwards compelled to pay.

THE SONS OF MALTA.

This year will be remembered as the era of the Sons of Malta. At Platte City all the leading men were members of the order. Lodges were formed everywhere. The initiations and orgies called out crowds. The candidate was subjected to a severe examination, and a false and ludicrous interpretation was placed on his answers. He was blindfolded, dressed as a harlequin, placed in ludicrous attitudes, of which he was unconscious, and made, by implication, to confess a thousand delinquencies and crimes, all of which he was told were "recorded" in the proceedings. Judge Norton was Holy Commander, R. N. Harrington secretary, and Wm. E. Oliver personated Death, lying in a coffin, with flour rubbed upon his face to produce pallor, and pokeberry stains to indicate blood. While all others were convulsed with laughter, the candidate was sternly reproved for levity. When brought to light, before a large looking-glass, the candidate was told to "see himself as others see him"; the shouts of merriment were unrestrained, while the candidate divested himself of his burlesque costume. The candidate was sure to attend the next meeting, to laugh at what he had lately unwittingly passed through, while blindfolded. The order of the Sons of Malta soon exhausted its material, and ran out.

THE GOLDEN ERA

Of Platte County was the year 1859. Large crops of hemp sold at round prices. Negro traders paid fabulous prices for slaves. Money was never more abundant. Western explorations had opened new avenues for enterprise. Mules, oxen, and wagons were in demand for the West. The trade upon the plains demanded provisions and supplies. California emigrants had returned, with full pockets; and the growing cities of western Missouri and eastern Kansas offered ready markets for stock and provisions.

Society had improved. Prof. Todd's female school, with open parlors, had daily receptions. Prof. Gaylord's male academy inspired the youth to higher attainments. Camden Point had both male and female academies, and Prof. Vineyard, at Pleasant Ridge, prided himself upon the thorough education he imparted. Examinations and exhibitions gathered vast crowds, and picnics occurred weekly. The assessment of the year, $7,798,613.00 was the largest in our history. Lands were "rising rapidly."

Aug. 2—Wm. McGinnis is allowed $400 for making a 20-foot pavement of stone in front of the clerks' offices.

Aug. 20—Geo. P. Dorris advertises "cash for negroes to take south." He builds a dungeon on his farm to confine them.

An Atlas of this date is extant, published by W. H. Gist and N. D. Short, at Platte City, $2, No. 22, Vol. 3.

Aug. 24—St. John's Episcopal Church, at Weston, is consecrated.

OCTOBER.

Oct. 1—A party of Thos. Herndon's friends ask him to allow them to print, in pamphlet form, his poems. He gives consent, and the Atlas office sends forth the booklet of 16 pages, which is sold at 50 cents. The merits of Mr. Herndon's poems are the heroic violations of etymology, syntax, and prosody. It did one's heart good to hear him grandiloquently recite his verses, and satisfactorily show the drolleries and excellencies that no one else could discover.

Oct. 4—Henry Myers having died, Teter Myers administered. Bond, $14,000.

Oct. 11—The Second County Fair near Tracy commenced. High and well-constructed seats, well covered, extended half way around the circle, capable of seating 7,000 people. Parallel with the highest seat, a five-foot promenade, the full length of the seats, was constructed. Twenty-five dollars paid for a share, admitted one and his family to the grounds forever. The attendance of 1859 was perhaps the largest in the history of the fair. No drinking nor gambling was permitted, and the fair was a glorious reunion of a prosperous and happy people.

JUDGE WM. B. ALMOND.

March 4—Judge Wm. B. Almond died at Leavenworth and was buried at Platte City. He was born in Prince Edward's County, Va., October 25, 1808; graduated at Hampden-Sidney College in 1829; emigrated to Missouri, settled at Lexington, entered the store of Robert Aull as a clerk, visited the Rocky Mountains with William Sublette, in the employ of the Fur Company of St. Louis, and studied law with Judge Ryland. February 28, 1837, he married Bethenia Jack, the lovely and accomplished daughter of Capt. William Jack, who as early as 1821 kept the ferry at Lexington. She was born March 12, 1814; was tall, handsome, well educated, refined, fascinating in her manners, a zealous Cumberland Presbyterian, and a devotee to music. The newly wedded pair came to Platte, when a wilderness, and settled on the Buchanan line, where I first met them in 1839. Though both were raised in affluence, they accommodated themselves to circumstances and lived as pioneers. After making their homes in various places in Platte and Buchanan, they finally settled, about 1846, in Platte City. In 1849 he was among the foremost emigrants across the plains and mountains to California. Here, through the influence of his friend, Gov. Peter H. Burnett (see), he was appointed a territorial judge, at San Francisco. His court did an immense business, and his name was on all lips. He returned from the Golden Gate with some $15,000, and purchased a half interest in the mills and water-power at Platte City. In August, 1851, he was elected circuit judge, to succeed S. L. Leonard. In June, 1857, he removed to Topeka, and thence to Leavenworth, leaving his family in Platte City. He died, as stated, at Leavenworth March 4, 1860. His wife survived him, living at Platte City until the close of the war, and the marriage of most of her children, when she broke up housekeeping, and lived with her children. She died at St. Joseph August 15, 1885. She lies beside her husband, her father, and her mother, in the Platte City cemetery. A beautiful monument at the group of graves records the virtues of the dead. But not a living descendant of Judge Almond now resides in Platte.

I knew Judge Almond and his wife intimately. He was my partner in the Platte City Mills for years. His classical education, Western adventures, social temperament, and varied experience supplied him with a fund of useful information and anecdote that made him a charming companion. He possessed genius, rather than talent. He was a brilliant orator, understood mankind, was quick to discover the weak and strong points of his adversary, and ready to take advantage of every opportunity. His liberality was unbounded, and he left to his family nothing but native brilliance of intellect, accomplishments of education, and the galvanism of beauty, enhanced by the charms of music. His five daughters, four of whom yet live, formed a bevy of lovely women I have never seen surpassed. Ch:

JULY.

A half-inch of rain fell to-day, the first since April. It came too late to do good, and was not followed by other rains. Not one-fourth of the corn planted came up. It sold for $1 per bushel. Wheat turned out almost a failure. But from the large crop of 1859 we had enough to send supplies to Kansas. This was the second famine year. To starvation was added a financial crisis, that broke up thousands. Two per cent per month was often paid for money.

THE KUYKENDALLS

Came from Holland. Richmond Kuykendall settled in York County, S. C. He was born in 1768, and was a son of the emigrant who died of a wound received at King's Mountain, while fighting for his adopted country. The Tories burned his widow's home and property, and she died of a broken heart. The orphan, Richmond, was adopted in a family that brought him with Boone to Kentucky. They settled in Barren County, Ky. Here Richmond married, and here James Kuykendall was born December 25, 1795, and married September 5, 1820, Celia Thompson, born December 6, 1803; died March 9, 1869. After residing for some years in Garrard County, Ky., James Kuykendall and family came, in 1832, to Clay County, Mo., and were among the earliest to cross over into Platte. In August, 1840, he was elected a county court justice. April 17, 1846, he purchased 160 acres of land near Tracy, at $5 per acre. In 1844 he was elected sheriff. In 1849 he was county treasurer, and at the election in August, 1849, he was chosen our first probate judge. At the end of his term, in 1854, the family removed to Kansas, and settled near Topeka. He was a member of the second Legislative Assembly of Kansas, chairman of the board of commissioners for Jackson County, and a member of the first Constitutional Convention, that passed what was known as the Leecompton Constitution. Judge Kuykendall possessed an iron will, decision of character, moral courage, and self-reliance. He had no counsellor, but depended on his own sound judgment. He belonged to no society, never used flattery or fawning, and yet he was one of the most popular men of his day. Tall, brawny, and angular in his features, he commanded respect rather than love. He was no orator, and was blunt and arbitrary. His education was limited, but he derived his power from native common sense. Ch:

Aug. 31—Gen. Frémont issues his proclamation confiscating all property of rebels, and emancipating their slaves, in Missouri. This was qualified by the President, so as to apply only to such as thereafter might take up arms, or should give aid and comfort to the enemies of the United States.

SEPTEMBER.

Sept. 1—The Mechanics' Bank at Weston, deeming it unsafe to keep their gold, amounting to $125,000, sent it to the parent bank, at St. Louis, in charge of directors Thos. Beaumont, S. P. S. McCurdy and W. M. Paxton. We went by St. Joseph and Macon. McCurdy was "boozy" and gave no attention. While we were in St. Louis, Gen Frémont declared the city and State under martial law. The feeling on both sides was intense. Soldiers were posted in all parts of the city. We had much trouble to get passes to leave. Prior to this time secession was freely discussed; but from this day no one dared to declare his sentiments.

The Liberty bank also sent its gold, in charge of Adkins, Moss, and Field, directors.

From this time the banks not only refused to redeem their currency, but granted no more favors. Though the Weston bank had $150,000 outstanding notes, and the Liberty bank had loaned $17,000 to Platte County customers, yet neither bank lost one cent on a discounted note. I was agent for both banks at Platte City.

Sept. 3—Barclay, Coppac, and 18 others are killed by rebels at Platte River bridge, in Buchanan.

St. Joseph is occupied by rebels.

Sept. 11—Part of Col. J. H. Winston's command starts for Lexington.

COL. SMITH AND THE PLATTE CITY STAMPEDE.

Sept. 16—Col. R. P. Smith, of the 16th Illinois Infantry, leaves St. Joseph with a detachment of 300 men and one cannon, for Lexington, to support Mulligan. About 3 o'clock, the advance approached Platte City. Silas Gordon and his lieutenant, Black Triplett, went out to the steam saw-mill, on the turnpike, to meet them. From covert, they fired on the advance, when 400 yards distant, and a physician of St. Joseph fell with a ball in his forehead. The main force came up, and with their cannon fired three shots upon the town. Throughout the afternoon Capt. Carr was busy in the streets of Platte City, trying to organize a motley crowd to go to Hulett's Bottom, on the east side of the Platte, and from ambush fire upon the Federals as they passed on the opposite side. I stood in my office door, on Main Street, and noted proceedings. About 70 men and boys, armed with shot-guns, muskets, rifles, and pistols, were in line to be supplied with ammunition. A horseman galloped up and announced: "The Federals are crossing the bridge!" This was untrue, but the stampede that followed was sublime. It was the most precipitate retreat known to history. In one minute the street was clear; and men, women, and children deserted their homes and hastened to the country. This occurred at 4 p. m. An hour later the Federals fired on the town. No damage was done, but the report of cannon hastened the stampede. The people snatched their valuable property and bore it away. Corn-shocks were the beds of many that night. About 5 p. m. I went home, and, after supper, went forth, and found every house vacant. A squad of Federal soldiers, in command of Capt. Wilson, took me prisoner. Only three men were found in town—Morrison, Zimmerman, and me. For our temerity we had to supply supper for the men. Capt. Wilson kindly went home with me, and I was glad to accept his protection for the night.

Sept. 17—Col. Smith and his men, after looting the town, departed east in the morning. The refugees returned, and loud were the lamentations, and fierce and profane were the denunciations, when each family found valuable articles missing. There were no others upon whom to wreak their vengeance, so we who had remained, and had preserved much property, were traduced.

DISFRANCHISEMENT.

From this date, all who had taken up arms against the United States were disfranchised.

THE GAMBLE OATH.

No one could vote without subscribing the following affidavit: "I do solemnly swear that I have not, since the 17th day of September, 1861, willfully taken up arms or levied war against the United States, nor against the provisional government of the State of Missouri." Subsequently the oath took an iron-clad form. (See "Oaths.")

The battles of Blue Mills and of Morristown.

FORAGING ON THE PEOPLE.

Sept. 20—From time to time Federal troops were sent to Weston and Platte City. The latter town was terribly disloyal, and suffered heavily. The soldiers foraged on the people. R. M. Gordon had 400 bushels of wheat, which was marketed for him. I was then the manager of the Platte City Water Mills, and was levied on by both parties. Silas Gordon took what he wanted. I find the following receipt among my worthless papers: "Nov. 20, 1861, received of W. M. Paxton 5,570 pounds of flour at 3 cents, $167.00; 10 bushels meal at 40 cents, $4.00. (Signed) A. C. Miller, Quartermaster 4th Div., Mo. Vols." On the 23d of November I furnished under duress to the United States 2,000 pounds of hay, $10; 10 bushels of corn at 25 cents, $2.50; 8 cords of wood, at $2.25, $18. These accounts were only waste paper.

Troops, both Northern and Southern, are gathering at Lexington. Half of Winston's regiment are there.

Sept. 21—Col. Mulligan, at Lexington, surrenders, and his men are paroled. Ross, Jack, Link, Moore, and Todd, Southern men from Platte, are among the wounded. As the paroled Federal soldiers return to their homes, they are sometimes treated with indignity. At Platte City several were denied food; but they were speedily supplied by more humane citizens.

Sept. 25—General Ben M. Prentiss is in command at St. Joseph.

OCTOBER.

Oct. 8—D. R. Anthony is provost-marshal at Kansas City.

R P. Clark having been appointed probate judge, in the place of H. C. Cockrill, holds the October term. No probate court was held in January, 1862. Judge S. A. Gilbert holds the April term, 1862. I presume that Clark refused to take the oath, and his office was vacated, so that Gilbert could succeed.

Oct. 16—The Constitutional Convention passed the Ousting Ordinance, requiring the iron-clad oath of all officers, and vacating the offices of such as failed to comply.

Oct. 18—Baldwin Bane having died, R. D. Johnston administers. Bond, $10,000.

THE BANE FAMILY.

Four brothers came to Platte in 1838, from Lewis County, Ky. They possessed wealth, enterprise, probity, and influence.

I. JOHN BANE, was full of energy, and accumulated wealth, which he left to his widow, Mary Bane. At her death, a large body of land was sold, and the proceeds were distributed to his and her collateral kindred. The will of John Bane gave his estate to his wife, for life, and remainder, half to his heirs, and half to hers. In 1833, when Mrs. Bane died, the beneficiaries constituted a host. Mr. Bane died in June, 1871. He had large experience as a mate on steamboats, and when the Haidee was purchased by Platte City parties, he was employed as mate.

He was an intelligent and interesting talker, and displayed spirit and vivacity. But he became deranged, and in August, 1861, Dr. A. T. Guthrie was appointed his guardian. He was sent to the Lunatic Asylum, and on his return became quiet and silent. He came west in 1843, and settled on the farm where he died. Ch:

JAMES SYNNAMON'S COMPANY OF CONFEDERATES.

This month 82 enlisted. Confederates were sworn in by R. P. C. Wilson. Capt. Synnamon's company passed through 24 battles, besides many skirmishes. He himself is covered with wounds: 1st, at Corinth; 2d, at Port Gibson; 3d, at Vicksburg; 4th, at Franklin, where he was captured and held prisoner until the dawn of peace. Of the 82 men, 40 fell in battle, or by disease, before the war ended, and 34 others were wounded in battle. We will give, in alphabetical order, a few of the names and their fates:

21. John B. Slone, wounded at Corinth, captured at Vicksburg, and imprisoned to the end.

Oct. 22—Battle of the Blue.

NOVEMBER.

Nov. 1—Parties are growing rabid. M. L. Young, Elias Barbee and other Southern men seize Judge Birch and S. A. Gilbert and other Union men, and post them off under guard, to Gen. Price's army. They are sent back unharmed.

Federal soldiers are stationed at Weston and Platte City. The toll-gate books show that this month 460 cavalry soldiers passed between Weston and Platte City. A. C. Miller was quartermaster of the 4th Division, with headquarters at Weston.

The State and county officers, generally, refuse to take the oath, and new ones are appointed.

Nov. 11—Gen. Halleck succeeds Gen. Frémont, in command at St. Louis.

Gov. Jackson's Legislature, in session in southwestern Missouri, passes an ordinance of Secession.

Nov. 12—The Department of Kansas is created, and Gen.

Hunter is placed in command at Fort Leavenworth. He arrived at his post the 25th.

Nov. 17—The Liberty bank has been discounting liberally, but now will take no paper.

Nov. 18—Mrs. Sarah H. Callahan died.

DR. H. B. CALLAHAN

Was born in Fleming County, Ky., July 16, 1821. After receiving his diploma from the Cincinnati Medical College, he located in Platte City, about 1843. A year later, he married Sarah H. Metcalfe, born May 14, 1825, and died November 18, 1861, buried in Platte City. She was a beautiful and lovely woman. Her parents were Alfred and Mary Metcalfe, a name honored and revered throughout the West. Dr. Callahan and I became partners, first in the mercantile line in Platte City, in 1850, and in 1853 we bought, for $15,000, a half interest in the Platte City Water Mills. January 1, 1858, Dr. Callahan withdrew from the firm, and took dry goods as his share. He settled at Leavenworth, but his Southern blood would not permit him to remain there, and he removed, temporarily, to Cincinnati; but found no rest until the war ended. After spending several years in Platte City, he returned to Leavenworth, and while he lived, stood at the head of his profession. He was a man of truth and integrity. His greatest failing was that he would not collect his dues. He died in 1896 and was buried at Platte City.

- I. HENRY T. CALLAHAN (TOBE), b. May 7, 1845; m'd March 6, 1866, Kate Chesnut, b. Aug. 27, 1853. He was a man of courage, nerve, and chivalry. He was killed, perhaps murdered, Jan. 18, 1874. The culprit escaped. In a poem dedicated to his honor, I wrote:

I knew him when a sprightly child,
And met him daily in his youth.
He proved impulsive, bold, and wild,
But strict in friendship, love, and truth.
A bitter foe and genial friend,
He gave no insult, brooked no slight—
Would readily his wrongs amend,
And sought to know and do the right.

1. Lora Callahan, b. June 24, 1867.

2. Mittie H. Callahan, b. Sept. 16, 1869; m'd Nov. 11, 1891.

Mrs. Kate Callahan m'd 2d, Oct. 19, 1875, G. F. Clemings.
Ch: 1, H. Smith Clemings, b. April 23, 1878.

- II. PICKETT CALLAHAN, b. Aug. 18, 1849.

- III. ELIZABETH CALLAHAN, b. Oct. 12, 1851.

- IV. ALFRED M. CALLAHAN, b. May 5, 1854. He is a merchant in Leavenworth, and has a family.

V. MARY, b. May 7, 1857; m'd G. W. Early.

VI. WM. PAXTON CALLAHAN, b. March 2, 1859 (my 40th birthday).

Nov. 25—Circuit court met, and Judge Woodson continued all the cases, and adjourned. The prior March and June terms were likewise adjourned, with little business done.

Nov. 30—Gen. Hunter sent a squad of soldiers from Fort Leavenworth to apprehend Dr. Thos. Beaumont, Jacob Cox, Jos. Nower, Thos. Stockwell, and others, residing near New Market, on account of their Southern sympathies. With the soldiers came a lot of "Red-legs" and thieves, who helped themselves to horses, carriages, and every valuable they could find. The military permitted the outlaws to steal without hindrance. The prisoners were kept on parole for two weeks, and then discharged.

J. P. Grubb succeeds Thoroughman as circuit attorney.

DECEMBER.

Dec. 1—Gen. Hunter issued an order to J. R. Burekhardt, R. P. Clark, Clinton Cockrill, W. M. Paxton, and two others, not remembered, to deliver Silas Gordon to him, or to drive him from the country, within a limited time, or he would lay waste Platte County, burn every house, and liberate every slave. This order produced consternation, and Gordon and part of his company were prevailed on to leave for the South. Mr. Burekhardt, Mr. Cockrill, and I went to the Fort to make our report. We found Gen. Hunter a large, dark, frowning man, with bulldog features, profane and ungentlemanly. He made threats to remove all slaves from our county. I suggested that he had no power, under the Constitution, to do so. His reply was: "Damn the Constitution!"

MAJ. JOSEPH,

With some two hundred soldiers, was stationed at Platte City, early in November. The county was infested with small bands of bushwhackers, and danger threatened the Federals at all times. They foraged on the people, who were granted quartermaster receipts, which proved of little value. After a few weeks, Maj. Joseph left with his cannon and camp-equipage for Weston. The bushwhackers learned of his movements, and gathered, under Capt. Carr, in ambush on the south side of the road, east of Bee Creek. As the Federals approached, they were fired on, and two were killed, and others wounded. Maj. Joseph retired a hundred yards, and, with his cannon, opened on the bushwhackers, who withdrew with little damage. For years the marks of the grape-shot could be seen on the trees. There is a sequel to this stratagem, in the tragedy that soon followed, in the death, at the same place, of Triplett and Close.

THE RECORDS.

Silas Gordon was still at Platte City with a few of his men, who camped on the public square. He took the records of the circuit and county courts, and subsequently of the probate court, and hid them some four miles west of Platte City. The purpose was to prevent all further legal proceedings and collections of debt. They were afterwards restored by Col. Morgan.

Judge Silas Woodson comes to Platte City to hold court, but is warned by Si Gordon that if he attempts it, it will be at the risk of his life. The judge returns home.

OBED BROWN (ii).

Dec. 3—Obed Brown (ii) and Silas Gordon were friends, but Brown was drunk. In the middle of Main Street, Gordon was standing with the breech of his musket resting on the ground Brown worried Gordon with his drunken talk, and Gordon pushed the barrel of the musket against Brown's head. The latter staggered and went off to a shed and lay down. A fire was built for his comfort, but in the morning he was unconscious, and died the 6th inst.

Obed Brown (ii) was a son of Obed Brown (i), and was a man of sound judgment and an industrious, honest, and successful farmer. He married, in Indiana, in 1832, Eliza Grover, daughter of the Indian missionary, Joel Grover. She was a sister of Levina Whittock and of the distinguished D. A. N. Grover, of Kansas. She was born September 13, 1815, and died at Kansas City May 10, 1893. Ch:

- IX. DAN BROWN, m'd June 13, 1883, Sallie Crain. Live at the old Brown homestead, on Wildcat Creek; 3 children.

Dec. 15—Dr. E. W. Brown, oculist, of Platte City, and an outspoken Secessionist, refused to take the required oath; and after months of imprisonment, his property was confiscated. He was released and went to St. Joseph, where he died. He left a son, Warren Brown.

PLATTE CITY BURNED.

Dec. 16—Col. Morgan, now stationed at Weston, came to Platte City about 4 p. m. with 75 men. A squad was sent to the house of Mrs. Celia Kuykendall, two miles north of Platte City, where they captured William L. Kuykendall, Black Triplett, and Gabriel Close, who were bound and brought to Platte City.

After supper, apprehending some calamity, I went to Col. Morgan's headquarters, at the Fleshman House. Col. Morgan was excited, and ordered a soldier to summon forthwith the officers of his command. The meeting was in secret, but I presume the death of two of the prisoners was determined on in retaliation for the two Federals killed at Bee Creek, and also the burning of Platte City was ordered. As I returned home, I observed the soldiers had built a large fire in the rear of the Baptist Church, near the center of block 29. I could not sleep for apprehensions of danger, and about 12 o'clock I discovered the town was afire. It had started in a store on Lot 3, Block 29. No alarm had been given, and not a dozen citizens were on hand. Col. Morgan's men were drawn up east of the crossing of Main and Third streets. The only brick house on the south side of Block 29 was that of Howell Jenkins. He had a solid brick wall, firewalls and tin roof to his house, and by the free use of water he was saved. I organized a small lot of negroes, and gave my attention to the clerk's offices and the store-houses west of them. The latter were often on fire, but the flames were extinguished. We thought the fire had run its course, when a small flame appeared on the apex of the cupola, where the iron spire left it. I ran to Col. Morgan, who was excited. He denounced his men for burning the court-house, and exclaimed, "I told you the court-house must not be burned. Go and put it out." A half-dozen left. I suggested to Col. Morgan that he turn his cannon on the fire, and blow off the top of the cupola. The men laughed at my ignorance of military affairs. The men procured a ladder, and several of them went up into the cupola with buckets of water. A bucket thrown from the cupola struck my arm, and the pain was so intense that I went home. Col. Morgan's talk showed plainly that it was his intention to burn the town, but not the court-house. At least he so pretended.

In the morning Col. Morgan went with his men on a scouting expedition through the eastern part of the county, and returned about 3 p. m. Capt. Wm. Triplett, father of the prisoner, was in town, and asked the privilege of speaking to his son, who, with Kuykendall and Close, stood bound on the street. When I asked this privilege, the reply of Col. Morgan was: "Yes, God damn him! let him say now what he pleases, for he will never see him alive again."

TRIPLETT AND CLOSE SHOT.

Dec. 17—Col. Morgan, at 4 p. m., went with his men and prisoners to the Remington farm, on the road to Weston, and stayed until morning. The prisoners had their supper, and, as they sat on a log, an officer came and selected from the three Triplett and Close, and told them to go with him and several men in his charge. They were taken to the spot where two of Maj. Joseph's men had been killed. On the south side of the road, a hundred feet east of Bee Creek bridge, they were ordered to stand forth and be shot. Triplett stood and was shot, but Close ran into Bee Creek. His hands were bound, and he floundered in the mud. Just as he was rising on the opposite side of the creek, he was met by a soldier, who had crossed by the bridge, who plunged his bayonet through him several times, and left him dead in the mud.

Two days later I passed the scene of this tragedy, and saw the pool of Triplett's life-blood. Some one had, from his blood, written the letters "U. S." on the southwest corner of the bridge. This grim memento of the war was there for many years.

Dec. 20—Capt. Havens, of the 18th Missouri, came to Platte City, and remained a few weeks. He required national flags on all houses, and every man had to take the oath of allegiance to the United States.

THE RECORDS OF COURTS.

The removal and secretion of the records by Gordon and others was ground for the scheme of removing the county seat to Weston; and in furtherance of the plan I was served with a written order, from Col. Morgan, to send the remaining books and papers to Weston. No wagon could be found, as every conveyance had been hid or removed. Thereupon, Col. Morgan sent me two Government wagons, which I filled with cases and old worthless papers. Part of these were returned.

FEBRUARY.

Feb. 1—Col. Doubleday, of an Ohio cavalry regiment, with six companies of his men, came to Platte City in December, and left in March, 1862. He was himself a polished gentleman, and his officers and men were well-behaved. They made their quarters in the Dorris and the Tebbs residences. Perfect quiet reigned during their stay, but many deaths from disease among the soldiers produced uneasiness. I have the names of ten that died, with the date of death, and the company to which each belonged. They were buried in our cemetery, but some were removed.

THE GUERRILLA PARKER AT LIBERTY.

March 20—Greenup Bird, cashier of the bank at Liberty, under this date, writes to me:

"Some time since, Lieut. Lankford, of Cameron, established a recruiting office here, and, after enlisting some 15 men, left for Cameron to bring more troops. On Friday last, in Lieut. Lankford's absence, about 1 p. m., our town was surprised by the entry of 25 or 30 guerrillas, with Parker, of Jackson County notoriety, at their head. Three of them reined up on horseback before the bank door, and questioned me about the whereabouts of the Federals, and how many there were, at the same time presenting pistols at me. Grimshaw, one of the recruits, surrendered; but they shot him through the neck, and left him as dead. But he has revived, and may live. We then closed the bank, and the guerrillas commenced firing in the street. This was kept up some two hours. I supposed they were shooting down every Union man in town, but I now think they were after the recruits only. Ten of the recruits took refuge in an old frame, near the livery stable, with only nine guns. Parker, after firing at the shed for some time from behind houses, sent the recruits a flag of truce, threatening to burn the shed unless they surrendered. They surrendered, and were marched out of town with the United States flag from the court-house trailing in the mud. Col. Catherwood, with part of his command, reached here the next morning, at daybreak; but Parker and his prisoners were gone."

March 22—Defense warrants are worth 75 cents.

On one occasion, he was pursuing a guerrilla, at a breakneck speed, when the pursued leaned back in his saddle, and with his revolver shot back overhead at the pursuer. The ball struck the horse Davis was riding in the forehead, and he immediately died. Davis had a dangerous plunge, but was not hurt. Hurlbut of the Revolutionary War. He removed to Virginia, where he married, and the family came to Platte in 1841, settling four miles east of Platte City. Mr. Hurlbut was a peculiar man. He was 6 feet 2 inches high, and stood erect in soldier-like dignity. He had nothing to say socially, and his sentences seldom exceeded three words. He made no effort to secure friends. His wife was like him, and no company ever entered their house. Cheese was their staple product, and Mr. Hurlbut often brought to market wild pigeons, when no one else thought there was a pigeon in the State. He caught them in some way in a large net. His cheese was tough and poor, but he supplied Platte City for years, with small cakes, at ten cents a pound, until we all got to like "Hurlbut's cheese." Their only child was:

- I. CHESTER HURLBUT, who m'd Nov. 13, 1864, Laura A. Swaney, dr. of John. She is a lady of culture, and has published in the papers several continued stories, which were much admired. They live in Kansas; 7 children.

At the battle of Shiloh one-third of Company K were killed or wounded. Capt. Price himself was one of the latter. With a view of raising a new regiment, Maj. Price resigned and proceeded to enlist men in Weston. In July, 1862, he had 800 men; and on organization he was made colonel, John Doniphan lieutenant-colonel, and John M. Clark major. The regiment was raised under the call of Governor Gamble for home protection, and consisted of Company A, Capt. W. T. Woods; Company B, Capt. Jas. M. Noland; Company C, Capt. W. J. Fitzgerald; Company D, Capt. Chas. G. Peacock; Company E, Capt. John H. Burt; Company F, Capt. Morton P. Moore; Company G, Capt. Charles Guenther; Company H, Capt. Samuel J. Miller. This regiment was known as the 39th, and kept good order in the county until disbanded, November 1, 1863. Thenceforth, until the organization of the "Pawpaws," we were the prey of predatory bands of outlaws, who robbed and hung our people at their pleasure.

He married, in Kentucky, second, August 29, 1841, Sarepta Graham, born January 17, 1811, and died March 25, 1896. She lived with her dutiful children after her husband's death. She read much, and kept informed of the religious and political news of the day. Some years ago, her hip was dislocated by a fall from a wagon, and she had to use crutches. The Barbees are a distinguished family in Virginia and Kentucky. In my youth, I was well acquainted with Joshua Barbee and his family, of Danville, Ky. Joshua was an uncle of Elias Barbee (ii). ## JANUARY.

THE SITUATION.

Jan. 1—The year 1863 was shadowed by clouds without a shaft of sunshine. The bloody banner of internecine strife waved angrily over the land. Every available soldier had gone to the front, or was skulking in Northern States. At home we were disarmed, and left a prey to marauding outlaws. Prowling murderers, by day, dressed in Federal uniform and bearing forged military orders, searched houses, barns, and stables for arms; and at night returned as “Red-legs” to rob and hang the people. The militia were active in suppressing “bushwhackers,” but gave themselves no concern about thieves and murderers. I administered on three persons who were murdered by “Red-legs.” In September the “Pawpaws” were organized by Col. James H. Moss. No “Red-legs” thenceforth troubled us. For a time we had peace and security. But Calhoun Thornton commenced recruiting for the South, corrupted the militia, and “bushwhackers” became as dangerous as the “Red-legs” had been. The sequel will show the disastrous end of Thornton’s work. Courts did little or nothing. Hog cholera prevailed, but the season was propitious.

EMANCIPATION.

President Lincoln issued his second proclamation liberating slaves in all parts of the United States in open rebellion. The State of Missouri was not included, but in a short time the fourteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution was ratified, and it put an end to slavery throughout the Union.

The first snow of the winter fell to-day.

ELDER AUG. H. F. PAYNE.

June 14—Elder Aug. H. F. Payne died by the hand of an assassin. He often peached in Platte City to the Christian Church, and was greatly beloved. We will give his lineage:

- I. EDWARD PAYNE, of Virginia. His son,
- II. WILLIAM PAYNE, born near Lexington, Ky., March 21, 1775; married Millie Harrison. He was a minister of the Baptist Church, and was known as "Parson Payne." He removed to Mason County, Ky., where, in my childhood, I often visited his family. His son,
- III. AUGUSTUS H. F. PAYNE, was born in Mason Co., Ky., April 4, 1807. He married May 20, 1825, Mary Morris, born December 25, 1805, daughter of Joseph and Nancy Morris. He was ordained an elder at Mayslick, and after preaching in Kentucky, came, in 1836, to Clay, and thence to Clinton, where he was killed. His Southern blood was the excuse for his murder. Children of A. H. F. Payne:
  - I. JOS. H. PAYNE, b. March 13, 1835.
  - II. ANNIE PAYNE, b. Dec. 11, 1834. She is now the wife of Hon. William Bland, of Clinton County.
  - III. M. LUELLA PAYNE, b. March 26, 1839; d. in Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 27, 1892. She was a laborious deaconess among the Christian churches of western Missouri. For fourteen years she was secretary of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, and her earnestness in the Master's cause called forth the commendations of God's people. With pen, as well as tongue, she led in every Christian enterprise. When her father was murdered, she published an exposure of the crime.

IV. MARY E. PAYNE, b. May 30, 1841.

V. JOHN W. PAYNE, b. Oct. 17, 1844.

VI. VIRGINIA W. PAYNE, b. Oct. 5, 1846; m'd Lendas Duval, of Richmond, Mo. I have lately been in correspondence with Mrs. Duval. Her letters show a noble Christian woman. She and her sisters were educated at Prof. H. B. Todd's Academy, in Platte City.

AUGUST.

Aug. 21—The sack of Lawrence by Quantrell. It is said 150 persons were killed.

Aug. 25—Gen. Ewing issues his famous Order No. 11.

Aug 26—The indignation in Kansas over the Quantrell raid is intense, and we are charged as accessory to the crimes committed. The "Red-leg" dogs-of-murder are turned loose. The border is infested with prowling thieves and assassins. The alarm in Platte is universal. We inquire every morning into the outrages committed the previous night. On one occasion a large force was organized at Leavenworth to come over and burn Platte City, but the military authorities at Fort Leavenworth interfered. It had been reported that Platte City had indorsed Quantrell.

JOHN BRYANT.

Aug. 31—John Bryant having died, his widow, Mary, administered. Bond, $1,200. He was born in Fauquier County, Va., in 1790, and died in Platte August 8, 1863; he removed to Pennsylvania, where, in 1812, he married Sarah McCalister, who was born in 1795, daughter of James McCalister, a wealthy Scotchman.

Mr. Bryant removed to Ohio in 1827, to Illinois in 1835, and to Platte in 1837. He made the first settlement in the prairie west of Todd's Creek. He erected a public house for the entertainment of travelers, at the junction of the roads from Barry and from Liberty on the direct route to Martinsville. He was a son of William Bryant, an emigrant from Ireland, and of Sarah McGill, daughter of John, of Virginia. John Bryant's second wife was Mary, the divorced wife of Samuel C. Bowers, and her father was Michael Dougherty. Both of Mr. Bryant's wives were women of remarkable intelligence, vivacity, and beauty. Mr. Bryant was a man of large experience and general information. He was a blacksmith by trade, and kept a shop at his home. He was an agreeable gentleman and an entertaining conversationalist. He possessed moderate wealth; but, being one of the sureties on the sheriff's bond of W. H. Spratt, he was broken up. Children by his first wife:

- I. MARY ANN BRYANT, m'd Judge Geo. Bennett, of Ohio; living.
- II. CARO. BRYANT, m'd a Kelsey, of Ohio; living.
- III. WM. K. BRYANT, b. in 1820, in Pennsylvania; came with his father to Platte in 1837; was in Government employment at Council Bluffs for several years. He went with Gen. Dorris, in 1850, to California, in command of a train of wagons laden with merchandise. From 1856 to 1859 he was the head of the mercantile firm of Bryant, Waller & Co., of Platte City. In 1856, and again in 1858, he was elected sheriff of Platte, but was deposed by the Ousting Ordinance. He then went to Mississippi and engaged in buying and selling cotton; but in 1866 he died, as was supposed, by poison, administered by assassins, to secure his money. Little or nothing was recovered from his estate. Mr. Bryant was a perfect gentleman in his manners, and true and honorable in his deportment. His kind heart and genial temperament made him exceedingly popular. He never married.
- IV. ELIZA BRYANT, a lovely woman, b. May 15, 1827; m'd May 11, 1847, Wm. A. White, b. Sept. 7, 1825, in Estill Co., Ky.; d. in Kansas City Jan. 23, 1895. His father was Joel White, b. in Virginia in 1789, and came to Platte in 1843. His mother was Elizabeth Stites, b. in 1799. In 1879 Mr. White removed to Kansas City, where he died in 1895. Ch:

SEPTEMBER.

Sept. 1—Gen. S. R. Curtis is in command at Fort Leavenworth.

Sept. 5—The Argus went south, and was occasionally printed in camp, by the Wiseleys. There has been no paper in Weston, except the Sentinel. Harry Hutchinson resumes the publication of the Atlas, at Platte City. It is a small 5-column paper, and its tone is discreet—yet it is Democratic in politics, and leans to the South.

Howell Jenkins opens a drug store in Platte City.

Sept. 7—A public meeting at the court-house denounces Quantrell and secession.

JOSEPH KURTZ, SR.

Sept. 18—Toney Tinsley, having shown undue interest in behalf of the South, was hung by Federal soldiers near Barry.

THE "PAWPAWS."

Sept. 24—Col. Jas. H. Moss, of the 48th Enrolled Missouri Militia, by authority of the governor, proceeds to organize the 81st and 82d Enrolled Missouri Militia. The former, under Col. Scott, and the latter, under Col. Moss, are known as the "Paw-paws." John Doniphan was lieutenant-colonel of the 82d, and J. M. Clark was major. The several captains were as follows: Company "A," R. D. Johnson; Company "B," Isaac Simpson; Company "C," L. A. Ford; Company "D," W. T. Woods; Company "E," Thos. J. Wilson; Company "F," R. H. Bywaters; Company "G," Aaron F. Osborn; Company "H," C. B. Hodges; Company "I," John S. Thomason; Company "K," Geo. S. Story; Company "L," R. P. Clark; Company "M," Pres. Simpson.

THE SITUATION IN PLATTE.

Thieves and murderers were organized at Farley and Leavenworth, and excursions in Platte were made about three nights in the week. No arms nor ammunition were allowed the people. The law was powerless and the military were disinclined to give protection. In our extremity, it was thought advisable to ingratiate the authorities at Leavenworth. We supposed that they could stop the predatory bands organized on the west bank of the Missouri. Accordingly, G. W. Belt got up a petition, or invitation, to Mayor Anthony and other Union men of Leavenworth, to visit us, that they might form a personal acquaintance with us, and see our defenceless situation. They would learn our peaceful disposition, and put a stop to marauding bands. The invitation was signed by some fifty leading citizens. The 26th day of September was the date fixed for the visit, and the Christian church was thrown open for their reception.

SEPTEMBER 26, 1863, AT PLATTE CITY.

Sept. 26—The day was auspicious. The country people came to town in crowds. Our invited guests were expected at 10 a. m. G. W. Belt, R. D. Johnson, and I were selected to meet and welcome them. About 10 o'clock a company was seen approaching. Johnson and Belt could not procure horses, and I went alone. The company proved to be 19 men of Capt. Burt's militia. We rode through town and dismounted.

COL. J. H. MOSS APPEARS.

A little later Col. Moss, with Capt. Thomason's company of militia, arrived from Liberty. This was wholly unexpected.

They had brought arms and ammunition with them, and proceeded to enlist a new company for the 82d Regiment, Missouri State Militia. They made their headquarters opposite the Virginia Hotel, now the Central. The arms were at the east end of town, and there a company of men was hastily formed.

AT THE VIRGINIA HOTEL (CENTRAL).

In the meantime our guests arrived, and stopped at the Virginia, as had been arranged. Many of Col. J. A. Price's old soldiers were there, with Colonels Anthony and Clough. They were indignant at their reception, and had they been armed, trouble would have ensued. As it was, they contented themselves with cursing Col. Moss. A messenger was sent to the new recruits, at the east end of town, to join Col. Moss, opposite the Virginia Hotel, and the recruits marched down Main Street to the quarters of Col. Moss. Here they remained for the day. This parade incensed our guests the more, and an unsuccessful effort was made to get a military force from Leavenworth to drive off the intruders. But Moss showed his authority from the governor, and assured them he would not interfere with their proposed meeting.

THE MEETING AT THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

All preparations had been made to hold the meeting at the Christian church, and accordingly about 400 attended, as in duty bound, to hear the speakers invited for the occasion. Col. Anthony spoke of the evils of slavery, and advocated emancipation. It was kind in spirit, but the words of Colonels Burnes, Clough, and McCahon were full of gall. Col. Burnes had just been pardoned by the President for treason, of which he was convicted, and gratefully spoke to his new friends. The day passed off quietly, but much ill feeling was engendered. The new militia were said to be disloyal men, who had been hiding among the "pawpaws," and hence their name.

THE HANGING OF GREEN AND RAPP.

On the night of that memorable 26th of September a company of cut-throats met at the house of Jacob Fulcher, and hung him until he was unconscious. After robbing his house, they went to the house of John Rapp, robbed him, and hung him on a leaning tree. They then went to Tip Green's, and, after robbing his house, brought him to Rapp's, and hung him beside the dead body of Rapp. Two days later I was ordered, as public administrator, to take charge of Rapp's estate. The only valuable I found in his house was a twenty-dollar bill of Confederate money, lying on the floor. It was said that the possession of this money was the excuse for hanging him. I did not inventory the $20.

CAPT. JOHNSTON'S COMPANY.

This company was organized and equipped, and continued in active service until July 10, 1864, when one-half of them went over to Calhoun Thornton and followed him into the Confederate service. Yet, under their protection, we slept safely for ten months. Throughout the following winter and spring the emissaries of the South mingled freely with the men, and in some measure controlled the counsels of the officers.

R. P. CLARK'S COMPANY.

I was a member of this company. The rolls show that we were on duty 101 days. We were called out occasionally to guard Platte City. Thomason's company was in Clay, the others in Platte. But Johnston's company was the only one that was constantly on duty.

Major J. M. Clark, who yet lives in Clay, is a good man, and was a true officer. If Lieutenant-Colonel John Doniphan did anything, nobody knew it.

"RED-LEGS" DISPERSED.

Sept. 27—We have already seen the grim work of "Red-legs" on the night of the 26th, when Rapp and Green were hung. The next night they appeared in the vicinity of Hampton. They hung W. L. Brightwell into insensibility, to make him reveal where his money was hidden, robbed his house, went to L. Shepard's home, robbed it, and proceeded to Martin Baldwin's. After robbing him, they went to John Timberlake's. Here they were overtaken by Sergeants May and Park, with a squad of scouts sent out by Capt. Johnston, from Platte City, who fired on them and dispersed them so precipitately that they left their booty, including a number of horses. The Atlas of October 5th says: "Ten horses were brought into Platte City, the most of which have been proved and taken. Two of Fitzgerald's old company of militia came forward and proved their horses. Scouts have been sent out every night since, yet nothing further has been heard of 'Jayhawkers.' They have left to seek safety in Leavenworth."

JAMES REESE.

ENROLLMENT.

Sept. 30—Col. Moss, by E. H. Norton, acting adjutant, gives notice to "all able-bodied male citizens of Platte over 18 years and under 45," to report their names for enrollment to Maj. John M. Clark, at Platte City, Mo., on or before the 7th day of October, 1863.

OCTOBER.

THE SITUATION.

Oct. 1—The Radicals are intensely indignant at the reign of the "Pawpaws" in Platte, and charge them with disloyalty. Col. Moss, in a letter to Lieutenant-Governor Hall, defends them, and vouches for their fidelity to the Union cause. The Sentinel and the Atlas commend the new militia. The thieves of Leavenworth are disappointed, and submit with a growl. Their loyalty aside, there can be no doubt the "Pawpaws" saved Platte County from thieves and murderers, who would soon have depopulated it. Hundreds of families had left, and many more were preparing to go. Many went to the Southern Army for safety.

Oct. 5—Col. Jennison spoke in Weston, and was followed by Col. J. N. Burnes, in a speech so radical that Jennison discarded it.

BUSINESS REVIVES IN PLATTE CITY.

Oct. 30—The "Pawpaws" have possession of the county, and the "Jayhawkers" and "Red-legs" find their occupation gone. Stephen Johnston (ii), John Zarn, Perry Keith, and Fred Krause resume business, and Howell Jenkins adds a dry goods department to his drug store.

The Atlas advertises 25 sheriff sales.

NOVEMBER.

Nov. 1—This was an off year, yet a full Supreme Court was elected. It was the first voting done by ballot in Missouri. The Radicals secured their first victory, by the election of Bates, Bay, and Dryden to the supreme bench. State elections henceforth are held in November.

Nov. 4—Jesse Williamson having died, C. Widener administers.

After her husband's death, Mrs. Sallie Hughes brought her family to Howard County, Mo., and thence came to Platte, in 1837. They settled five miles north of Platte City. Ch:

He was a son of John Morin and Sarah Fishback, of Culpeper County, Va. Maj. Jesse Morin was a man of native intellect and superior education. Essentially military in his nature, he was stern and imperative. He was born to command and lead. After residing for some years in Howard County, he came with a large colony to Platte, in 1837, and settled on the quarter-section lying east of that on which Martinsville was situated, and now the home farm of Judge Norton. This he sold, and then bought a farm near Settle. After the war, he came to Platte City. He was our first representative, elected when Platte was attached to Clay. He became the first circuit clerk, upon the organization of the county, in 1839; and was elected for a second term. He was register of the land office at Fort Scott; was a straight-out Democrat and hostile to all opponents. He raised a company for the Mexican War, and became major of Col. A. W. Doniphan's regiment. His personal courage and moral firmness gave him power and influence. He was not an orator, but his arguments were pointed, and his words were generally obeyed. He had many enemies, whom he allowed no quarter. He opposed secession until war was inevitable. Gov. Jackson appointed him a brigadier general. He at first accepted the office, but, on due reflection, declined it. In 1862 he was deputy sheriff under W. T. Woods, and did all the business east of Platte River. Mrs. Morin was a mild and complacent woman, the very opposite of her husband in disposition. Ch:

JUDGE HENRY B. MAYO.

Jan. 18—Judge Henry B. Mayo having died, his son, H. J. Mayo, administered. Bond, $10,000. He lived near Ridgely. He came, about 1841, from Kentucky. He was an enthusiastic Methodist, and a pillar of the church at Ridgely. He was a noble specimen of a generous, kind-hearted Southern gentleman. In August, 1844, he was elected county judge, and served a term, with Lewis and Freeland as his associates. His children were well educated and highly esteemed. He married Margaret McGuire. Ch:

Mr. Mayo was a man of good education and, in some respects, remarkable brilliance. He wrote and published some excellent poems. But he was addicted to the cup. Ah! here, you say, was snatched away
 A mother sorely needed:
 Her children's cries, you think, will rise,
 And tears will fall unheeded:
 But winds are mild that fan the child
 Bereft of loving mother;
 And orphans find the world as kind
 To them as any other.

The steamer Magers is making regular trips between Kansas City and Weston, laden chiefly with railroad iron.
Abundant rain.

THE "BORDER TIMES."

Feb. 13—The first number appears at $1.50. It is edited by a committee of Union men, and published by Harry Howard. It advocates union, liberty, and equality, opposes secession and rebellion, sustains the war for the Union, and approves of the emancipation of slaves. A. G. Beller is the active and responsible editor, and, by his courage and independence in sustaining the cause of freedom, displayed marked ability. While Mr. Beller conscientiously believed in the negro's equality with the white man under the law, he recognized their disparity in society; while he insisted upon the prosecution of the war for the Union, he deprecated extreme measures and condemned inhumanity.

March 3—A. F. Cox issues the first number of the Platte County Sentinel at Platte City. It contains 63 sheriff sales.

March 4—William C. Wells leaves New Market, and makes his permanent home at Platte City.

Some ministers declared that they could not, in conscience, take such an oath, and in many places much trouble followed.

Alexander McAlexander having died, F. M. McAlexander administered. Bond, $1,600.

March 8—The county court (Layton) refuses to issue the remaining bonds subscribed to the Parkville & G. R. Railroad Company.

The store of F. M. Tufts and F. L. Miller having been robbed, as was charged, by bushwhackers, the loss was taxed on the disloyal farmers residing near New Market, and J. L. Dodson, J. B. Dean, G. W. Anderson, I. T. Lewis, and Rufus Maget were required to pay the damage.

CALHOUN THORNTON.

March 22—It is becoming daily more evident that emissaries from the South are recruiting in Platte County, and that the "Pawpaws" are disloyal. Small bands of bushwhackers manifest themselves at one place to-day and at another to-morrow. They operate where they are known, and some offense against Union men compromises them, so that they have to enlist in the Southern army for safety. The "Pawpaws" generally fell into the snare, and when danger threatened, they had to go south. Thornton was the active spirit in tempting the youth of our county.

JOHN AND SAMUEL WINSTON.

Early in March Capt. Lewis A. Ford, commanding at Parkville, sent a squad of soldiers into the Winston neighborhood, and Capt. Samuel Winston was arrested. He was an officer of the Southern army, and was placed under a $25,000 bond for his good conduct. Inquiry and search were made, without avail, for his brother, Col. John H. Winston, and it was given out that he was not in the county; but in truth Col. Winston was at home, under orders from Gen. S. Price, to recruit a regiment from north-western Missouri. His policy was to foment discontent in the militia, and to get them to manifest disloyalty, so that they would have to find safety by going South. Col. Winston, fearing arrest and the summary justice dealt out to spies, dressed in the uniform of a Confederate colonel.

On the 22d of March a squad of United States troops passed through Platte City, going east, and in an hour returned with Col. Winston as their prisoner. They had found him at his home, in his uniform, covered by a bed. He was confined in military prisons until the close of the war. His brother Samuel shared his fate. They were in constant apprehension of death, until the return of peace.

April 14—Bushwhackers attempted to make a raid upon Parkville, but Capt. Luthy held them at bay.

Leavenworth wagons still cross and take back wood; but St. Gordon appears, and takes from John Jordan his wagon and team. There was no more stealing.

April 16—The business part of Plattsburg is burned. Loss, $100,000.

J. B. V. McCall having died, Clint. Tillery administers. Bond, $3,000.

REMOVAL OF THE COUNTY SEAT TO WESTON.

April 23—A writer in the Border Times advocates the removal, and Beller, the editor, comes out strongly in favor of it. The time is propitious: the court-house and jail have been burned, Platte City is in ashes, and, from disloyalty, is almost deserted. This is the beginning of a long controversy.

F. Cox to be careful and notice the disloyalty of the "Pawpaws." Beller proceeds to raise a company of 90 men for the protection of Weston.

June 8—Capt. William Jack died at Platte City. He was born March 19, 1778, in Tennessee; married, in 1801, Esther Harris, born September 5, 1780, and died in 1863. They were living in Kentucky when agitated by the great revival out of which the Cumberland Presbyterian Church grew, and he became one of the founders of that denomination. They came west about 1820, and settled at Lexington Landing, where Capt. Jack kept a ferry for many years. In 1837 the family removed to Platte, and, after a few years, settled at Platte City. They were a father and mother in Israel, and enjoyed the esteem and veneration of all men. I knew him only in his hoary age, when his whole soul was absorbed in holy contemplations. I procured for him a large-print Testament, and every pleasant day, with the sacred volume under his arm, he would totter to the Presbyterian church, and, at a south window, spend an hour in reading, contemplation, and prayer. Ch:

I. PATSEY JACK, b. April 19, 1802; m'd July 4, 1821, Joseph Erwin.

II. L. CULBERSON (CUB) JACK, b. in Tennessee May 10, 1805; d. in Platte City March 30, 1861; m'd Oct. 2, 1828, Stacy Owen (see), dr. of Wilson. She d. Feb. 3, 1896. Mr. Jack was a genial, hospitable, and agreeable gentleman. His mirth and good humor made him a pleasant companion. He was one of the few I have met who could be merry without hurting anybody's feelings. He had charge of the water-mills at Platte City in 1850-3. Ch:

1. Amelia Jack, a handsome and accomplished lady, was b. April 8, 1831; d. in California Dec. 5, 1892; m'd March 8, 1853, Addison Burge, b. Feb. 20, 1824, killed in the street of Platte City Feb. 2, 1872, by a dagger driven to his heart by Dr. F. M. Johnson, who claimed that Burge had offered some indignity to his wife. Mr. Burge was a man of superior intelligence. He kept a drug store in Platte City many years; was elected a representative in November, 1868, over Manoah Miles, from the eastern district of Platte County, by a vote of 302 to 278; but he had much trouble to get his seat in the Radical Legislature.

2. Flora A. Jack, b. April 8, 1831; m'd 1st, Oct. 30, 1850, Judge James B. Martin (see). She m'd 2d, July 23, 1867, Geo. R. Hines, a banker of Leavenworth. Mr. Sayle studied law and was admitted to the bar March 14, 1860, but practiced only a few years; was cashier of the St. Joseph National Bank, and is now cashier of the Grant City Bank, Worth County, Mo. He is brilliant in conversation, reliable in business, and one of the best bankers of the day; but his generous and indulgent nature does not allow him to accumulate a fortune. By his second wife he has [<sup>b</sup>] Flora Ella Sayle, who was b. April 8, 1866, and m'd Oct. 10, 1889. John F. Robertson.

4. Sarah (Dump) Jack (twin with Lavenia), was b. March 16, 1833; d. April 28, 1871, from the effects of an operation for tumor; m'd Jan. 9, 1866 (third wife), Geo. W. His third wife, Mrs. Frances Loan (née Ferrel), widow of James Loan, he married January 21, 1872; and his fourth wife, Louisa H. Northrup, he married in Kansas City January 16, 1889. Mr. Belt looks like a patriarch, with a commanding person, long, flowing beard, benign countenance, and pleasant address. He delights in Masonry, and the Platte City commandery was named for him. He was engaged in the mercantile business first with Murphy, and then with Colman, at Weston. He was mayor of the city in 1861-2. In March, 1862, he was appointed circuit clerk, in the place of Remington, ousted. In November, 1864, he was elected to the same office, over D. W. Moore, by a vote of 1,029 against 301. In 1866 he was elected county treasurer, over C. M. Boyd, by a vote of 798 to 630. In November, 1868, he was chosen sheriff, over G. W. Hood, by a vote of 808 to 491; and in November, 1870, he was reelected sheriff by 1,394 votes, against 764 for T. F. Warner, and 510 for F. M. McCormick. Subsequently, he removed to St. Joseph, and held several city offices. Thence he went to Kansas City, and is now a citizen of Texas. Children by Sarah Jack: [<sup>a</sup>] Lavenia Belt, b. July 10—Thornton at length makes an open demonstration. At 8 a. m. it was announced that Coon Thornton and 400 bushwhackers were two miles east of Platte City, and would soon enter. The stores were closed and all was still. The "Pawpaws" were gone, and Capt. Johnston lounged on the street, with no man to do him reverence. "I shall stand at my post," he said, "though two-thirds of my men have deserted. They have gone over to the enemy, and the other third, through fear, have fled. I have nothing to do but to report." He remained in town while Thornton was here, and when he left, he went with Maj. Clark to Weston, to report. Both were put in the guard-house.

THORNTON ENTERS.

At 10 o'clock Thornton and his mounted "Four Hundred" slowly entered Platte City. No opposition was made. Only one Confederate flag was waved, and scarcely any one fled. The citizens, generally, remained at home.

LAWSON HOLMES' STORE LOOTED.

In the afternoon I went over on Main Street. About 2 o'clock the men broke open Lawson Holmes' dry goods store in the Swaney building, situated where Wells' banking house now stands. A crowd of men, and some women, entered, and bore off armfuls of goods. Many men appeared in completely new suits. My office was in the building. I saw load after load of goods carried off. Two stout strangers with axes attacked the money safe. One, with great muscular power, struck the crack at one side of the door and the other struck in the same crack—and in two minutes the safe was bursted. They were disappointed, as only books were found.

HOW THE MEN BEHAVED.

They were orderly, and seemed perfectly at home. They killed several beeves, and notified the citizens to go and get what they wanted. The soldiers seemed to regard all the citizens as friends. Among them, were Taylor and Threlkeld and their guerrillas. On the morrow all was quiet. One of the foreign companies went to the southern border of Buchanan to visit with the punishment threatened in case he continued to preach in Platte County. They surrounded Morris' house, and demanded his surrender. Morris had armed himself, and had called to his aid two of his friends, and they determined to resist. But the house was set on fire, and as the inmates came from the flames they were riddled with bullets. Morris was a Northern Methodist preacher, and had been ordered by the Platte County Defensive Association to desist from preaching under the penalty of death. But Morris did not heed the threat, and his death was the consequence. The sequel was the death of Dr. Jos. Walker on the 28th day of August, following.

REV. CHARLES MORRIS

THORNTON AT CAMDEN POINT.

July 12—After remaining two days at Platte City, Thornton and his "Four Hundred" went to Camden Point, and encamped on the road leading north.

THE CAMDEN POINT FIGHT.

July 13—On the morning of the 13th of July Colonels Ford and Jennison, being in Weston, started to Camden Point, in pursuit of Thornton. The force consisted of one company of the 16th Kansas, 30 men; one company of the 15th Kansas, 40 men; two companies of the 2d Colorado, 150 men; three companies of the Missouri State Militia, 150 men; and 2d Colorado Battery, 30 men; making 400 in all. An advance guard of 40 men captured three pickets at Bee Creek, and, after giving notice to the rear, dashed into Camden. A flag with the legend "Protect Missouri" had just been presented to Col. Thornton by the ladies—and his men were enjoying a picnic in the blue-grass pasture north of Camden, and were taken by surprise. After an effort to organize, they fled north and east. But ere they started they fired a volley upon their pursuers. The Federal loss was: Private C. A. Flannagan, killed; Sergeant L. K. Crane, severely wounded; and several others slightly wounded. The Confederates lost: killed, Richard Alvis, Peter Clements, Alemanne Hardin, Robert McCormick, Andrew Smith, and Jesse Myles. Maj. John McCluer was killed at his home, several miles away, by a party in pursuit of fleeing Confederates; and Alfred Jack was shot at, without effect. Years later a handsome monument was erected at Camden Point in honor of the Confederate dead. The flag presented to Colonel Thornton was captured, and is still preserved as a trophy.

FORD AND JENNISON AT PLATTE CITY.

July 14—After burning several houses in Camden, Ford and Jennison come on to Platte City. They made headquarters at the Fleshman House. Howell Jenkins' grocery store was looted. His cellar was well stored with wine, and armfuls of bottles were taken by the soldiers to the officers. I saw Jennison displaying his skill in uncorking bottles. He held the bottle over his head, and with an upward stroke with the back of his sword along the neck, he broke off the head of the bottle. The officers and men were scattered over town, and gave no trouble.

THE SWANEY-SHEPARD BLOCK BURNED.

This block was one of particular detestation. For months, in 1861, a rebel flag had floated on its roof; the owners had been noted as Secessionists, and in its third story was the printing office of the Sentinel. The Argus, the Tenth Legion, and the Conservator had been printed there. My office was in the second story. I first observed Capt. Fitzgerald and others bring out the files of the Sentinel. They examined it for a half-hour, and dispersed, going in different ways, as if on duty. An armed squad of soldiers took seats on the east side of the building. A few minutes later, a black smoke poured from the third-story windows. I went to the foot of the stairs, and asked a soldier, who was coming down, if the house was on fire. He told me it was; and I went up to my office, and commenced throwing the law-books out of the windows into the street. Some officers, with whom I had formed acquaintance, saw me, and called soldiers to my aid. The books were saved, but the furniture was burned. No one else tried to save anything.

JESSE MORIN.

On the morning of the 14th Maj. Morin had been arrested near his home by the troops coming from Camden. He was allowed to walk on the street, before the Fleshman House, on parole. Seeing me, he called me, and stated that there were a half-dozen of Jennison's men who intended to kill him, and would do so the first chance. He said I could save him—to see the officers, tell them he was a Mason, and had bitterly opposed secession. These were truths. In pursuance of these suggestions, I made myself known as a Mason, and urgently interceded for our brother. While I was pleading, we heard four shots at the stairway, and Morin rushed into our presence, greatly affrighted. His personal foes, who knew him at Fort Scott, when land office receiver, had attempted to assassinate him. This satisfied the officers that my apprehensions for his safety were well founded. I obtained a promise that Morin should be saved. Accordingly, that night Col. Ford sent him half-way home, under escort. He lay that night beside a log, near the road. His enemies followed, but failed to find him. The next morning, Mrs.

Morin was almost distracted, for no one could tell what had befallen her husband. The troops left at daylight, going east. But they left a band of incendiaries to carry out their counsels.

PLATTE CITY BURNED.

July 15—As the last soldier departed, a gang of men went from house to house, according to a written programme, and burned designated houses. The Methodist church on Lot 3, Block 33, was the first that was set on fire. Seeing smoke, I went out to reconnoiter. In front of the Presbyterian church and Masonic hall an officer on horseback was keeping watch. I had met him the previous day, and knew him to be a Mason. On inquiry, I learned that a greater part of the town was to be burned, and especially public buildings, on account of the disloyalty of the citizens. Hearing a noise in the church, I asked if that house was to be burned. He replied that it was on the list. I told him that every member of the church was loyal. He replied that the orders were to burn it. "But," I said, "the upper story is a Masonic hall, and certainly, you, a Mason, will not destroy it." His reply was, "Its destruction will hurt the community at large." He invited me to go in and take anything I desired. I replied, as I left, "No; if you burn the house, you may burn the Bible with it."

I then took my seat at my front door, and a party of horsemen passed, and inquired who I was. On learning my name, they said it was not on their list.

THE HOUSES BURNED.

Besides the Methodist church, Presbyterian church, and Masonic hall, they burned the houses of Levi Likins, W. C. Remington, Howard Conley, Mary A. Marsh, Philip Lutes, R. P. Gaines, the Male Academy, the house of Maj. H. C. Cockrill, and all the houses on the south side of the present public square.

A. F. Cox was unwell, and remained at home. They burned his property, but protected his person, by stationing a guard at his door. He had always been a warm Union man, and his heart was broken by the treatment of his friends. He went to St. Louis, and there died November 5, 1869.

AT WESTON

The utmost alarm prevailed. The military had left them without protection. Captains Gilbert, Shelsky, Quinn, and Miles are raising companies for home protection. The Border Times announces that it is Thornton's purpose to burn Weston. The wounded Federal soldiers from Camden received the kindest attention. A rumor was circulated that bushwhackers were coming; the market-house bell was rung, and every man called to arms. Some twenty of the 16th Kansas mounted their horses and scoured the county, but no enemy was found.

A PROCLAMATION.

July 20—Gen. Fisk appeals to the loyal men of northwestern Missouri for 5,000 volunteers. He says: "Your neighbors are being murdered, and their property given to the torch. Houseless women are fleeing to military posts. Hundreds of Unionists are pleading at my headquarters for protection, that I am unable to afford, from the limited force at my command. The abundant harvests are rapidly going to waste. In the name of loyalty, humanity, and Christian civilization, I implore you to delay not a hearty response to this appeal."

MEETING AT PLATTE CITY.

July 23—From the Border Times of the 29th: At a mass-meeting at Platte City, H. M. Aller was chosen chairman, and G. W. Belt secretary. Resolutions were passed denouncing bushwhackers, and another meeting appointed for Weston on the 25th. Judge Norton denounced bushwhackers, confessed that he had been deceived by the "Pawpaws," acknowledged that he had something to do with arming them, and that the opposers of the "Pawpaws" were right and he wrong. He concluded that the organization of the militia must pass into other hands. He endorsed Gen. Fisk. Among those participating in the meeting were: A. G. Brown, Wm. Gabbert, Henry Lamar, M. Miles, L. W. McSchooler, Thomas Quinn, Ben. Smither, and J. B. Wright.

July 28—The deceived "Pawpaws" are now hiding. One by one they come in and surrender to some loyal friend, who takes them to St. Joseph, and recommends their banishment to Iowa, or elsewhere. This is preferred to imprisonment, or even to hanging. The jails of St. Joseph are crowded with the disloyal. Business is suspended, and the county offices are closed.

AUGUST.

Aug. 1—By accurate count, there are only 19 men in Platte City.

Maj. Hilliard is in command at Weston. He makes the Wallingford house his headquarters.

Col. Jas. A. Price is at Fort Leavenworth, recruiting the 16th Kansas. In a circular, he announces himself a candidate for sheriff of Platte, but withdraws before the election.

THE DISLOYAL LIST.

Under General Order No. 24, the disloyal citizens are required to give bond, and are disfranchised. A list is furnished each precinct. The following is a partial list: O. Q. Alcott, Henry Basye, Newton Bailey, Henderson Brown, A. J. Burnett, S. Buckheart, W. Cunningham, Clinton Cockrill, Chas. Carpenter, A. H. Cox, Robert Douglas, E. M. Dobson, A. Dean, Israel Dougherty, P. W. Ellington, Jas. Graves, Elijah Justus, G. W. Long, Eli Link,

The Border Times announces: "There is peace in Platte."

DR. JOSEPH WALKER SHOT.

Aug. 28—I have already stated that Dr. Walker was implicated in the threat to kill any Northern Methodist that continued to preach in Platte; and I have recorded the execution of that threat upon Rev. Chas. Morris. A son of Mr. Morris, living in New Orleans, to avenge his father's death, came to Leavenworth and organized and armed a band of desperate men, who went through the neighborhood where his father had been forbidden to preach, in search of the leaders of the outrage. None were found, until Dr. Walker was met in the road. He was taken to an adjacent wood and shot. His family were notified, and reached him in time to hear his statement that he was shot by a party of men, all of whom were strangers to him except one John Morris, who lived in the neighborhood. John Morris was no relative of Rev. Charles Morris, but was pressed into the service of the band, as a guide. The facts were drawn out on the trial of John Morris, who was indicted for the murder, and he was found not guilty. The tragedy produced consternation in the county.

A CONSERVATIVE COUNTY CONVENTION.

Sept. 3—A Conservative County Convention was held at the Baptist church, in Platte City, to nominate candidates for the ensuing election. A majority were disfranchised; yet, after a spirited contest, in which S. A. Gilbert led the opposition, all were permitted to vote. After the nominations were made for all the offices, the crowd adjourned to the street; and, appointing tellers, the chairman called for the candidates for one office at a time to stand forth; and, at the word, the voters took position behind their favorites respectively. In this way the nominees were very soon, and very satisfactorily, selected. The result was as follows: Representatives, John Wilson and H. J. Wolf; circuit clerk, R. D. Johnston; county clerk, D. P. Lewis; sheriff, L. Shepard; treasurer, L. Ferguson; assessor, J. A. Stone; public administrator, J. B. Cox; surveyor, R. C. Ellifrit; supervisor of registration, W. Cunningham; coroner, E. D. Cord.

Sept. 8—The brickwork of the court-house is now up to the second story. The jailer's house is under roof, and a large amount of rock is on the ground for the jail.

REGISTRATION.

Sept. 13—James Durbin, supervisor of registration gives notice that all qualified voters may register any Saturday between September 20th and October 20th, at their proper precincts; and that a board of appeals will be held at Platte City, from the 23d to the 26th of October.

Sept. 15—Grasshoppers have reached Leavenworth, leaving terror before them and desolation behind them.

A DESPERATE AFFRAY AT PLATTE CITY.

In the afternoon, after the Radical Convention had adjourned, a crowd gathered in front of the Fleshman House. J. H. Dunagan, a Radical of Herculean frame, got drunk, and flourished a pistol with threats. Officers interfered, but Dunagan refused to obey, and fired off his pistol. Immediately, there was a general firing of revolvers, and the crowd hastily dispersed. William Callaghan and John Heath were killed, and among the wounded were Richard Bush, J. B. Cates, J. H. Dunagan, D. Fleming, John Foley, W. B. Heath, Sanders McComas, E. J. Phillips, Henry Todd, and Jonathan Todd. Dunagan was arrested, and gave bond; but nothing was ever done. It was a battle between Conservatives and Radicals, and the former held the field.

LAWLESSNESS.

James Durbin, supervisor of registration, was attacked on the street of Platte City by a man named Queen, who threatened him on account of his politics, and ordered him to leave the town. Durbin returned to Weston, and it was his home until his death.

Bennett Whitely took refuge at my house, and when all seemed quiet, I went with him to hunt up his horse. When on the scene of the riot, W. H. Spratt presented himself, in a drunken state, with drawn revolver presented at my breast; and stating, in an angry tone, that I had been talking about him, swore he would shoot me. But just at the critical moment Constable H. T. Callahan, revolver in hand, rushed between us, and saved my life.

Sanders McComas lay hid in town three days. A Mr. McMillan took refuge in the new iron vault, made for the bank, and not yet in place. Some of the Radicals were pursued, at full speed, out of town. No legal proceeding was instituted. For a few weeks as much awe rested on the community as during the war.

Sept. 18—Judge Charles Drake spoke in Weston.

Sept. 25—Fair for four days; it was sparsely attended. Officers, acting: R. D. Johnston, president; A. Tribble, vice-president; J. C. Greenawalt, secretary; A. Burge, treasurer. Directors: Faulconer, Aller, Harrington, Hinkle, Hughes, Miller, Pepper, Singleton, Steele, White, Smith.

Faulconer was chosen president of the new board, Belt secretary, and Burge treasurer.

GRASSHOPPERS.

Sept. 27—During the fair grasshoppers commenced falling like snow from the heavens. In a few days they were like the locusts of Egypt. But they came too late to damage anything except wheat and grass. They left their eggs in the ground, and, when hatched out in the spring, desolation reigned.

The removal of the county seat to Weston is still agitated, notwithstanding the court-house is nearly complete. A petition is circulated to have the question submitted to the people.

Good Templars are flourishing in the county.

OCTOBER.

Oct. 1—The county court pays out large sums, in warrants, for coupons on Parkville G. R. Railroad bonds, and on W. & A. Railroad bonds. The amount paid, in one day, exceeded $30,000.

Oct. 3—The registrars all fail to bring their books to the county clerk, as required by law; and the county attaches the officers. Eight of them deliver their books, and the others are brought forward by the sheriff, and give up their books, under duress.

John Wilson resigns as county attorney.

REMOVAL OF THE COUNTY SEAT.

A petition is presented to the county court for the removal of the county seat to Weston, and asking that the question be submitted to the people. It is ordered that a vote be taken at the general election, to be held November 6th. A counter-petition is also presented.

Belt for treasurer, in place of Ferguson; Isaac Dean for supervisor of registration, in place of Cunningham; and S. A. Hinrod for superintendent of county schools, in place of Cates.

This year Thomas P. Bruce and Thomas J. Doke, brothers-in-law, settled near Edgerton. They are enterprising men, and are doing much to build up that flourishing little city. I will here set out their family trees:

NOVEMBER.

Nov. 1—The brickwork of the court-house is finished.

THE REGISTRATION.

The registration gives displeasure to both parties. Durbin is condemned more by the Radicals than by the Conservatives. Durbin is a candidate for the Legislature, and charges that his party are conspiring to drop him, and to take up A. G. Brown. He charges Brown and C. M. Boyd with duplicity.

REMOVAL OF THE COUNTY SEAT.

Citizens of Weston issue a handbill stating that the city had agreed to give $40,000, and that a further sum of $20,000 had been subscribed by individuals, on condition of the removal of the county seat to Weston. Platte City and its people were referred to with contempt. The other side issued a handbill in reply, showing Weston to be insolvent, and the county debt $475,000.

Nov. 2—The Border Times has G. S. Park's circular in relation to the senatorial race.

Nov. 5—Rev. G. L. Moad removes to Leavenworth, having accepted a call from the Cumberland Presbyterian Church of that place.

Nov. 6—Maj. Morris and a company of United States soldiers are at Platte City, to keep order during the election. No disturbance, but the presence of the soldiers incensed the Conservatives.

Nov. 12—Judge Walter King held circuit court at the Baptist church.

W. H. Roney enrolled as an attorney.

Nov. 13—James W. Coburn enrolled as an attorney. Here is the first public appearance of a young man of intellect and culture, destined to stand high in private life as well as in the forum and on the platform. He still lives to add to his laurels, and to rise to position and fame. He has never married, but, in his office and spacious library, spends his days and nights in unravelling the intricate web of truth, right, and justice. His parents were Dr. John A. Coburn and Elizabeth M. Wood. The latter is a first cousin of my wife. The Coburns were men of judicial acumen and untarnished honor. James Wilson Coburn was born in Mason County, Ky. He settled at Weston, and engaged in the practice of law, with his relative, Col. John Doniphan. Upon the removal of the latter to St. Joseph, he continued the practice alone. One of Mr. Coburn's first works was an abstract of Platte County titles, a book of labor, patience, and value. This was complete in January, 1879. In November, 1880, he was elected prosecuting attorney, over Wm. Forman, by a vote of 1,315 to 1,219; and two years later he was reelected, without opposition; and in 1884 he was elected again, without opposition, for a third term. He now devotes himself assiduously to the practice of law, not only in Platte, but in the highest Federal and State forums. His name will be frequently mentioned as we progress with these annals.

The railroad from Weston, in the direction of Kansas City, is finished to East Leavenworth.

Nov. 19—H. M. Aller is enrolled as an attorney.

Weston is improving. I. H. Masterson and Adam Durkes are erecting fine brick dwellings. Ringo is putting up a stone dwelling; and a call for a wool factory is heard.

G. S. ELGIN KILLED.

Nov. 20—Elgin, a nephew of William Tatman, was a deputy sheriff in Clay County. There were five of the Titus brothers, and Elgin shot and killed two of them, while resisting his official authority. Apprehending danger, Elgin fled to the house of his uncle, William Tatman, on the road from Platte City to Weston. The three surviving Titus brothers, with one John Biven, surrounded Tatman's house by night. They had a warrant for the arrest of Elgin. In the morning Elgin came forth from the house, and was shot by Bevin.

AN EPISODE IN COUNTY COURT.

Nov. 26—There was no law in force for the election of a new county court, but votes were cast for Noah Beery, Paul Jordan, and Jacob Hamm. They were commissioned by the governor. The three came, in the early part of the day, before Judge Aller had appeared at the court-room, and were sworn in by County Clerk D. W. Moore. They did some business and adjourned. The next day Judge Aller took his seat. But D. W. Moore held the keys of the vault, where the records were stored, and refused to deliver them. The vault was broken open, Moore was suspended, and D. P. Lewis, the newly elected clerk, was sworn in. Judge Aller continued to discharge the duties of the court, and D. P. Lewis was his clerk. We hear no more of D. W. Moore.

JUDGE W. A. KING.

Judge King decided that all indictments for treason before him were void, under the terms of the surrender, and the proclamations of peace and amnesty. He therefore dismissed them. For this he was impeached and deposed.

DECEMBER.

COL. JAMES DURBIN.

Dec. 6—Col. James Durbin dies at Weston. He came in 1864, from Ohio, where, it was said, he left a family. He possessed ambition and energy—was an earnest and impressive speaker, but lacked ballast. Always under excitement, he was visionary and unsuccessful. He had been in the State but two years, and had held the offices of surveyor and of supervisor of registration. He was a candidate for representative at the late election, and received only 5 votes. The Weston court adjourned for his funeral, and the bar passed resolutions in his honor.

REVIVALS.

Services at Platte City, in the Christian church, resulted in 70 additions.

Judge Layton was born in Mason County, Ky., July 13, 1813; married in August, 1836, Sarah Smither. They came to Platte in 1844, and settled in Marshall Township. He was elected in August, 1856, a judge of the county court. When, in 1860, the county court was reduced to one judge, he was appointed to the office. In November, 1864, he was elected to the same office. He was ousted by the Vacating Ordinance, and H. M. Aller succeeded him. His stern integrity, with the nerve and resolution to do his duty, peculiarly fitted him for the responsible office he held in the troublous time of war. His courage, justice, and honor are the chief treasures he left to his posterity. Ch:

Body worn and spirit broken,
Soon the grave received his clay;

He has prospered in business and is wealthy. He purchased, in 1885, the Bane farm of 350 acres, at $11.05 per acre. He married January 17, 1867, Kate V. Jacquemin, born December 14, 1843. ### HIGH WATER.

The Missouri is now falling. The rivers were, the middle of April, higher than at any time since 1858. The high-water years have been as follows: 1826, 1844, 1858, 1867, 1881, 1892. The average is fourteen years. It is an Indian tradition that the Missouri rises to a great height, on an average, every fourteen years. Next to 1844 was the rise of 1858. The next highest water was in 1881; and 1867 comes next. In 1892 the rise came largely from the Platte, and the damage was done chiefly below its mouth.

CHARLES B. ALMOND'S DEATH.

May 5—The ten-year-old son of Judge Wm. B. Almond, deceased, was riding one horse and leading another past Dr. W. Baldwin's house, in Platte City, when his wrist was caught in the rope, and the horse dashed off, dragging the boy over a long ledge of rocks, killing him instantly. It is remarkable that precisely twelve months earlier, at the same hour, day, and month, at the same spot, and in the same manner, a son of Noah W. Beery, of the same age, lost his life. Mr. Beery and Mrs. Almond were living on adjoining lots, and Dr. Baldwin witnessed both tragedies.

Platte City improving; John R. Swain, J. H. Connelly, G. R. Carnahan, J. D. Murray, and Mayo & Stone are building good houses.

GRASSHOPPERS.

Grasshoppers are hatched out and half-grown. They are devouring every tender herb. Early corn was undisturbed, when young and tender vegetation was at hand. Not a particle of dog-fennel escaped. An onion was a precious morsel. I had a good patch of early onions. They ate all of them, and burrowed in the ground for the roots. For a week their breaths perfumed the atmosphere. A hundred would fight over a chew of tobacco.

They roosted at night on the side of a house, a wall, or a tree. They moved by brigades. Here, the army goes north; there, it goes south. Hogs grew fat upon them, and chickens could not be eaten with a relish—they tasted of grasshoppers. Various schemes were ineffectually tried to destroy them. Fire and water were of no avail. All efforts were as vain as to try to stop the tides by baling out the sea with a bucket. Trees were stripped of leaves; young and tender bluegrass pastures were left as bare as the public road. My wife thought she would let her cow have the grass of the yard, and had it cut off close to the ground; but it came up fresh and tender, and the grasshoppers dug it out by the roots. We had to sow the yard again with bluegrass seed. The hackberry woods were as bare of leaves as in winter. Early corn did well; but all planted in May was devoured. Such as was planted in June, after the devourers left, was called grasshopper corn. It was light and loose on the cob. Seed corn, the next spring, was brought from Iowa.

MAIN STREET OF PLATTE CITY GRADED.

The new board of trustees of Platte City exhibited energy. Main Street was graded, by taking five feet of dirt from in front of the new court-house and putting it on the lower part of the street. It cost 28 cents per cubic yard. The property-owners on Main Street were required, by ordinance, to macadamize to the middle of the street. This duty was cheerfully complied with. The work was done by Mr. Quinless.

May 10—The court-house and jail are reported complete, by commissioner Jos. Murphy, and the contractor, J. A. McGonagle, paid off.

May 15—The Senate finds the charges against Judge W. A. King are true, and he is degraded from office by a party vote of 23 to 8.

May 23—Richmond, Mo., is visited by outlaws, and mayor, jailer, and deputy sheriff are killed. The bank is robbed.

The committee advertises for bids, and W. V. Slone takes the contract, at $6,000. It is to be finished by December 15th.

July 5—A concert and tableaux at Platte City raised $75.00 for a public library.

Potatoes were unhurt. Fruit was abundant, grapes mildewed, peaches and small fruits good.

The family came to Kentucky about 1800, and settled near Danville, where Richard N. studied medicine under the distinguished Dr. Ephraim McDowell. He afterwards received a diploma from the University of Pennsylvania. He was under Shelby at the battle of the Thames. He practiced medicine, but his life-work was preaching the gospel of Christ, as a Baptist missionary. He came to Platte in March, 1854. His memory is venerated in the churches of Platte. His wife was Catherine McCormick, daughter of Joseph and Margaret, natives of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Coffey was born in Lincoln County, Ky., April 9, 1799, and died in Platte September 5, 1875. Ch:

house. About ten o'clock two shots were heard, the window lights in the front door were blown out, and C. M. Boyd was found dead, on the stairway leading to his rooms. ### SUNDAY-SCHOOLS AT PLATTE CITY.

March 29—Up to this time there had been but one Sunday-school in Platte City. In January, 1850, I organized a union school in the old M. E. church, on Lot 3, Block 33. In 1855 this was moved to the Presbyterian church, on Lot 6, Block 31, and when (in July, 1864) this house was burned, I moved the school to the Baptist church. The average attendance was about 40. But now there were three convenient churches in the town, and it was my opinion that three denominational schools would do more good than one feeble union school; and the result proved I was right. Without consulting anyone, but from a sense of duty, I announced at the close of school in the Baptist church, that the next Sabbath I would ring the bell of the M. and P. church, and would invite all to attend. But that I advised that denominational schools be opened in the Baptist church and the Christian church. During the following week my course was severely criticised, and loudly condemned. Yet my advice was followed; and soon 180 scholars were attending the three schools. I have never seen reason to repent my conduct.

HOWELL JENKINS.

April 25—Howell Jenkins died at Platte City. He was born in Merthy, Wales, July 17, 1812; married Charlotte Evans, born June 21, 1814, and died in Platte City April 25, 1884. They came to Platte City in the summer of 1842. By industry and honesty, they acquired considerable property and the confidence and esteem of the people. He was an excellent stone-mason, and from the native rock hewed and chiseled all the early tombstones of our cemetery. He built for himself the large and beautiful stone dwelling on Lot 4, Block 28, Platte City, which, if not destroyed by fire, will stand for centuries as a monument of his skill. In later life, he was a merchant and postmaster at Platte City. All the original family except Wm. T. Jenkins lie side by side in our cemetery, beneath the shadow of a massive shaft.

I. DANIEL W. JENKINS, b. in Wales Oct. 3, 1839; killed Nov. 12, 1867, at Platte City, by Alf. Hughes (colored) (see), who was hung for the crime. He m'd Dec. 13, 1866, Phoebe Ella Cain, dr. of John; no children.

- II. THOMAS E. JENKINS, b. in Platte City Sept. 30, 1845; d. April 23, 1883; m'd Dec. 19, 1866, Alice Hall, of Clay, who survives, living in Kansas City. Thomas received a finished literary and business education, and became a merchant in Platte City. His courteous address and native kindness of heart made him a general favorite. He was an ardent Democrat, and was elected treasurer of Platte County. In the war he espoused the cause of the South. He was a zealous Mason, and a punctual attendant on the meetings of the order. Ch:

- IV. WILLIAM T. JENKINS, b. Aug. 12, 1853; m'd April 23, 1888, Sallie Guthrie, b. at New Bloomfield, Mo.; d. in Platte City March 5, 1894. She was a delicate and charming beauty, endowed with grace, purity, and loveliness. Mr. Jenkins is an ambitious and rising young man. In June, 1877, he purchased the grocery store of G. W. Smith, and continued the business for several years. In 1886 he received the Democratic nomination for county collector, and in November was elected without opposition. In November, 1888, he was reëlected. In August, 1890, he bought the Landmark of J. B. Mundy, and has since edited it, and has made it a leading Democratic paper. The loss of his wife was a severe affliction, and he dotes upon her only child, little Ruth, born February 12, 1891. I was fond of Mrs. Jenkins, and, as she lay in her coffin, I wrote in her honor a poem, from which I claim room for one stanza:

She 's gone to the land where there 's rest for the weary,
 Her sanctified spirit has fled;
 Without her, the world to her husband is dreary,
 And bitter the tears he will shed:
 And sweet little Ruth will no more have a mother,
 For love, consolation, and prayer;
 For no one can give to the child of another

and reërected it on Lot 12, Block 33. It is probable that this is the oldest frame house now standing in Platte County. For many years he sold goods in Platte City, in partnership with Henry J. Mr. Wilson is handsome in person, urbane in his manners, a chaste and forcible speaker, and has a clear and trumpet-toned voice, which can be heard a mile. As an orator, he has no superior in the State. In person he is commanding, his reasoning is profound, and every sentence is a garland of rhetoric. Mrs. Wilson is a charming woman, graceful in every movement, amiable in disposition, and brilliant in conversation. They live just east of the border of Platte City, in one of the most commodious houses in the county. Children:

Brown, surpassed his father both in native talent and culture. His bold and outspoken opposition to secession first brought him into notice. During the war "that tried men's souls," he was fearless of danger, and despised the sneers cast upon him. He was unflinchingly for the Union, at a time when it was dangerous to be loyal. In March, 1867, he was appointed a county judge, with Beery and Hamm as associates, and was in office until a few months of his death. His children are scattered, though his lands are undisposed of.

JUNE.

THE ORPHAN SCHOOL.

June 1—At a late protracted meeting, at Weston, conducted by Elders Proctor, Allen, and Jones, of the Christian Church.

arrangements were proposed for an Orphan School at Camden Point; and the matter was deferred until June 1st. Pursuant to this arrangement, a meeting was held, and an organization effected. Dr. Thomas Beaumont was chosen president, W. C. Wells treasurer, and A. L. Perrin secretary. The directors chosen were, W. F. Perrin, Arch. Leavel, J. W. Steele, and J. M. Railey. Elders Allen, Proctor, and Jones were authorized to solicit funds.

PRISONERS ESCAPE.

Prisoners Cary, Clark, Neal, and others escape from the new Platte City jail, by removing a rock from the wall. One Carroll had built the jail, and by contract four cannon balls, two above and two below, between all the stones, were to hold them firmly in place. The cannon balls were to be let into sockets between adjacent rocks, so that no single rock could be removed. But in some way the cannon balls for one rock, just in the right place, had been left out. The rock was so shaped and so placed that, with a chisel or any sharp instrument, it could be slipped into the jail, leaving a hole large enough for a man to pass through. At night the prisoners removed noiselessly the rock, and escaped. There were some noted prisoners brought to our jail from neighboring counties. The facts show conclusively that there was a plan formed, and successfully carried out. But it is impossible to name the conspirators.

June 3—Morris Ellinger's saloon in Weston burned.
N. B. Anderson appointed county attorney.

PLATTE CITY CEMETERY.

The county court granted to the town of Platte City Blocks 1 and 2 and the street between them for burial purposes, and appointed Ira Norris, Sr., to make the deed, which is found of record in Book V. 408. The conditions are as follows: "To have and to hold the same forever, for burial purposes, in trust that the said incorporated town of Platte City will, under proper regulations and ordinances, make Block 1 a public burying ground forever; and will make a cemetery of Block 2 and the street east thereof; and from time to time shall lay off and sell out lots from the same; and after inclosing the whole grounds, shall appropriate the net proceeds of such sales to beautifying and adorning such cemetery; or shall from the proceeds of such sales, or any part thereof, form a fund to be loaned out, and the interest thereof applied to such purposes as aforesaid."

The donation was accepted, and the fund established. In 1895 lots had been sold to form a principal of $1,700.

I will here record Mr. James Moore's (i) story of his life. "I remember but little of my residence in Kentucky. We came to Missouri in 1817, on packed horses, without wagons or tent, crossed the Mississippi River at Smelser's Ferry. We crossed the Ohio at Louisville, below the falls. My father was not able to buy land, but took up a claim, which he afterwards sold; he then rented land of Elisha Todd, until he removed to Clay County. I saw no Indians, though there were forts for protection. Old Franklin was then the county seat. We lived ten miles away. In the spring of 1820 we removed in a wagon to Clay County, found ferries over the rivers, took a lease of land for two years of young Fowler, and at the end of the term went to Jackson County. Our residence in Clay was seven miles east of Liberty and three miles from the Missouri. In Jackson County my father settled on government land, two and a half miles southwest of Independence. At the land sales my father bought 110 acres. He lived there until in 1837, when he came to Platte. The first steamboat I ever saw was at Ducker's Ferry, at Independence Landing. Friends came on here from Kentucky, and I went to meet them. I worked at the carpenter's trade, as I could get work, and at other times helped my father. I often worked at ten cents a day; as a carpenter I got $10 per month. I remember making 3,000 rails, at 25 cents per 100. When we went to Jackson County, it was with the first emigration. Father took up a choice piece of land. I was at the first lot sales in Independence. That was some two years after our arrival. The first year we traded over in Clay. When we went, the Osages had just sold out. Only friendly Indians were seen. In March, 1837, I came to Platte, and took up a claim near Hampton. We got our grinding done at horse-mills in Clay, and did our trading at Martinsville. I remember their building the first mill at the falls. My neighbors were Philemon Higgins, Jacob Gregg, Sidney Ray, Wm. Alexander, John Grooms, Jacob Boydston, David Magill, and Jas. Mooneyham."

ABEL GILBERT.

Abel Gilbert died at Weston. He was born in Hastings, Canada, August 12, 1812, came to Illinois in 1831, thence to Independence, Mo., in 1838, and to Weston in 1839. In 1851 he engaged in the Salt Lake City trade, and made many trips across the plains. In his mercantile ventures, he sometimes made largely, and at other times lost. But while he left little property to distribute to his children at his death, he was able to give them finished educations, and promising starts in life. He was an enthusiastic Mason, and all his sons inherited his love of the mystic art. He married in Joliet, Ill., August 6, 1835, Hannah Pasto, born December 23, 1814, daughter of Joseph Pasto and Elizabeth Pist. She still lives in Weston. Ch:

- I. SAMUEL A. GILBERT, b. May 19, 1836, in Joliet, Ill.; m'd in Weston April 14, 1859, Martha McConnell. After a classical education, Samuel studied law, and commenced practice in Weston. When the war broke out he took a decided stand for the Union, inasmuch that, in November, 1861, Secessionists carried him off to the South. But when discharged, he returned to his home, and retained his loyalty. March 7, 1862, he was appointed probate judge, and, by repeated elections, held the office for ten years. In November, 1864, he was chosen a delegate to the Constitutional Convention, with W. A. Morton, of Clay, as his associate. But here he found himself in a minority. He was too liberal and conservative in his sentiments. The Ousting Ordinance took from him his judicial position, but the people, at the next election, restored it to him. In August, 1873, he removed to Atchison, Kansas. But he soon returned, and, in January, 1875, was appointed judge of the Weston Court of Common Pleas. He resigned October 4, 1875, and July 6, 1878, he received the appointment of deputy insurance commissioner for the State. Since that time he has been unsettled, and was in Texas a year or two ago. For versatility of talent, legal acumen, oratory, and repartee, he is unsurpassed, but he is too vacillating and irresolute. Ch:

The next morning, as Burge was on his way to his place of business, Dr. Johnson called him to the sidewalk, west of what is now the Exchange Bank of Platte City, and spoke to Burge in a low tone, not heard by any witness. At the same time he drew a dagger from his bosom, and plunged it down to the heart of Burge, who fell forward with a groan, and the word "murder" on his lips. Two grand juries inquired into the matter and found no bill. The Democrat of February 23, 1872, contains the evidence taken at the examination. Burge was an outspoken "Sorehead," and Dr. Johnson gave his adhesion to the "Ring." Addison Burge was born February 20, 1824; married March 8, 1853, Amelia O. ## THE "PLATFORM."

March 15—This paper was on the side of the "Ring." Its nominal editor was F. H. Brooks. In the Landmark of March 7, 1895, we have its history from the pen of Mr. Brooks himself. He tells us that he was in the employ of a syndicate, composed of G. W. Belt, James N. Burnes, J. S. Brasfield, T. W. Park, and F. M. Tufts, to do such work as the decent papers of the county would not perform. His employers each paid $5 per week, as a bonus, and all he could make from subscribers and advertisers. His stipend was paid weekly at the office of F. M. Tufts, in Platte City. He was instructed to defame the opposers of the "Ring." In his last issue of March 15, 1872, he turned the flood-gates of calumny upon Weston, and the night before its appearance he was off to Omaha, by train, without consulting his employers, or letting the public know of his intended departure. Under the heading "Hic Jacet," the ignominy and death of Weston was announced.

After serving an apprenticeship to a jeweler, he set up in trade at Lexington. He removed to Richmond, Ky., and engaged in the dry goods business. At the age of thirty he joined the Baptist Church, but followed Alexander Campbell, and was licensed to preach. In 1840 he came to Platte, and purchased land near to Salem Church, of which he became pastor. His ministrations extended far and wide. He did more, perhaps, than any other man, to build up the Christian Church of Platte. His ministry was 33 years, and he married more couples than any other pioneer preacher. He joined farming with preaching, and was successful in both callings. Elder Steele was married first, May 28, 1823, to Sarah Hill, daughter of Thomas Hill, of Lexington, Ky. ### THE NORTON FAMILY.

May 15—Mrs. Malinda Norton, the wife of Judge E. H. Norton, died. The Nortons trace their lineage to William F. Norton (i), born in Harrisburg, Pa., September 2, 1781. About 1806 he removed to Kentucky, and after a sojourn of four years in Lexington, settled in 1810 at Russellville. Here, April 10, 1813, he married Mary Hise, born March 12, 1797, daughter of Frederick Hise, of Westmoreland County, Pa. W. F. Norton (i) kept a hardware store in Russellville, and conducted a blacksmith shop, where wrought nails were manufactured by two of his servants, and sold at 75 cents per pound. A small farm in the vicinity was cultivated by servants. Born of Quaker parents, it was not until mature age that he united with the Baptist Church. In his latter years he was an enthusiastic Democrat, a zealous Mason, and an active church member. He died in January, 1858. His widow lived twenty years longer. They left to the world a proud name and an illustrious lineage. Ch:

- I. GEORGE W. NORTON, b. in Logan Co., Ky., in 1814; d. in 1889. He was eminent as a financier. He was president of the Southern Bank of Kentucky. The parent bank was at Russellville, and branches were located in other parts of the State. Its capital was $1,500,000. Under Mr. Norton's generalship, it survived the run made upon it during the panic of 1857. In 1863 Mr. Norton, with Nimrod Long, opened a private bank in Russellville. On the 30th of March, 1865, the bank was robbed of $9,000, by Jesse James, the notorious outlaw. He then removed to Louisville, Ky., and with his brother, W. F. Norton (ii), opened a private bank. He was justly regarded as the best financier of his native State. Mr. Norton married May 3, 1847, Martha S. Henry, daughter of Matthew Winston Henry, of Louisville. She still lives. Ch:

1. Ernest J. Norton, d. July 22, 1874.
2. Juliette Norton, m'd J. B. Marvin.
3. Minnie Norton, m'd W. B. Caldwell; d. Sept. 3, 1880.
4. Susan Norton, m'd John Coleman.
5. Lucie M. Norton. 6. Martha A. 7. Geo. W. Norton (ii). All live in Louisville.

- II. JOHN L. NORTON, b. in Russellville, Ky., Oct. 11, 1816; d. Sept. 4, 1843; m'd Feb. 14, 1843, Lucinda Brown, of Russellville, Ky. His generous bequests to many noble enterprises evinced Christian zeal and charity. He left one son, for whom, as well as for his mother, he made ample provision.

- III. PRESLEY E. NORTON, b. in 1817; d. in 1878; m'd in 1872, Tillie Greenfield, née Hope. His widow and only child live in Gloucester Co., Va. He was small of stature, made two visits to Europe, and was well read in history, science, and general literature.

- IV. WILLIAM FREDERICK NORTON (ii), d. Oct. 20, 1886; m'd Dec. 11, 1846, Ann Eliza Morton, dr. of Gabriel J. and Winfred B. Morton, of Simpson Co., Mo. His widow survives, with an only son, W. F. Norton (iii). He was a zealous Baptist, and a liberal supporter of the church.

- V. ELLIAH HISE NORTON, b. in Russellville, Ky., Nov. 21, 1821; m'd 1st. May 28, 1850, Malinda Wilson, dr. of John Wilson, a pioneer statesman and jurist. She was b. Feb. 8, 1831, and d. May 15, 1873. Judge Norton m'd 2d, Sept. 17, 1877, Mrs. Missouri A. Marshall, dr. of Elisha Green (see), and widow of Dr. F. Marshall. (See.) They live a half-mile east of Platte City, and cultivate a large farm.

Judge Norton set foot for the first time in Platte City January 8, 1845. He and his partner, S. P. S. McCurdy, were enrolled as attorneys of our court April 15, 1845. October 10, 1850, he was appointed county attorney, with a salary of $100. In August, 1857, he was elected circuit judge. In August, 1860, he was elected to Congress, as a Democrat, and in that body distinguished himself by fearlessly advocating the rights of the South. When the dark clouds of war appeared on the political horizon, in the spring of 1861, he was with great unanimity chosen a delegate to the State Constitutional Convention, with Gen. A. W. Doniphan and Col. James H. Moss as his associates, and gave his counsel against secession. In January, 1875, he was elected to a second Constitutional Convention. In October, 1876, he was appointed to the supreme bench of Missouri, to fill the vacancy occasioned by Judge Vorles' resignation. In November, 1878, he was elected to the same elevated position. But the greatest honor ever conferred on a citizen of Platte was yet to be bestowed. June 14, 1882, William Jewell College conferred on him the degree of LL.D. In the midst of his distinguished career, when friends were pointing to him for governor, or United States senator, ill health required his retirement from public life. But it is believed that he is now restored, and will add to the laurels he has placed on the brow of our beloved county.

His second wife has presented to Judge Norton no child, but we name those by his first wife:

1. Presley M. Norton, b. Dec. 13, 1853; m'd Dec. 27, 1882. Lela Darnall, b. Oct. 21, 1861, the lovely daughter of R. T. Darnall (see), of Kansas City. 1. Norton B. Anderson, b. Jan. 8, 1844; m'd June 21, 1877, Virginia Marshall (see), b. Jan. 28, 1844. After receiving a classical education and graduating at Harvard University, Mr. Anderson came to Platte, was enrolled as an attorney November 11, 1867, and appointed county attorney June 3, 1868. At the November (1888) election he was chosen State senator, and had the honor of being made president pro tem. Since the expiration of his term, he has devoted his attention to the practice of law at Platte City. He was one of the distinguished jurists appointed to revise the statutes in 1889, and is considered one of the most profound lawyers in the State. Some years ago I wrote for Gatewood's "History of Platte" a notice of Senator Anderson, which I will transcribe as my confirmed sentiments: "Norton B. Anderson came to Platte County a young man, with a field of usefulness before him. In purity of thought and chasteness of diction, he is the first writer of the county, if not of the State. His classical education and varied reading give him a command of words and phrases that few attain. His mind is trained to thought, and he has been a constant contributor to the press. He seldom puts his name to an article, but the author is betrayed by its excellence. He writes deliberately, and weighs every word. He polishes every sentence, and every phrase is a gem of thought. He has not ventured into the fragrant fields of poetry, but when he makes an effort, his prose is a garden of flowers. There is no one in the county that is such a master of rhetoric. But Senator Anderson's scholarship extends to the departments of history, science, philosophy, jurisprudence, and government." He is handsome in person, dignified in carriage, and urbane in address. Mrs. Anderson is an intelligent, pure, and charming woman. For their children, see their mother's sketch.

2. John Anderson, lives in Texas.
3. William, lives in Kentucky.
4. Irene Anderson, dead: m'd a Hess.
5. Ed. L. Anderson (ii), b. June 1, 1853; m'd April 28, 1886, Lizzie Field, b. Feb. 22, 1864, dr. of Dr. G. W. (See.) They live in Platte City. He was county treasurer in 1893-4, and is now teller in the Exchange Bank of Platte City. He is an excellent business man, and his wife is a lovely woman. They have no children.

THE CARPENTER FAMILY.

June 4—William Carpenter died at Weston. All of the name were distinguished for their loyalty to the Union during the war. They are descended from Samuel Carpenter, of New Jersey. His son, Benjamin Carpenter, was born in New Jersey September 18, 1745. He removed to Fauquier County, Va., and thence to Harrison County, Va., and married Mary Morgan, sister of Gen. Daniel Morgan. He had three sons:

I. JOHN CARPENTER

II. WILLIAM CARPENTER (i),

Born in Fauquier County, Va., July 27, 1790; died in Weston June 4, 1873. He married Hannah Clark, of Spottsylvania County, Va., born February 14, 1798; died in Weston December 18, 1881. She was a daughter of Samuel Clark, who was born in Virginia March 11, 1768. William removed to Lawrence County, Ohio, and was there elected to the State Legislature in 1833-4. He was an experienced surveyor. In 1841 he removed to Clinton County, Mo., and engaged in farming. He kept a country store and post-office, well known as "Carpenter's Store." But his Union principles endangered his life and property, and his house and store were strongly fortified against bushwhackers. In 1864 he removed his family and his goods to Weston in wagons. At Platte City they were stopped as contraband, and robbed. In Weston he purchased property and sold goods until his death. Ch:

I. AMOS CARPENTER, m'd June 1, 1856, Mary E. Shackelford (see), the divorced wife of H. J. Mayo, and daughter of Richard Shackelford. Ch:

2. Dan Carpenter, m'd a Rupe. 3. George. 4. Pinkie.

II. DAN CARPENTER, of Barry, b. March 7, 1825, in Lawrence Co., Ohio; came with his parents to Missouri. He was well educated, and located at Barry, where he has spent his useful life as a merchant, postmaster, farmer, and horticulturist. He has an immense orchard and vineyard. As he has no children, he works for posterity. The Cumberland Presbyterian Church at Barry owes him for its very existence and for its noble Christian zeal and success. He is a man of stern integrity and well-founded Christian faith. His devotion to the cause of Christ is his dominant trait. He is liberal both in his faith and his charities.

He has sustained a Sabbath-school in his church for two generations, and on Christmas eve, in 1881, his friends, patrons, and scholars presented to him a costly bible. By request, I wrote for them the dedicatory poem, and here reproduce a stanza:

The boys whom you led in the pathway of duty
 Now gratefully bring you their infants to bless:
 The maidens you taught, now in womanly beauty
 Bring proudly their children for you to caress:
 The youths you have trained are now farmers and preachers,
 And claim that they owe their promotion to you:
 The girls of your school are now mothers and teachers,
 With homes that are happy and hearts that are true.

Few men stand so high in public esteem as Dan Carpenter. His name is associated with Barry. Generations to come will bless his name. Mrs. Carpenter is a lovely woman. Her maiden name was Pauline Gash, b. April 24, 1831; m'd Dec. 29, 1853. She is a granddaughter of John Gash, b. Oct. 4, 1769, and d. Oct. 21, 1859, a resident of Buncombe Co., N. C. His son, Joseph D. Gash, b. in North Carolina Nov. 4, 1797, is the father of Mrs. Pauline Carpenter. Her mother was Eliza Killiam, b. March 3, 1801. Mrs. Carpenter is a sister of Senator Theo. Gash, b. Dec. 24, 1838. With finished education, musical talent, personal beauty, and amiable disposition, she is still a charming woman. No children:

III. WILLIAM CARPENTER (ii), m'd Ann Eliza Givens. Ch:

THE McEOWEN FAMILY.

John McEowen (i) died six miles east of Platte City. Two brothers, John and Hugh McEowen, removed from New Jersey to Butler County, Ohio, and thence to Huntington County, Ind. Hugh came to Platte in the spring of 1839, and settled on Todd's Creek; John followed him in 1840, and settled two miles north of his brother, in a lovely grove, in a fertile prairie. At that day the prairies were lovely beyond description. I spent nine years of my life upon these divine pastures, that surrounded the humble homes of the McEowens. I weep now when I look upon desolation where once were emerald meadows. The McEowens were plain, rough, intelligent, thrifty, honorable, and upright farmers. In their simplicity they regarded every man as honest, good, and true—and in their generosity they gave whatever was asked, and loaned to any one who would borrow. They were noble backwoodsmen, and warm-hearted pioneers.

He married April 5, 1830, Elizabeth Clark, born in Winchester, Ky., January 11, 1813. She was a daughter of Robert Clark, of Winchester, and Malinda Trigg, daughter of Gen. Stephen Trigg. He opposed secession, but in 1865 voted against emancipation. He was appointed county attorney in 1865, and held the office several years. He was an ardent Whig, and gloried in being the first man to suggest the name of Gen. Taylor for President. His voice was Stentorian and his oratory impassioned. He was a member of that circle of illustrious lawyers and statesmen who framed the Constitution and formulated the laws of the greatest State in the Union. ## GRASSHOPPERS

Aug. 21—Grasshoppers appear in countless multitudes—"thick as autumnal leaves that strow the brooks in Vallombrosa." But they came too late in the season to injure growing crops. They made little holes in the ground, an inch or two deep, and deposited their eggs by millions. These hatched out the first warm spell in the spring, and all hopped off in the same direction. No two armies marched the same course, but each division seemed to be controlled by its own major-general. They devoured every green thing, except the pawpaws. Like the "Jayhawkers," they did not like the "Pawpaws." The railroads killed so many in places that the rails became so oily from their fat that trains could not run.

CAPTAIN ROBERT DAVIS JOHNSTON.

Nov. 21—Capt. Robert Davis Johnston died at Platte City. Born in Harrison County, Ky., November 30, 1802, removed to Indiana, and thence, in 1842, to Platte. In company with John Lewis, he opened a dry goods store; after a few years, he formed a partnership with James H. Johnston in the same business. They prospered and he started the new house of R. D. Johnston & Son (R. Mat Johnston), which did a large business until the war. But all the stores at that day did a credit business, and asked their customers to settle but once a year. The firm had borrowed money of the farmers, and expected to pay their debts by the proceeds of their sales: But, in 1862, they had to quit business. Seeing failure inevitable, funds were collected, and R. Mat Johnston was sent west to try his fortune in the Colorado mines, but he lost all and returned. They settled up as far as the remaining assets would go. When the "Pawpaw" militia was organized, R. D. Johnston was selected to command a company at Platte City; but, in July, 1864, his men deserted to the Confederate army, and left him without support. He became deputy recorder under Tufts, and died in this position.

Capt. Johnston married, first, in Indiana. Mrs. Johnston died in 1844, and December 13, 1846, he married Nancy Hartman, born March 7, 1825, daughter of Esquire Henry Hartman, of Platte City. After his second marriage, he purchased 160 acres of fertile land, two miles east of Platte City, on the road to Liberty, and built a large brick house upon it. In 1870 this farm was sold for $8,000. His wife, by a separate contract, sold her dower, and with the proceeds built the house in Platte City now belonging to Garrard Chesnut.

Capt. Johnston never received pay for his services as captain of Company A, 82d Regiment, Enrolled Missouri Militia, though in active service for ten months. A court-martial inquired into his conduct, and discharged him. He was elected, and served a term in the Missouri House of Representatives; went to California in 1849, and again in 1853. Mrs. Nancy Johnston still lives, sojourning with her children. Capt. Johnston's children by his first wife were:

I. R. MAT JOHNSTON, b. Aug. 24, 1828, in Indiana; d. in Colorado April 30, 1879; m'd May 3, 1853, Hannah A. Hartman, dr. of Esquire Henry Hartman. She was b. Aug. 7, 1829; d. March 18, 1860. Mr. Johnston did not marry again. He was an urbane gentleman, and highly esteemed. He

PARK COLLEGE.

April 12—This noble institution was inaugurated to-day. Col. Geo. S. Park gave his stone hotel in Parkville to Rev. John A. McAfee, as long as he would use it for educational purposes. Mr. McAfee was a native Missourian, a graduate of Westminster College, and a man of intelligence, zeal, energy, and enterprise. His devotion and faith were heroic, and his enthusiasm and perseverance were sublime. He was already at the head of a prosperous school at Highland, Kansas, but he resigned his position, and prevailed on a score of his favorite scholars to follow his forlorn fortunes. Without a day's provisions, without a dollar for the future, they trusted to prayer for God's providence and man's liberality. The foundations of Park College were to-day laid, and the 12th of May has since been celebrated as Founder's Day of Park College. Rev. A. B. Sherwood was the active agent of Col. Park in bringing about this glorious consummation.

The Watts-King-Reynolds embroglio is at its height. Watts claimed he had been elected judge of the Weston Court of Common Pleas; W. A. King claimed the council had elected him city attorney; and J. T. Reynolds made an ineffectual effort, before the circuit court, to disbar King.

GRASSHOPPERS—HUMILIATION AND PRAYER.

June 3—In compliance with Gov. Hardin's proclamation, the people of Platte, generally, met at the churches for prayer to God to avert the evil of grasshoppers. After the services, as the congregations came forth to the open air, they saw the heavens darkened with clouds of the devouring insects going north. No further damage was done. Though the West was visited by the plague of grasshoppers in 1854, 1855, 1861, 1866, 1869, 1874, and 1875, we have had no visitation of the pests since the day of prayer. For twenty years past, we have had no trouble from the devourers.

After the insects departed, men took new heart, corn was replanted, and gardens were renewed. A splendid season followed. Wheat stood in the fields stripped of every blade, and yet turned out ten to fifteen bushels per acre. The generous frosts kept off until November, and late crops ripened. The early planted corn was too hard and rough for the destroyers, so they kept it clean by devouring the weeds and grasses. Pastures were rich and tender, until the late winter opened. Hogs needed no other feed while grasshoppers lasted.

AN INCIDENT—THE SWEDE AND GRASSHOPPERS.

In 1874 a Swede bought, for $1,200, a tract of land four miles east of Platte City, and mortgaged it to me for $400. When the grasshoppers came and cut down his crops, he came to me with a rueful countenance, and insisted on my taking a deed for his land, as he could not pay the debt. I comforted him and assured him all would be right. After a long and doleful conversation, I asked if his neighbors would meet at the church on June the 3d, to pray. He said they would. I gave him a pious lecture, and he promised to attend the meeting, and to pray himself. Two weeks after the meeting, he burst abruptly into my office and exclaimed: "Yes, the praying did it! I am all right now; my crop of wheat will turn out fifteen bushels, and I never had a better prospect for corn. The praying did it!" The Swede paid half my debt from his crops, that year, and stuck to it that "the praying did it." In a year or two he sold his farm for twice as much as it cost him.

THE REES FAMILY

Trace their lineage from Henry Rees, of Virginia. His son, Lewis Rees, married Sarah Ridgway, daughter of Richard. Lewis Rees and family removed from Winchester, Va., to Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1810, and started the first glass works in that city. In 1818 the family removed to Old Franklin, Mo. Three children of Lewis Rees (i) came to Platte City, about 1850, and removed to Leavenworth, as soon as Kansas was opened for settlement. We will notice the three brothers in order of birth.

I. AMOS REES

Was born at Winchester, Va., December 2, 1800, and followed the fortunes of his father until his death. As a clerk for Colonel Chambers, he closed out a stock of goods at Old Franklin, and commenced, at the age of 18 years, reading law with Judge Todd. After three years, he was licensed by the Supreme Court of the State. He removed successively to Fayette, Lexington, and Liberty. At the latter place he married July 15, 1830, Judith C. Trigg, born January 21, 1809, and died in Leavenworth in 1894. She was a daughter of Gen. Stephen Trigg. He next removed to Camden, Ray County, and was one of the promoters of that town. But he became involved, and his property was sold at a great sacrifice. From thence, he removed, successively, to Richmond, Independence, and Platte City, reaching the latter place March 1, 1845. In partnership with Hon. John Wilson, he did a large business. He was a well-read lawyer, and a successful practitioner. An earnest Methodist, he carried his religion into his business. He was conscientious in all he did, was quick to detect and charge fraud, and his red head and quick temper manifested themselves in irritability. In 1855 he removed to Leavenworth, and, with Clark, laid off an addition to that city. Here he broke up again, and lost his sight, and his remaining years were spent in seclusion. He died December 29, 1885. His children: 1, Sarah, died in 1894; 2, Lewis; 3, Mary; 4, Edwin Rees.

II. LEWIS REES

Was for some years a merchant in Platte City. In 1854 he went to Leavenworth, and was the first postmaster of that place. He left children.

III. RICHARD R. REES

Was the smallest, but the most brilliant of the brothers. He was full of life, spirit, and energy. There was no better informed Mason in Missouri or Kansas. He wrote and published a small volume of wild, weird, and ancient mysteries of Egyptian lore. I tried to read it, but it was either above or below my comprehension. Osiris, Isis, Horus, Serapis, etc., were the leading characters. His Masonic learning and his familiarity with the ceremonies of the various degrees of the mystic craft gave him the highest positions in the order. He represented Leavenworth County in the Territorial Council of 1855. He was a prominent leader of the Pro-slavery party in Kansas; but his genial disposition and generous soul made him a favorite even with those who were opposed to him in politics. He was residing in Platte City when Kansas was thrown open for settlement, and was among the foremost to become a resident of the Territory. He filled the office of probate judge one term in Leavenworth. He died, as stated above, November 19, 1875.

John F. De Berry is shot by his brother-in-law, Henson, and severely wounded. Henson was indicted, and vigorously prosecuted, but finally acquitted.

THE TONTINE.

After the meeting of the Tontine in November, I published, anonymously, in the Democrat, a burlesque poem upon it, which had so much truth as to be severe. There was much inquiry for the author, and I told Mr. Kline, the editor, to give my name to any inquirer. Late at night, on the 13th, a drunken rabble waited on Kline, and my name was given. I got a general cursing, and Kline published the burlesque again to satisfy the call for it.

Mr. Herndon was licensed as an attorney in Kentucky, and came in 1859 to Platte City. He was a kind-hearted and genial gentleman, fond of his joke and his julep. He was the life of every circle he entered. We have already noticed his little pamphlet of poems. His verses were much read, and admired for quaintness of expression. He had little regard for the laws of rhetoric and his figures were mixed. He succeeded at the bar, and made money. I paid him the tribute of an elegy, from which I transcribe a stanza:

Thou noble, generous-hearted friend—
 Companion boon, and comrade dear,
 The mention of thy name will send
 Upon my face a smile and tear:
 A tear, because I grieve for thee;
 A smile—thy mirth in torrents ran:
 Thy dirge a madrigal should be;
 Thine epitaph, "A clever man."

Willis Cartwright died at New Market. He was born in Camden County, N. C., March 8, 1808; married in 1837, Nancy Pinkston, born in Knoxville, Tenn., October 29, 1812; died January 7, 1882. Mr. Cartwright came to New Market in 1837, and sold goods for many years in that village. His son-in-law, F. M. Tufts, was for some time his partner. He was highly esteemed for his integrity. Ch:

I. MARTHA J. CARTWRIGHT, possessed sprightliness and beauty. She m'd Aug. 9, 1857, Francis M. Tufts, b. in New Haven, Conn., Aug. 4, 1830. He came to Platte in 1853. After his marriage, he engaged in the mercantile business at New Market with his father-in-law. He was a Union man in the war, and his store was robbed by bushwhackers; but his damages were assessed, and a war tax levied on the substantial farmers of the vicinity, and paid. He became a Democrat, and was elected circuit clerk in 1866, and again in 1870. He was one of the "Ring," and one of the shrewdest operators in the county. At the end of his eight years of official service, he went to St. Joseph, and edited the Gazette for three years. He was city registrar in 1881, and auditor in 1883. While still in office, he was stricken with apoplexy, and died August 18, 1888. He was a man of shrewdness and address, of sprightliness, wit, and sagacity. Winning in his manners, and plausible in his speech, he delighted and charmed, rather than convinced. He was an expert performer in any role assigned him. As a Knight Templar, he was well skilled in Masonic lore and art. The family now reside in Denver, where Mrs. Tufts and her sons keep a grocery store. Ch:

Sept. 23—The Farmers' National Bank of Platte City failed. Its nominal capital was $50,000. Bank Examiner H. B. Cullum, took charge of the assets, and, after settling all debts, divided 18 per cent to stockholders. This bank and the Weston Savings Bank, the Mastin Bank, the Bank of the State of Missouri, and the Bank of St. Joseph (Burnes) were for Crisp, and some were the depositories or sureties of the State treasurer, Gates. All these banks, except the last, failed. They were the financial props of Crisp, and their embarrassment produced consternation. But the Burnes bank was sound, and James N. Burnes was the most brilliant financier the State has ever produced. The other sureties proceeded to put their property out of their hands, and to leave Treasurer Gates to his fate. But Col. Burnes rose superior to his disaster, bought up the assets of the defunct Bank of Missouri and of the Mastin Bank, and not only paid every dollar due the State and satisfied the treasurer's bond, but, it is said, made $100,000 in the operation. But this was too late to save Crisp.

After running a wool factory for some years, his father removed to Michigan in 1836. Here Joseph was, in 1837, licensed to preach by a Methodist Episcopal conference. He came to Missouri in 1840. His ministry was confined to northwest Missouri, and no man was better known or more beloved. His faith was unwavering, and his earnestness bore abundant fruit. He was the spiritual father of thousands. His circuits, in part, were as follows: Platte City, 1854, 1870; Plattsburg, 1845, 1846, 1857, 1858, 1871, 1872; Cravensville, 1847-8; Richmond, 1849-50, 1859-60; Carrollton, 1851-2, 1866-7-8; Savannah, 1855-6; Millville, 1861-2; Springhill, 1864-5; Liberty, 1873-4; New Market, 1875-6; Haynesville, 1877-8.

In 1863 he was supernumerary. Platte City held memorial services in his honor, at which I read a poem written to his beloved name. His zeal was unbounded, his faith heroic, his labor untiring, and his reward glorious. His daughter, Ella M. (dead), married November 30, 1869, Rev. D. F. Bone.

After pursuing various business enterprises in Kentucky, Mr. Christy came, in 1842, to Platte, and settled on the farm where he died. Besides farming, Mr. Christy, for a number of years prior to and during the war, ran a light wagon for freight and passengers, three times a week, between Platte City and Leavenworth. But, in 1865, he became totally blind, and seldom left home, except to attend, every Sabbath, the stated meeting of the Christian Church, of which he was a devoted member. His unwavering faith, burning zeal, and exemplary deportment were read and honored by all. He was always found on the front seat at church. I could but admire his constancy, when, every Sabbath morn, he passed my door on horseback on his way to church. Though perfectly blind, his faith was true even in his horse. In his infirmity he was surrounded with friends. I knew him from the day he set foot in Platte, and admired and loved him for his virtues, and I still love his noble children. They do honor to his name. Ch:

MRS. SUSAN M. MERRYMAN.

Jan. 16—Mrs. Susan M. Merryman died at St. Louis, and was buried at Platte City. She was born in Kentucky, July 10, 1803, and came West in 1856. Her only child was:

I. JOSEPH E. MERRYMAN, b. in Kentucky about 1825, and married there. His wife died, leaving:

1. John Frank Merryman, b. about 1853, who was brought when a child, in 1856, by his father to Platte City, where he grew up to manhood, receiving a finished education. He was licensed as an attorney April 11, 1874. After practicing for one year in Platte City, in partnership with J. F. Pitt, he removed to St. Louis. There he married a daughter of Hon. Chas. P. Johnson, and is now in partnership with his father, forming one of the most noted law firms in the West. Frank has served in the State Legislature, and has filled many positions of honor and trust.

Mr. Joseph E. Merryman came West in the spring of 1856, and formed a law partnership with Hon. Jasmes G. Spratt, and the firm was prosperous in business. Judge Spratt entered the Southern service in 1861, and in 1862 Mr. Merryman and I formed a partnership in the practice of law at Platte City, which continued for ten years. We did well, and engaged in the banking business, starting the Farmers' Savings Association in August, 1866. We sold out in 1870, and in July of that year started the banking house of Merryman, Paxton & Cockrill. This bank we sold in July, 1873, to Cockrill & Co. During these years we also applied ourselves to our law practice with diligence and success. When we dissolved, in 1873, our practice was wide and profitable, and Mr. Merryman removed to St. Louis, where he yet lives. As a practitioner he has scarcely an equal in the State. He is more fruitful in resources, and more ready in their application, than any other lawyer I ever met. He could give from memory the date, volume, and page of almost every decision of importance in our State Reports. Even in the most desperate cases, he would find some way of defeating his adversary. Before a jury he was powerful, in cross-examination of a witness he was ready, and in his pleadings he committed no blunders.

Mr. Merryman married, second, March 15, 1858, Elizabeth Hunt. (See.) She died June 13, 1866, leaving:

2. David Merryman.

Mr. Merryman married, third, Sept. 28, 1866, Mrs. Annie T. Earickson, widow of Dr. J. P. Earickson, and daughter of Robert Todd. (See.) She died June 13, 1873, leaving:

3. Robert Merryman. 4. Todd. 5. Joseph. They live with their father in St. Louis.

Mr. Merryman married, fourth, March 18, 1885, Mrs. Mary J. Crophe, from whom he parted; no children.

- II. LUCY FARRA, m'd A. H. Crowder. He was a merchant of Weston, and removed to Texas.

Mr. Wilhite lived four miles north of Platte City until his removal to Kansas in 1870. While he lived here he was a prominent citizen. He was deputy collector for several years. He was the president of the Weston and Platte City Turnpike Company, and the failure of that enterprise was no fault of his. He staked all upon it, and lost.

I. WILLIAM H. THOMAS,

Was born in Hardin County, Kentucky, June 6, 1806; died in Platte February 24, 1881. He received a classical education, and was well prepared for the ministry. He adopted the Baptist faith, and from a thorough investigation of the Bible and extensive reading of theology, he became a confirmed Calvinist. He was a man of sound judgment and discriminating thought. As a logician he had no superior in the county. His business qualifications crowned all his enterprises with success. Whether engaged in merchandising, farming, or preaching, he was practical, earnest, and successful. His preaching was perhaps too critical, exact, and learned for the common hearer. I knew him well, and enjoyed his confidence. With many the stiffness and formality of his address detracted from his usefulness. Among his acquaintances his truth was never doubted, and his judgment settled all controversies. He married, in Kentucky, Nancy Wills, who survived him, and died in St. Joseph October 28, 1894. She was a lovely woman, and much admired for her purity of thought, word, and deed and for her Christian graces. Ch:

THE SHEPARD FAMILY.

Isaac Shepard came from England to Virginia. His son, James Shepard, married a Miss Catron. Their son, Lycurgus Shepard, was born in Kentucky June 3, 1816. He came with his father, James, in 1820, to Howard County, Mo., and there the boy grew up to manhood. In 1838 he married Sallie A. Howard, daughter of Matthew. In 1842 they came to Platte. Several years later, Mr. Shepard purchased a splendid tract of land near Hampton, where he now resides. He has filled several offices. In August, 1843, he was chosen surveyor of Platte. In August, 1850, he was elected sheriff, and in 1852 was reelected. During the "border ruffian war" of 1855-6 he was a leader on the side of slavery; but when actual war came upon us, he was discreet and guarded; yet he was robbed and sued and persecuted. July 6, 1869, his first wife having died, he married Rachel B. Wright, widow of J. Wright, and daughter of Levi Vocom. She died, childless, February 10, 1876. In June, 1871, Mr. L. Shepard issued his first Ventilator, a hand-bill, charging fraud, corruption, and imbecility upon the county officers. Three of these Ventilators were cast upon the public. The Landmark took the part of the officers, and two parties were formed—"Ring" and "Sore-heads"—dividing the Democratic party. The abuse heaped upon Shepard wrought him up to a state of intense indignation. He bought a press and started the Platte County Democrat. He took his pen, dipped it into wormwood, and met the Landmark with vigor and success. The people came to his support, and after a few years Mr. Shepard found no organized enemy in his way, and retired to his farm. As a Greenbacker and a Democrat, he has several times been before the people, not so much with a hope of election as to give him an opportunity to express his political views. For a half-century he has been a prominent figure in county affairs; and his heart was always correct and his head generally right. For several years he was the backbone of the "Sorehead" party. His nerve, energy, courage, independence, and decision were just what the "Soreheads" needed. Children by his first wife:

- I. PAUL SHEPARD, b. in Howard County, Mo., April 17, 1841; m'd Sept. 10, 1867, Eliza Settle, dr. of John T. (See.) Paul was a heavy-set, brusque, energetic, and thriving farmer, and highly esteemed by all who knew him. Ch: [<sup>a</sup>] Sallie, m'd B. F. Lawler; [<sup>b</sup>] John Shepard (ii).
- II. JOHN SHEPARD, b. in Platte, Jan. 9, 1843; m'd 1st, October 17, 1867, Arzelie Kinsey, dr. of Dr. Kinsey. Mr. Shepard entered the Confederate service in 1861, as a private in Winston's regiment. He participated in many bloody battles, and laid down his arms at Shreveport when the strife had ended. He is a man of fine sense, and an urbane gentleman. He is a Knight Templar, a good citizen, and an uncompromising Democrat. Ch:

May 1—GENERAL WILLIAM ROGERS lived on the line of Clay, near Barry, from the earliest settlement of Platte. He now removes to Texas, and as we will hear no more of him, we will sketch him. He was born in Virginia, February 16, 1792, removed to Kentucky, volunteered in the War of 1812, served in Captain Morris' company, First Battery, under Major Gano, in Colonel John M. Scott's regiment, in Brigadier General Winchester's division; came to Calloway County, Mo., in 1826, served in the Black Hawk War, came to Platte in 1840, and settled on Second Creek. He claimed that he reached the rank of brigadier general; I have not learned when or where. He also claimed he was the first to drill a company in Platte. But the truth is, Platte County sent three companies to the Mormon War three years before General Rogers entered the county. I knew General Rogers well. He was illiterate, but a jolly and genial old man. He pretended to be a wise phrenologist, and examined everybody's head. But he was in the War of 1812, for he drew a pension.

Marriage licenses are now required.

She was born in July, 1801. After her death, he married, second, Mrs. Louisa English, daughter of George Coakley. He died at Parkville October 26, 1851. Ch:

Dec. 28, 1890, in Platte City, dr. of Samuel Strother, of Madison County, Ky. Mrs. Wells was a large, handsome, and spirited lady. She was social, generous, and hospitable. Her home was her delight, her family were her idols, and her church was her shrine. She was remarkably lively, until a son was removed by death. From that hour her heart was broken, the lamp of her life was quenched, and she sank gently into the tomb. As long as she could walk, she daily laid a flower and dropped a tear on her son's grave. Mr. Wells was reared in Parkville. He removed to New Market and engaged in the mercantile business. He was deputy of Sheriff Ogden, studied law in private, and was admitted to the bar. As an accountant he has no superior, and he has been successful as a banker. He represented the county in the State Legislature two terms (1877-81), and was public administrator from 1881 to 1889. But banking is his appropriate pursuit. The banking house of Wells & Co. at Platte City is the most solid institution of the kind outside of the great cities of the State. Its deposits are large and increasing. Mr. Wells enjoys the unlimited confidence of his patrons, and his wealth is yearly increasing. He possesses sound judgment and wide experience. He was elected State Senator at the November election in 1896. Ch:

Her characteristics are gentleness, modesty, sweetness, and purity. Mr. Wells has just built a palatial dwelling in Platte City, and is now cashier of the banking house established by his father, in which all the family have a pecuniary interest. He is tall, handsome, thoughtful, and reserved in manner, well informed upon the topics of the day, and a pleasant and urbane gentleman. Ch: [a] Anne Louise Wells, b. July 25, 1896.

mind and classical and literary attainments he has no superior in the county. They have one child, Catherine Wells.

THE CALVERT FAMILY.

In the early history of Maryland the Calverts were prominent personages. Leonard Calvert, younger brother of Lord Baltimore, was the first governor of the colony. From this family our Calverts descended. Jeremiah, Smith, Henry, and Craven Calvert were sons of Presley Calvert; and Lewis Calvert was a son of John, a brother of Presley. We will take them up in order.

I. JEREMIAH CALVERT.

The little I have learned of him has been recorded.

II. SMITH CALVERT

Was born in Scott County, Ky., October 9, 1799; died in Platte September 22, 1882. He was a son of Presley Calvert and Phena Johnson, daughter of Berwick. She was a sister of Captain Andrew Johnson (see), and niece of Colonel Richard M. Johnson, of Kentucky. He came up the Missouri in 1819, on one of the steamers of the Yellowstone expedition, and while wintering at Cow Island, opposite Iatan, he made frequent hunting excursions into Platte. He married, in Kentucky, Cassandra Branham, born February 12, 1804; died March 23, 1874, and buried at Pleasant Ridge. Mr. Calvert was a large man, of brusque manners, and decided opinions on all topics. For many years he kept a hotel at Liberty, Owen County, Ky. In 1830 he moved West, and settled on Pleasant Ridge and became one of the pioneer Baptists who built up Pleasant Ridge Church. He was a pushing and enterprising farmer and business man, genial and entertaining in his conversation, blunt and outspoken in his manners, and honest and liberal in his dealings. He was the auctioneer who made the first sale of lots in Platte City in 1840. Children:

I. ANN W. CALVERT, m'd Samuel Hughes. (See.)

II. NOTLEY A. CALVERT, m'd in 1839, Benj. Holladay, the "Great Western" in business ventures, the Salt Lake trader, the railroad constructor, the New York millionaire, the embellisher of Ophir Farm, the author of the "pony overland express," and the hero of fortune and failure. To-day abounding in wealth, and to-morrow penniless. His daring enterprise laughed at opposition. We will not follow his career in his desperate ventures and heroic enterprises. He came from Nicholas County, Ky., was a son of William Holladay, and his brothers were: Jesse, David, Joseph, James H., and Andrew S. Holladay. He came in 1838, and set up a dram-shop and tavern in Weston. His first achievement was the capture of his wife, and the pacification of the old man. The Mexican War opened the door of fortune, and the Civil War afforded further opportunity for success. Congress failed to pay him what was due him, and he died poor. His wife died, and lies beneath the chapel of Ophir Farm. He married a second time, and died out West, amidst the wreck of his fortunes. Ch:

In 1838 Martin came to Platte, and settled three miles north of Platte City; and married January 3, 1838 (his birthday), Clarissa Buxton, born April 28, 1814, daughter of William and Rachel Buxton, of Clay. Sept. 18—John R. Swain died near Platte City. He was a son of John H. Swain and Lucy Tutt, and was born in Kentucky August 21, 1821. In 1831 the family came to Madison County, Ill., and thence to Troy, eighteen miles from St. Louis, where John R. engaged in business as a merchant. In 1860 he came to Leavenworth, thence to Farley, and finally to Platte City. With R. F. Mason (see) he engaged in the dry goods business, first at Farley, and subsequently at Platte City. The firm dissolved in 1880, and in a short time Mr. Swain became an imbecile, from softening of the brain. He was an experienced merchant, and a man of affairs. He advocated improvement, and labored for the good of society. He was an ardent Presbyterian, well grounded in the Bible, and able to give reasons for his hope. He labored zealously in the church and Sunday-school wherever he lived. He was fond of children, and delighted in teaching. All loved him and I esteemed him as my best friend and my dearest companion. We worked together in the church and the Sunday-school; and in our plans of improvement and charity each looked to the other for counsel and assistance. At his death I published a poem in his honor, from which I copy a stanza:

His meek and humble spirit swayed
And cheered me on to useful deeds,—
Or led me back, whene'er I strayed,
As gently as a shepherd leads.
And when discouragements assailed,
And I grew faint before our foes,
His patient spirit never quailed,
But gathered strength as trials rose.

He was twice married; first, to Emily A. Buckley, of Troy, Ill. She died, leaving:

I. CARRIE SWAIN, m'd a Millard. II. KATE, m'd a Smith.
III. GABRIELLA SWAIN. All of them live in Minnesota.

GEN. GEORGE P. DORRIS.

General George P. Dorriss died at St. Louis. He was born in Robertson County, Ky., October 16, 1807. In early life he went to Galena, Ill., and thence to Shawneetown, Ind. In 1837 he came to Martinsville (now Platte City) and started a general store. In 1840 he paid at the sale of Platte City lots $607 for Lot 1, Block 29. This was the highest price paid for any lot. Here he kept store for several years. He built the brick house now belonging to Jesse Collins, a half-mile south of Platte City. He also built, south of his dwelling, a heavy hewed log prison, entered by a trap-door on top. This was burned down by Doubleday's command in 1862. He was engaged in the negro trade, taking large gangs South every few months. He represented the county in 1854, and again in 1860. In the fall of 1861 he removed to St. Louis, and made that city the base of his large operations. His ventures were daring and yielded enormous profits. He became a millionaire, loaned money at usurious interest, took army contracts, and built a palatial residence on his suburban estate, which was burned after his death. His estate was inventoried at $800,000.

Geo. P. Dorriss was a son of Thomas Dorriss and Polly Ann Leake, of Nashville, Tenn. Thomas Dorriss was a son of Rev. Joseph Dorriss, chaplain of Gen. Jackson's division of the American army in 1812. Gen. Dorriss received his title by the appointment of Gov. Reynolds, of Illinois. He raised a regiment of infantry and went to the Black Hawk War. He was large and commanding in person, being 6 feet 2 inches high, and weighing 200 pounds. He was hospitable and generous, courteous and respectful, and in all my dealings with him an upright and honorable gentleman. In society he was a remarkable personage. He was unerring in his judgment of character, and won favor and confidence by his complaisance and kindness. After he went to St. Louis, I attended to his business here, and found him just and true.

Gen. Geo. P. Dorriss married Sarah Henderson (see), born December 12, 1813; died in St. Louis January 28, 1882. She possessed the money-making talent of her husband, and kept her estate separate from his. Her sound judgment enabled her to make judicious investments. She was genial and companionable, and managed her affairs with tact and shrewdness. She was murdered in her bed by her grandson, Russell Brown, with the assistance of a youth, Pat McGrew. They entered her chamber and robbed her of her finger- and ear-rings, while smothering her to stifle her cries. The boys did not intend to take her life. They were sentenced to long terms of imprisonment, but Russell escaped, and died in Canada. The children were as remarkable as their parents:

- I. JOHN DORRIS8, d. when a youth in 1855, and was buried at Platte City, in a metallic coffin. March 6, 1882, his remains were exhumed, and I recognized the youth who was buried 27 years earlier. He was removed to Bellefontaine Cemetery, near St. Louis.
- II. THOMAS DORRIS8, b. Aug. 9, 1839, in Platte; d. at San Antonio, Texas, of consumption, March 14, 1895. He never married, but lived on the wing between Chicago and St. Louis, with an occasional excursion to Platte City. He never forgot his old home, and scarcely a year passed that he did not send $25 to make the children a Christmas treat. He was possessed of native intellect, and, when sober, was a splendid conversationalist. He had seen much of the world, and was well informed on the topics of the day. He was an urbane gentleman in society, and his principles were good, whatever may have been his habits.

But Gen. Dorriss's will gives Thomas the income of one-third of his estate for life, and the remainder to his children, if any; and if not, then to his nephews and nieces. To evade this, Thomas adopted a boy, and then disinherited him. But if the boy became his child, Thomas could not disinherit him in this case. He next tried making a will, and then set it aside by a second will. These wills cannot pass the real estate in which he had only a life interest, but they may pass personalty not bestowed by his father. I loved Tom Dorriss, but his life was a failure.

Among the beneficiaries of his wills was Annie, daughter of Judge Norton.

III. MATTIE DORRISS, d. Jan. 17, 1883; m'd May 20, 1856, Hon. Jo. A. Brown, a lawyer of distinction, who died a few years ago at St. Louis. She was brilliant, beautiful, and lovely; and when I last saw her, about 1876, she was majestic. After years of wedded bliss, she was divorced, and married R. B. Van Wisker. Her children were by her first husband:

2. Mattie Brown, m'd Arthur A. Mosher, of Kansas City; 3 children.
3. Fannie Brown, m'd 1st, Wallace Smith. She m'd 2d, F. C. Jerome.

IV. ANNIE B. DORRISS, was sublime in her beauty, and is yet a Minerva among women. She m'd Hon. John A. Halderman, late minister to Siam, and one of the most eminent diplomatists of the day. He is a scholar and a statesman, and his name has been an honor to Kansas. But, like her sister, Annie was divorced. She lives in Leavenworth, and General Halderman in Washington City. Ch:

1. Sallie Halderman, amid oriental splendor and magnificence, m'd Oct. 24, 1888, Edwin E. Wilson; but after the birth of two children, and proof of disreputable dealings on his part, she forsook him.

November 15, 1866, he married the lovely and accomplished Maggie E. Baxter, at that time teacher of music in Daughters' College. Major Park continued to edit the Landmark until February, 1881, when he surrendered the tripod to Valliant.

Sterling Price's division of the Southern army, Mr. Park returned from the South, studied law, graduated from the law department of the University of Louisville, Ky., and was admitted to the bar November 16, 1867, but has given little attention to his profession. His title of major he acquired on the military staff of Governor Woodson.

At the November election in 1870 he was chosen county clerk, and made an excellent officer. In 1874 he was reëlected, but March 27, 1877, resigned in favor of Col. Jas. H. Chinn. In 1890 Mr. Park was appointed chief clerk in the office of the secretary of state of Missouri, which position he still retains. His abilities are manifest in the various documents, reports, and publications which of late years have emanated from that office. He is a sprightly, chaste, and forcible writer, and his ready and trenchant pen is admired, as well as feared. He is an orator, and no one is more ready nor more interesting in a post-prandial address. As an editor, he was spirited, energetic, and fearless. He has two sons just verging into manhood:

1. Fred G. Park, b. March 21, 1868; a brilliant young man.

She was a zealous Methodist, and a leader in every good work. After her death I dedicated four stanzas to her honor, and here reproduce one of them:

How well I remember thy warm salutation,
Thy pleasing address and encouraging smile!
Kind Nature had formed thee to fill any station
That called for intelligence, fancy, or style.

And witnessed thy diligence, judgment, and skill!
Admired by strangers—beloved by thy neighbors,

Duncan, daughter of Judge Edward P. In 1878 he removed to the Tebbs farm, two miles east of Platte City. He was an excellent physician, and did a large business. His estate amounted to $50,000. He was a man of sound judgment, and in his profession there were few superiors. Quiet and thoughtful, his words were few, but always pointed. He owned the Tracy Mills for a time, was interested in the Bank of Platte County, and was ready to embrace and engage in any enterprise that promised a good return. I thus wrote of him:

Few men have exercised more thought,
Or used so well their reasoning powers;
His plans were laid, and measures wrought
By mental toil in weary hours.
His intellect, with culture's grace,
Gave form and force to what he said;
Complaisance sat upon his face,
And dignity adorned his head.

Mrs. Field lives in Platte City. She is yet a handsome and dignified matron. Ch:

I. DESDEMONA J. FIELD, b. Aug. 25, 1856; d. March 15, 1893; m'd Aug. 3, 1876, John L. Carmack, son of Geo. W. Carmack and Martha D. Washington, of Campbell County,

Ky., Nov. 11, 1846. When a youth he entered the Confederate army, and served with distinction. After the war he came West, and settled at New Market. The handsome, intelligent, and chivalrous young man gained the affections of the people. He studied law, and was scarcely admitted to the bar before he was brought forward as a candidate for prosecuting attorney. In November, 1876, he was elected over Forman and Reynolds, the vote standing: Carmack, 1,325; Forman, 953; and Reynolds, 761. Thereupon he removed to Platte City, where he has since resided. In April, 1882, Mr. Carmack was elected the first mayor of Platte City, after the town had become a city of the fourth class. In 1884 he was reelected, but resigned before the end of his term. In 1890 he was elected probate judge, and reelected in 1894. Prior to his becoming probate judge, he practiced law, in partnership with Senator N. B. Anderson. This firm was regarded as one of the most eminent in the State. Judge Carmack lives within a stone-throw of my house, and our families have been intimate. Mrs. Carmack was tall and beautiful. She suffered long, and died in St. Louis, whither she had gone to have the care of the most eminent physicians. When I saw her fair and familiar face lying to one side, as if listening, and the legend "At Rest" upon her casket, I retired and wrote three stanzas in her honor, entitled "Loveliness in Death," and had them printed for her funeral. I copy the first stanza:

Is this fair form before us dead?
 Or do we on the living gaze?
 See how she gently turns her head,
 To listen to our words of praise.
 No mark of pain afflicts her brow—
 A smile has settled on her face—
 How sweetly she is sleeping now!
 In heaven she 's found a resting-place.

Judge Carmack m'd 2d, April 25, 1895, Mrs. Mollie Gabbert, née King, the widow of the late George Gabbert. She is a lady of grace, beauty, and amiability. Judge Carmack's children by his first wife are:

II. LARKIN FLESHMAN,

Was born in Greenbrier County, Va., December 9, 1816, and died in Platte City July 10, 1893. He received a good education in the "Old Field" schools of his native State. He came to Callo-way County, Mo., entered a store as a clerk, and taught school. He married, December 14, 1843, Mrs. Mildron J. Williams, née Suggett. Her only child was by her first husband, and was the first wife of Dr. A. T. Guthrie (see), and mother of William Guthrie. (See.) Mrs. Fleshman died November 6, 1849. During the remainder of his days Mr. Fleshman lived a secluded life, in the care of servants. He kept a small store, off and on, in Platte City, built the Fleshman Hotel, and at intervals kept it; was deaf, yet studied law, was licensed, but from infirmity of hearing did little business; made money, purchased several farms east of Platte City, and invested largely in Platte City property; had no intimate friends, but kept his own counsel; built a costly dwelling in Platte City, and there died, granting, by will, a large part of his estate to an old negro woman, "Aunt Violet," who had been his housekeeper for many years, and leaving the remainder to his nephews and nieces, children of his brother Perry.

III. ROYALL FLESHMAN,

Never came West. He married Elizabeth Hoke. Two of their sons came to Platte in 1880:

I. WILLIAM H. FLESHMAN, has just been noticed.

II. ROYALL FLESHMAN (ii), was killed July 23, 1889, by Thos. Shepherd, who was tried for murder and acquitted. Aug. 23, 1889. Royall Fleshman's (i) other children remained in Virginia.

He was judge of our circuit in 1841, was appointed to the United States Senate in October, 1843, and subsequently elected, serving from December 4, 1843, to March 3, 1855. General Atchison earned his military title and honors from serving in the Missouri militia during the Mormon War. From 1841 to 1856 his home was in Platte City. When here he boarded with Elisha Green. In 1856 he repaired to his Clinton farm, built a fine residence, and lived in retirement until his death. He was large, commanding, dictatorial, and sometimes profane; an uncompromising Democrat, a plu-perfect pro-slavery man, and often boisterous, but always generous. I was a Whig, and he had no patience with a political opponent. He advised the colonization of Kansas to widen the area of slavery; and in the border strife of 1856-7 he counselled and directed the Missourians in their invasion of that territory. He possessed superior judgment and native mind, with but little culture. He had slight respect for woman, and never married. Beneath a rough exterior lay a kind and indulgent heart.

He was a typical pioneer, fond of mirth and hilarity, generous and hospitable, ready to risk his life for a comrade, smiling at his own troubles, and weeping over the afflictions of a friend—sharing his last crust with want and prodigal while he had a dollar. Such was Adam C. Woods. He was born in Madison County, Ky., March 8, 1811. He was a son of William Woods (see), born February 22, 1775, in Culpeper County, Va.; died in Platte in April, 1844. Adam C.'s mother was Ann Woods, born in Greenbrier County, Va., March 10, 1776. The family were among the earliest emigrants from Virginia to Kentucky, and Archibald Woods (i), the ancestor of the family, was killed at the disastrous battle of the Blue Licks. Adam C. Woods married September 9, 1830, Mary Wilson, daughter of John and Elizabeth, and born in Kentucky October 20, 1813; died September 16, 1880. I will let the patriarch tell the story of his life:

"I was only six years old when we came to Missouri, but I remember the trip. We came in a wagon; crossed the Mississippi, and came to St. Charles and thence to Howard County, and settled at Wolf-lick, four miles north of Old Franklin. Keel-boats were common, and I remember some steamboats. There was no danger from Indians in Howard County. Old Fort Hempstead was near our house, but it was abandoned. My father (William) volunteered and went up to old Fort Osage, to quiet some Indian troubles. I witnessed the hanging of W. O. Short, March 27, 1824, for murder. My father entered 160 acres, and cleared 30 acres. In February, 1825, we moved in two wagons to Clay County, and entered 160 acres, one and a half miles east of Barry, north of the road to Liberty, now (1882) owned by James Woods and Mr. Rogers. My father then entered a fractional quarter of 108 acres, upon which Glen O. and Peter H. Burnett built their store. The land now belongs to M. T. Samuel. This place my father gave to his son William. He entered another quarter, which he gave to me. Mr. Johnson now owns it. When we first came to Clay our neighbors were Joseph Todd, Mrs. Wilson, Robert Cain, John Gumm, David Hunt, and William Brown. The Burnetts lived six miles south, and John Broadhurst lived three miles south. The Moselys, Searcys, and Williams came the next fall.

"The Iowas, Sacs, and Foxes would come down from Roubidoux sometimes to hunt and beg. The Delawares and Shawnees would sometimes cross the Missouri, and winter in Platte, erecting wigwams. They sometimes cultivated a field in the prairie, in Green's Bottom, enclosing with brush and poles.

"I was at the Fort in 1827. The soldiers were in tents. I remember when the road was opened to Barry. We crossed at the Falls of Platte, before Martin was there. The soldiers crossed the Missouri in bottoms of barges."

MRS. MARY LIZETTE BELLER

March 22—Mrs. Mary Lizette Beller died in Weston. She was the widow of Anton Beller, and born in Baden December 22, 1806. They came to America in 1841, and Mr. Beller died in 1846. Mrs. Beller's maiden name was Münzer. The widow and children then came to Weston. Children:

- I. AUGUSTUS G. BELLER, b. in Baden Feb. 14, 1830; came with his mother to Weston in 1846; learned the blacksmith trade. Married Dec. 1, 1851, Melville Cummins, dr. of Eli G., b. in 1831. When the war broke out Mr. Beller cast his fortunes on the side of the Union, and did good work for the cause. He studied law and was admitted to the bar Sept. 9, 1862. Started the Border Times Feb. 13, 1864, and continued it until July, 1871. July 3, 1865, he received the appointment of probate judge of Platte. April 20, 1869, he was appointed postmaster of Weston. April 1, 1863, he was chosen mayor of Weston. The Border Times is a monument to his loyalty. His political life has been consistent. He had the courage to condemn slavery when danger, as well as contumely, assailed him. His denunciation of secession, his condemnation of the South, were bold and defiant. He never hesitated nor temporized in his defence of the Union, though traduced, spurned, and scorned by his enemies. His life exhibited a moral courage unequalled by any anti-slavery man of the county.

Mr. Beller never practiced law. For some years he was mail agent on the C., R. I. & P. Railway. But of late years he has devoted his life to the Baptist ministry. He has boldly advocated prohibition. He is a zealot in every moral or religious cause. He is kind and liberal in his sentiments, and no narrow sectarian view forbids him to labor with others. Platte County owes him a debt of gratitude, for had he not stayed the impetuous Southern sentiment of our people, they might have suffered from fire and sword. His outspoken loyalty was our shield. Williams, born in Madison County, Ky., October 5, 1816, daughter of Captain John Williams. They came to Platte in 1853, and settled on Todd's Creek. Webb, from whom he was divorced. He married a fourth time, and was again divorced.

When the war broke out, Mr. Darnall was just old enough to be carried away by the enthusiasm in favor of the South; but he soon turned over to the Union side. At the close of the war he entered the political arena, as a Democrat. In 1870 he was chosen county treasurer, re-elected in 1872, and in 1874 was elected to a third term. He was one of the prominent "Ring" men, and was active in starting the Farmers' National Bank, which failed at the time of the Crisp and Sawyer canvas. He was an act ive partisan in favor of Crisp, in both of his contests. But the "Soreheads" in 1880 were in the ascendancy, and Mr. Darnall removed to Colorado. Returning to Leavenworth, broken in fortune, but not in spirit, he was borne by the great financial boom into Kansas City. There he has been laboring, with varying fortune, and it would be hard to say whether he is wealthy or poor. But he possesses the ability, energy, and cordiality of a successful business man, and he may turn the tide of fortune in his favor. Ch:

JULY.

PROF. HUGH B. TODD

July 8—Prof. Hugh B. Todd died at Franklin, Tenn. He was born in Virginia, June 3, 1809. His wife, Eliza, was born May 15, 1813, and died July 20, 1860. Prof. Todd was born to command, and teaching was his heritage. After teaching successfully in Mount Sterling, Ky., he was appointed, in 1850, the first principal of the Camden Point Female Academy. Here he was successful, but divisions and animosities made his position unpleasant, and in 1857 he built up and opened with great eclat Platte City Female Academy. But the war and the death of his faithful wife caused him to give up his place and return to Kentucky. He paid us a visit August 1, 1866. He afterwards taught several schools with success in Kentucky and Tennessee. He married again and a son was born. Prof. Todd was tall, and suave in his address. His voice was always kind, his words pleasant, and his hand generous. He respected the happiness of others, and would give his last dollar to the first call of charity. Hence he was always in pecuniary straits. He was devoted to his scholars, and labored for their advancement. Five hundred noble and accomplished matrons whom he educated, favored, and encouraged will rise up to-day and call him blessed. His failing was that his debts were not promptly paid. But there is perhaps not a man in the county that can bring him in debt, if settlement were made on moral and æsthetic principles. Children by first wife:

I. MOLLIE TODD, m'd W. K. Faulconer. (See.)

II. LAURA TODD, m'd Lient. Lipscomb, of Tennessee.

Dec. 20—W. M. Paxton issues a second volume of poems, of 454 pages. From the notices of this volume we append a short one from the Landmark:

"The new volume of Mr. W. M. Paxton's poems is a remarkable volume, and merits the attention of all lovers of poesy and song. This volume takes a very discursive range in its themes and is distinguished for its lofty sentiments, expressed in the purest diction and adorned with the most beautiful imagery. 'The Sacred Story, from the Agony in the Garden to the Resurrection,' is a grand devotional poem, and will be read and re-read with increasing pleasure. There are a number of other poems which merit particular mention, but space forbids anything like criticism of this admirable volume. In 'A Century Hence' the poet's prophetic vision ranges futurity, and his hopeful muse paints a glowing description of material prosperity and scientific achievement. There are descriptive passages in the 'Legend of the Moaning Falls' hardly surpassed in literature, and in 'Laura's Dream of Naiad-Land' the poet's genius runs riot in a profusion of rich gems.

"The description of the ocean-palace of the Naiad Queen is a fantasy of surprising beauty. Even this exuberant specimen of the poet's fancy is used by him, however, to point a moral and adorn a tale. The author's translation of 'Stabat Mater' in the 'Sacred Story' is one of the most beautifully impressive poems in this volume, and should of itself bring fame to the author. No translation of this hymn we have ever seen near equals this one. A solemn pathos pervades these rythmical stanzas, and brings vividly to the mind the sad scene of the crucifixion. The household poems of this interesting volume, full of purity and truth, are of a high order."

In the Tennessee militia Mr. Smelser attained the rank of major. In the fall of 1837 he came, with his family, to the vicinity of Parkville, and became the central figure of a little band of Methodist pioneers that worshiped at his house. Oct. 1—THOMAS JONES, the centenarian, died at his home, 4 miles east of Platte City, in his 104th year. Next to Delany Bowlin (see), Thomas Jones was the oldest person that ever died in Platte. He was born in Albemarle County, Va., December 3, 1784. His parents were John Jones and Polly Shackelford. In the War of 1812 he was a soldier in Captain Grimes' company, 4th Regiment, Virginia Infantry, serving for six months on the James River. From 1871 to the day of his death he drew a pension at the rate of $8 per month. He came to Platte in 1840.

He first married Betsy Brewster. Of the six children born to her, only W. S. Jones, of Oregon, survives. His second wife was Rachel Kinsey, née Townsend. She died January 19, 1873, childless. Mr. Jones lived single his remaining years, receiving the kind attention of friends, who took as compensation the rent of 80 acres of land that he owned. Six years before his death he remarked to me: "I know I can live but a few more years, or months. I have joined the Methodist Church, and am trying to be prepared for my Lord's coming. I live easy. My heirs are Wm. S. Jones, of Oregon, and the nine children of my deceased daughter, Mrs. Nancy Haynes De Witt. I have made my will, and await God's summons. Old age has gone kindly with me, and I have been well taken care of in my decrepitude. When young I was uncommonly active, but now have to hobble about with a crutch. I am nearly blind." He was buried beside his last wife, in Platte City cemetery.

But on telegraphing home he learned that the bonds were safe, and had not been put in his satchel. It was the occasion of much merriment.

The family settled near Prairie Point. The father died in February, 1857, and left William a large estate. He built a fine house on his father's farm, and, through his generous and hospitable nature, lived beyond his income. He was cajoled and flattered by sycophants, and empty honors thrown upon him. He was made president of the county fair and president of the Parkville & G. R. Railroad Co. He purchased the old bed of said railroad and expended money upon it, hoping to realize a fortune from its sale; but it was a total failure, and he died disappointed and impoverished. He was born near Perryville, Ky., June 25, 1836. He learned the carpenter's business, and came to Weston in 1851. Here he pursued the furniture trade for some years. During the war he was in the provost-marshal's office, and he performed the duty of assigning to each township its quota of recruits. At the close of the war he read law, and November 13, 1866, was licensed. He was marshal of the Weston Court of Common Pleas, and subsequently filled the office of judge of that court. But the court was abolished, and, removing to Platte City, he wrote in the clerks' offices. In 1882 he was elected circuit clerk and held the office two terms. Old Uncle Dave was one of my earliest acquaintances in Platte. He was a kind-hearted and generous old soul, and I never went to a log-rolling or a sale that he was not present; yet he never bought an article that was offered for sale, and he never could get a handspike to suit him. But everybody liked Uncle Davy. His father, his grandfather and his great-grandfather were all named Davy; but with Uncle Davy the line ended. His mother was Polly Reed, and he (Davy (v) ) was born in Garrard County, Ky., January 22, 1802. charge was the best newspaper we have ever had. He had correspondents at every town, and all sides were given a hearing. June 4—HENRY W. MAGERS died at Weston. He was a son of Heinrich Magers (see), and was born in Germany August 7, 1838. The family came to Weston in 1844. Reared as a merchant, Henry W. started a hardware store in Weston, and was highly regarded in business circles, as well as in society. In April, 1878, he was chosen mayor of the city, and filled other positions of honor and trust.

COL. GEORGE S. PARK.

June 6—Colonel George S. Park died at his home in Illinois, and was buried at Parkville, where a massive column of 22 tons weight, of Vermont (his native State) marble, marks his grave, inscribed: "George S. Park, born at Grafton, Vermont, October 28, 1811; died June 6, 1890."

In the Advocate of June 6 (note the coincidence), 1876, I published a kind notice of Colonel Park, a part of which I here copy:

"The time has come to do justice to the name of George S. Park. During the Kansas excitement of 1855-6 his name was cast out, and he was treated with scorn and obloquy; and during the Civil War he was often in personal danger. His schemes of enlarged benevolence were far in advance of the ideas of the people among whom he moved; and now, when the frosts of 65 years have whitened his scanty locks, his zeal in behalf of education and religion nerves him to greater efforts. His Industrial College is already shedding beams of light upon Platte County. Quite a number of youths of both sexes are preparing for lives of usefulness. Two young men are already supplying the pulpits of neighboring towns, and seven Sabbath-schools are sustained by as many students. In a few years these youths will be preaching the gospel in wider fields. Mr. Park has long been planning some scheme of benevolence, and his dreams of usefulness are in part realized in the endowment of Park College. May he long live to support and guide it.

"Mr. Park sprang from an old and worthy family of Vermont. Before he attained his majority his father gave him a farm, which he sold for $1,200 and left for Illinois. His funds were invested in lands, and for several years he supported himself by teaching school. He then entered Illinois College, at Jacksonville, and received a superior education. In 1834 we find him teaching in Calloway County, Mo., where he joined a Presbyterian church, under the ministry of the now sainted Dr. Nelson, author of the work on "Infidelity," published by the Tract Society. When the Texas War broke out, he volunteered and served to the end. His health had been broken down by confinement in the school-room, but the exercise and exposure of a soldier's life in the West restored him to robust health. He was taken from the ranks and made commissary of his regiment. He was with Colonel Fannin when nearly all his men were murdered by order of Santa Ana. They had surrendered on the condition that their lives were to be spared, but were treacherously marched out in divisions, and to the number of 330 were mercilessly shot. When the squad in which Colonel Park was placed was led forth and placed in position, he suspicioned the purpose. They were drawn up in line near a fence, close to Coleta River. At a signal from the commanding officer he observed the men raising their muskets, and he fell prostrate in time to escape their murderous bullets. While protected from view by the smoke, he bounded over the fence, and, amid a shower of balls, reached the wood bordering the river. Though a poor swimmer, he succeeded in crossing the stream, and wandered alone for days through a country deserted by every inhabitant. He subsisted upon provisions found in abundance in the unoccupied dwellings, until he reached a place of safety.

"The Texas War ended, Colonel Park returned to Missouri, and in 1838 selected the mouth of the Platte River as a suitable place for a town. He purchased the claim of Steve English, who had erected on the bank of the Missouri River, where Main Street strikes it, a log warehouse as a steamboat landing. Below the White Aloe Branch, on a gentle elevation, Colonel Park built a comfortable dwelling; and here, in 1839, I first met him; and here commenced a friendship that lasted throughout his life.

"In 1844 Colonel Park laid off Parkville, and sold out lots; built the stone houses at the foot of Main Street, and in 1854 erected the stone hotel, now Park College."

I have not space to follow Colonel Park through his remarkable career. A volume could be filled with accounts of his labors to build up Parkville, his newspaper enterprises, his public improvements, his railroad projects, his work for the church, his loyalty to his country, his sacrifices for freedom; his sufferings for the Union, and especially his heroic faith and burning zeal for Park College. Without his labors, prayers, counsel, and beneficence, the foundations of Park College would never have been laid; or, if laid, would not have achieved success. I was a consulted party to many of Colonel Park's plans of doing good, and I wish I had space to do him the honor he merits. I will still further notice Mr. Park when I reach the death of Dr. J. A. McAfee, which very soon follows.

Mr. Park's first wife was Eliza Vose, who had two children that died in infancy. His second wife was Marie Louise Holmes (sister of Lawson). Her only child is Ella Park, now the wife of Hon. George A. Lawrence, of Galesburg, Ill. She is lovely, both in person and in character, and inherits her father's beneficence. Mr. Lawrence is an eminent lawyer. They often visit Park College, and are continually doing something for its success. Mrs. M. L. Park is a grand and lovely old lady, waiting for the reunion that must take place above.

DR. JOHN ARMSTRONG McAFEE.

June 12—Dr. John Armstrong McAfee, son of Joseph McAfee and Priscilla Armstrong, was born in Marion County, Mo., December 12, 1831. After his academic course at local schools, he pursued a regular course at Westminster College, and graduated in 1859. His alma mater afterwards conferred on him the degree of D.D. August 23, 1859, he married Anna Bailey, born in St. Charles County, Mo., April 28, 1838. Her father was Jas. G. Bailey. From 1859 to 1860 Mr. McAfee taught a young ladies' school in Fulton. He taught also at Ashley and Louisiana, Mo. In 1870 he was called to Highland, Kansas, as professor of Greek. Here he was successfully engaged with a class much devoted to him, when, in 1875, he was solicited by Col. G. S. Park to take the old stone hotel at Parkville and open an industrial school for both sexes on his own account. We have already, under date of April 12, 1875, referred to the negotiations and the acceptance of the place by Mr. McAfee. With faith and prayer he entered on the work, and with God's blessing he laid the foundation of one of the grandest institutions of earth. The trials and discouragements that hedged his way were enough to undermine his reason. But he was swayed by unyielding faith, burning zeal, and God's guiding spirit. He made no false steps, and persevered to the end. When his work was ended, he was called to come up higher, and his place was immediately filled by the widow and her children.

Dr. McAfee and Colonel Park were chosen of God for the noble enterprise they set on foot at Parkville. Neither could have accomplished anything without the other. The zeal of neither ever flagged. Each was necessary for the other—and, like Saul and Jonathan, beautiful in their lives, in death they were not divided. Within the same week they entered the gates of pearl. Their life work was ended. Their labors and prayers, with God's blessing, were rewarded with success. They lie side by side in the cemetery below—and side by side they kneel before the throne. I sang my "Coronach" over their graves. I copy it from my "Legend of Parkville":

CORONACH.

In your lives ye were peerless,
And in death not divided;
For the right ye were fearless,
And for God were decided.
You have gone where vexation
Your communion can't sever,
And where peace and salvation
Shall be yours and forever.

Let the shepherd be taken,
And the flock will be scattered:
And the ship is forsaken
When its rudder is shattered.
But your prayers have been heeded,
And your work shall not perish;
For the Lord when most needed
Will deliver and cherish.

We have come here to cover
Your dear forms 'neath the sod;
But your spirits now hover
Round the throne of your God.
We are left broken-hearted,
But our tears will soon cease;
For the work ye have started
Shall go on and increase.

GOLDEN WEDDING OF W. M. PAXTON AND WIFE.

W. M. Paxton married October 1, 1840, Miss Mary Forman, and to-day the aged pair celebrated the 50th anniversary of their happy union. I gave notice in the papers that my wife and I would be at home on the 1st day of October for all callers. I dedicated a poem to my wife, and published it with the call. About 400 persons came, and my house was open for twelve hours. My friends fixed times at which the different classes and ages should attend, and throughout the day and evening there was a recurrence of guests, who were welcomed, feasted, and dismissed. Judge E. H. Norton, spokesman for a circle of donors, presented us a golden chalice, as a special memento of the occasion, and an heirloom for our descendants.

I have already presented a chart of the family of my wife and myself. I will embrace this opportunity of giving a short notice of our lives since marriage. We were married in the old Forman mansion at Washington, Mason County, Ky., October 1, 1840. My home for twelve months past had been at Martinsville. Thither we started three weeks after marriage. Our route was down the Ohio, and up the Mississippi to St. Louis, by steamboat. Here we took a steamer for Weston, but, on account of low water and approaching winter, we could come no further than to Glasgow. Here we took stage for Martinsville, and after severe trials for the bride we reached our destination late in November. We rented a one-room cabin, worth $5, of General Dorris, and paid him $3 per month for it. In the spring we removed to my claim on the prairie, seven miles east of Platte City, now belonging to John T. Kuykendall. Here I enclosed and put in cultivation a large farm. In 1849 we became tired of our prairie life, and January 1st, 1850, we removed to Platte City, and settled where we now live. I was so imprudent as to give up my practice of law, and, with Dr. H. B. Callahan, bought out J. H. Johnston's store. We did well, and in 1853 bought James Martin's one-half interest in the Platte City Water Mills. General W. B. Almond owned the other half of the mill property, then valued at $30,000. Callahan and I bought enough of Almond's interest to make each partner own one-third. We did well until 1860, when General Almond and Mr. M. N. Owen (who had bought out Callahan) died, and left all in my charge. The war broke out, and the property became valueless. The estates of both Almond and Owen proved insolvent, and their debts, the debts of the firm, and my own liabilities fell upon me. I had been imprudent in going security for my friends, all of whom went south, leaving me to pay their debts. My liabilities were $75,000. The war closed, and I proceeded to sell off my large landed estate, and to pay my most pressing debts. Conscious of my precarious situation, I formed a partnership with Joseph E. Merryman and resumed the practice of law. Our success was extraordinary, and I was able, in 1870, to settle the last debt I owed. I had paid $25,000 as surety for various persons, and now resolved to indorse for none, except in the way of charity. In 1872 I made advances to my three daughters, and my will, giving the remainder of my estate to my wife. But in 1874 I became hard of hearing, and had to cease practicing law. Having abstracts of lands of Platte County, I have since that day been able to earn enough to support me and my family. But my restless mind sought employment, and I turned my attention to literature and poetry. In 1881 I issued a small volume—135 pages—of poetry, and distributed, gratuitously, 600 copies. For many years I had been gathering data and material for sketches and genealogies of the Marshall Family, from which, on my mother's side, I am descended. In 1884 my daughter Phoebe and I started on a two-months visit to relatives in Missouri, Kentucky, Virginia, and Maryland. I visited nearly every family, and copied records and sketches of the Marshalls, from the earliest myths to the last-born child. Upon my return, I issued a volume of 425 pages, entitled "The Marshall Family," with genealogies of those connected with them by marriage. I again turned my attention to poetry, and in 1887 issued a second volume of poems of 454 pages. These volumes have not returned me one-half the cost. Since this last volume, I have written and published in various ways enough to make a third volume of poems. But for eight years past I have found my chief employment in gathering and arranging the voluminous material of the present book of history, sketches, and genealogies of Platte County, Mo., and of its early families.

My wife and I are in the autumn of life. We are in our 79th year. We have long been members of the Presbyterian Church. Our children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren are all with us. We are a happy family on earth, and hope we will form an unbroken circle in heaven. In another place I have noticed briefly our posterity. If God still lengthens my days, I shall devote them to poetry, and, like the dying swan, shall sing myself to sleep.

WILLIAM C. BAKER.

Oct. 2—William C. Baker died at Plattsburg, whither he had gone to receive the attention of relatives in his protracted illness. He was a son of John Baker and Mary Bradford, and was born in Fayette County, Ky., in November, 1829. William C. graduated at Center College, Kentucky, in 1849. He chose the law as his profession, and coming to Platte City, he was admitted to the bar March 3, 1852. He was at one time public administrator, and for years wrote in the county offices. His mind was trained to thought—his reading embraced every department of literature, and his conversation was interesting and instructive. He had little to say, but his practice received profound attention. It is said he never lost a case. But in the midst of a successful career he was attacked by acute rheumatism, and his remaining years were full of suffering. First he moved on crutches, then he wheeled himself in an invalid chair, and finally he lay for many months on his bed, only leaving it as lifted from it. Several months prior to his death he was conveyed to friends in Plattsburg, who smoothed his course to the grave. He never married, and never joined any church. Two aunts of W. C. Baker, Margaret and Catherine Baker, married brothers of Senator Atchison.

JUDGE G. W. DUNN

Died at his home at Richmond, Mo. The following is part of a tribute I paid him at the time:

Judge Dunn is no more! Born in Mercer County, Ky., October 15, 1815; his pure spirit ascended to its final home the 24th of October, 1891. Borne down by the weight of seventy-six years, and by the excruciating pangs of asthma, he gladly exchanged a bed of pain for a throne of glory. At the age of twenty he entered on the study of law, at Nicholasville, and taught school for a support. In 1836-7 he attended the law department of Transylvania University, and in 1839 came West, and settled at Richmond, Mo. In 1841 he returned to Kentucky, and married Miss Susan M. Henderson, who survives. Reared in the Presbyterian faith, he was an honored and beloved brother throughout life. I shall not trace his career as a lawyer and jurist. That is part of the history of the State. He held the scales of Justice in equipoise, and no bribe ever tarnished his spotless ermine. And yet his sympathetic heart moderated his condemnation, and "Mercy's tears bedewed the beam" of the balance of Justice.

I formed acquaintance with Judge Dunn in 1838, when he was studying law in Kentucky, and until his death we were friends. Others may commend him for his uprightness, but I desire now to express my admiration of him as a poet. In 1882 he published a small volume. Some of the pieces are admirable. I can point out imperfections in nearly every piece written by another that I have critically examined, but a half-dozen of Judge Dunn's poems are above criticism. He is the only poet that has ever commended in verse the administration of justice. The bar of Missouri owe him a sacred debt. His "Temple of Justice" and his "Ermine and Harp" should be framed in gold, and hung in every court-room. The diction of Judge Dunn's poems is always correct, the sentiment is pure and striking, the measure and accent are faultless, and there is melody in every line.

Judge Dunn's poetic talent was of the highest order. I have never met his equal in pure and lofty sentiment, nor his superior in critical acumen. I have seen him, under the inspiration of a sublime conception, spring from his seat and clap his hands with enthusiastic emotion. He possessed the rare talent of polishing and improving his verses. He had the power to criticise his own writings. Each change was an improvement, and after years of correcting, his lines were beyond criticism. I will conclude by a stanza of a poem I wrote in his honor, and which my granddaughter handed to him while on the bench, with a bouquet of flowers, September 29, 1879: (See.)

These verdant immortelles proclaim
 The chaplet that undying fame
 Shall wreath around thy honored name,
     Or place upon thine urn.
 This heliotrope, whose rich perfume,
 As fragrant incense, fills the room,
 Foretells that, rising from the tomb,
     Thou shalt to bliss return.

Col. John H. Winston went to California, and sojourned until January, 1894.

Leaves Weston and settles at Savannah, Mo. His parents were Nathaniel Price and Nancy Lee, and he was born in Bedford County, Va., September 7, 1829. His father removed to Lafayette County, Mo., where he was elected to the office of county judge. James A. spent his youth on his father's farm, and was educated at Lexington and Pleasant Hill. After a full course in dentistry, he entered on the practice at Ft. Leavenworth in 1851. February 5, 1852, he married, first, Rosetta Warner, a sister of Thos. F. Warner. (See.) They removed to California, but, owing to the illness of Mrs. Price, they returned to Weston. After assisting Mr. Warner in his business for a year or two, he was elected in August, 1859, clerk of the Weston Court of Common Pleas, and reelected in August, 1860. In December, 1862, Dr. Price enlisted in the 18th Missouri Militia, and was made captain. He was severely wounded at Shiloh, and he now enjoys a pension for his services. He was promoted to major, for meritorious conduct, and for a time commanded the regiment. After his return, Col. Price engaged in recruiting for the 16th Kansas. His loyalty was never doubted, though his enemies hatched up charges against him; but, on trial by a military commission, he was, April 1863, honorably discharged. After the war, he engaged in the practice of dentistry at Weston, and for a time opened an office at Platte City. In 1874 he was elected mayor of Weston, and reelected in 1880. When in command at Weston, his discipline was strict, and order was enforced; and he thus incurred the hatred of some who thought him too severe. He held the office of postmaster at Weston for a number of years, under President Grant. Mrs. Price died December 16, 1875, leaving:

Hodge and Eliza Beckum, now Mrs. Tolly. George led a precarious existence for forty years in Platte City. Intemperance was his failing; but drinking produced drowsiness, and never violence, or even talking; yet the last ten years of his life were spent in a heroic effort to curb his appetite, and to furnish the necessities of life to his loved family. He was humble, true, and faithful to man and God, and as a member of the Methodist Church set a good example to the world. He was generally at prayer-meeting and preaching. I loved him as a friend, often helped him, and strove to hold him up. He was a good man, and a weak one, too. His widow married, second, June 6, 1895, S. A. Rose, of Stanbury, and left him. She died in 1896. Ch:

REV. GEO. S. WOODWARD.

April 1—Rev. Geo. S. Woodward died at Leavenworth. He was a native of Maine, and a graduate of Bowdoin College. He commenced preaching at Parkville in March, 1849, to a Presbyterian church of three members. He soon raised $500 for a church, and a like sum for a parsonage, and by his labors the foundations were laid of the present church and college; and it was but an act of justice that the first and principal structure of Park College has, since his death, been called "Woodward Institute." He married April 7, 1853, Mrs. Eliza Tylee, widow of John R. Tylee, a lawyer, who came to Weston in 1842, and died about 1850. Mr. Woodward supplied the Platte City Presbyterian church before the war, but his fidelity to the Union cause brought him into danger, and he accepted a call to Leavenworth. From disease of the throat he had to stop preaching, and he entered into the insurance business. He was a learned, true, and faithful man of God. He left a small estate to his widow, his son, and his daughter. I am proud to claim him as a friend and brother.

STATE ASSESSMENT.

The constitution provides that when the State assessment exceeds $900,000,000, the State levy shall fall to 15 cents on $100. The assessment of 1892 is $907,033,710; at 15 cents this will produce only $1,360,550, thus falling short of last year (which was $1,755,445) nearly $400,000. To meet this deficit, the State Board of Equalization called on the county courts to increase assessments. But this is an off year, and no assessments of land can be made. Therefore the $40,000 apportioned to Platte had to be assessed on personal property only. No increase was made on the assessment of land. This increase and inequality produced dissatisfaction.

In 1892 the surplus products of Platte were $1,479,665; per capita, $91.06. Clay's were $1,503,184; per capita, $75.70.

The per capita of Clinton was $75.30; of Buchanan, $35.42; of Andrew, $55.63; of Atchison, $32.44. This shows that in industry and thrift we surpass our neighbors.

In 1891 our surplus cattle were valued at $309,200; our surplus hogs, $330,880; our surplus horses and mules, $249,600; our surplus wheat, $226,906.

DR. C. C. KEMPER.

May 3—Dr. C. C. Kemper, cashier of the Dearborn Bank, is found dead in his bed. His life was insured for the large sum of $90,000, and an effort was made to show he had poisoned himself. But the insurance was paid. His will gave to his brother and sisters, Lee P. Kemper, Minnie Kemper, and Mary L. Kemper, $5,000 each. To Flora A. Dutcher, a sister, and to W. H. Kemper, a brother, each $2,500. To Mary R. Wilkerson $400, and to Miss Florence Strother, Mrs. N. D. Wilkerson, and John D. Wilkerson each $500. He left $5,000 to the Camden Point Orphan School, to endow the Kemper scholarship. The balance went to his heirs at law. Dr. C. C. Kemper was a son of V. G. Kemper and Sarah A. Holland, and was born in Benton County, Mo., February 9, 1852; graduated in medicine at Keokuk, Iowa, in 1873; married December 25, 1877, Mary Woodson, daughter of B. J. She died, childless, January 18, 1879. Dr. Kemper came to Platte City in September, 1878. ## PRESIDENT FRED G. GAYLORD

Died at Daughters' College. No other man has exerted such good and lasting influence on Platte County as President Gaylord. Born in Oneida County, N. Y., January 24, 1820, he received a finished education in his native State, and his life was devoted to teaching. He pursued his calling in Virginia and Kentucky. In 1850 he visited California by way of the Isthmus. Returning to Estill County, Ky., he married November 10, 1855, Mrs. Mary Park, widow of Elihu Park (i), and daughter of Rev. Thomas Ballew and Fannie Hubbard, of Virginia. She was born November 19, 1812; died December 25, 1884. (See her sketch.) In 1857 the family came to Platte City, and November 2d of that year he opened a school for boys, which he discontinued at the beginning of the war. After sojourning awhile in Atchison, Kansas, he took charge, January 1, 1863, of the Camden Point Female Academy. The following year he became principal of the Platte City Female Academy, which in 1870 was made Daughters' College. The college prospered until 1884, when Mrs. Gaylord died. This bereavement broke the strongest tie that bound him to earth, and he slowly sank to the grave. On the 25th of June, 1888, conscious that his life-work had ended, he appointed Mrs. T. W. Park his successor, and delivered over to her charge the college, taking the humble position of her assistant. But his work was finished—his spirit chastened and subdued, and he waited patiently the summons of death.

President Gaylord was 6 feet 2 inches tall, and weighed, in health, 210 pounds. His address was formal and condescending. His gracious demeanor inspired esteem. His heart was pure and his affections childlike. Reared by Quaker parents, the law of peace was on his tongue. A thousand fathers and mothers in Israel acknowledge him as their spiritual father. A fund has been subscribed by his former pupils to erect for him a memorial, and Daughters' College has been christened "Gaylord Institute." His Masonic brethren attended his remains to the grave, and laid on his coffin a sprig of acacia. He left no children. A tablet in Gaylord Institute commemorates his virtues.

Dec. 29—GEORGE T. HULSE died at Mt. Vernon, Ohio. He was born in Orange County, N. Y., October 10, 1810; came to Weston in 1840; married July 13, 1842, Mrs. Mary V. Van Bibber, née Warner, a sister of Theo. F. Warner. He was a justice of the peace of Weston, and established a character for business rectitude. He was selected as cashier for the branch of the Mechanics' Bank at Weston. But when the war broke out, and his Union sentiments endangered him, he went to St. Louis, as cashier of the parent bank (Mechanics), and continued there until age unfitted him for business. His wife died November 6, 1884. For many years I was intimate with Mr. Hulse. We were members of the same church, and agreed in political sentiments. As long as he lived we corresponded, and I regarded him as one of the best, holiest, and purest of men. He left but one child, J. W. Hulse, to inherit his large moneyed estate.

After a long drouth, that did no harm to wheat, we have 1½ inches of rain.

MARCH.

March 4—MRS. SALLIE JENKINS, née Guthrie, wife of Wm. T. (see), died in Platte City. She was a woman pure in her nature, accomplished by education, attractive by her beauty, affectionate in her disposition, and charming by her loveliness. She left her little daughter, Ruth, to her father's care, telling her that angels, when they had taken her mother to heaven, would return for her. From the poem I published at the funeral, I select two stanzas:

She's gone to the land where there's rest for the weary—
 Her sanctified spirit has fled.
 Without her the world to her husband is dreary,
 And bitter the tears he will shed.
 And sweet little Ruth will no more have a mother,
 For love, consolation, and prayer;
 For no one can give to the child of another
 Parental affection and care.

The cherub believes that while mother was sleeping,
 Good angels removed her above;
 And soon they'll restore to the mother's kind keeping
 The child of her infinite love.
 Go, give to the motherless infant a blessing;
 Go print a soft kiss on her brow;
 No more she'll enjoy her dear mother's caressing—
 She'll often be comfortless now.

JAMES HARVEY JONES.

April 5—James Harvey Jones is killed by F. Marion Oldham in an altercation in a field rented by Jones to Oldham. The Argus thus reports the case: "Zolly Jones, the only child of J. H. Jones, married a daughter of F. Marion Oldham, and had rented him some land. There had been some misunderstanding or ill feeling about it, and it is supposed both parties anticipated trouble, as they were armed. F. M. Oldham and his son Richard, with Zolly Jones, were plowing in the rented field, when Jas. H. Jones approached. What words passed we could not learn; but Mr. Jones fired one shot at Richard, inflicting a wound in the left arm. He then faced F. M. Oldham, pistol in hand. Oldham was armed, and began firing. He fired four shots, each of which hit Mr. Jones—a fatal one piercing the neck, under the chin. The victim died almost immediately, about a hundred feet from the plows, where the shooting began."

Mr. Jones was a man of excitable temperament, and reckless, both in words and acts. He had been a party to several desperate affrays, and was known as a gallant soldier of the army of the South. Of festive disposition and generous nature, his home was the center of gaiety and hospitality. His death gave pain to a large circle of friends, and shrouded the community with sorrow. Examinations were fully made into the matter, but no indictment followed. The remains were conveyed to Mt. Sterling, Ky., for interment. Mr. Jones was born in Montgomery County, Ky., January 26, 1837. He was a son of David L. Jones, of Bath County, Ky., and a grandson of John Jones, who came from Virginia. His mother was Bettie Jameson, daughter of Thomas Jameson and Sallie Smith. He married October 9, 1860, Fannie Ragan, born October 17, 1842, a daughter of William Ragan. She is a sister of Mrs. Elihu Park. After serving three years under Gen. John Morgan, in Company I, 8th Kentucky Cavalry, C. S. A., he came with his family to Platte in October, 1869, and settled six miles east of Platte City, upon a large and fertile farm. Mrs. Jones possesses intelligence, spirit, and vivacity; is a proficient in music, and now holds the position of president of the County Lodge of Daughters of the Confederacy. Their only child is W. Zolly Jones, born November 24, 1862; married April 17, 1884, Junie Oldham, daughter of F. M. (See.)

April 24—DR. JACOB FERREL died on his farm near Artesian Springs. He was one of the eight children of Ben Ferrel and Nancy Miller, and born in Fulton County, Pa., January 19, 1819. In 1829 his father removed to Berkley County, Va., and died in 1850. After an academic literary education, he attended medical lectures at Cincinnati, and received his degree. After practicing in Virginia and Ohio, he came to Platte in 1865. His celebrated brother, William Ferrel, of Kansas City, was distinguished as a mathematician and scientist. His efficient services were in constant demand by the signal office at Washington. Dr. Ferrel himself was admitted by his professional associates to be one of the most learned physicians in the West. I enjoyed his confidence, and regarded him in heart, soul, and intellect as one of my most deserving friends. He was conscientiously honest, not only in his dealings, but in private matters and political sentiments. He had the virtue and independence to avow his patriotic feelings in the face of Secession, and to vote for Prohibition, when his party was scorned. He had the nerve to follow the path of duty, though it cost him a loss of social position. His occasional pieces in the county papers displayed sound judgment and enlightened thought. He left a widow and two daughters: Mary, died Dec. 31, 1895; Nancy Ann. Benj. Ferrel is a brother of Dr. Jacob.

April 26—BENNETT F. HUDSON died at his home on Pleasant Ridge. He was born in Woodford County, Ky., July 21, 1837; came to Platte in 1842, and married Sallie Moore.

JUDGE WILLIAM CHESNUT,

Died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Delia Jones, in St. Joseph, whither she had gone for medical attention. She was brought home to Platte City for burial. Mrs. Lucinda Chesnut, née Garrard, was born in Kentucky December 28, 1827; married November 2, 1847, William Chesnut. Her father, Daniel Garrard, was a colonel in the War of 1812, and her grandfather, Harry Tolman, was secretary of state during Gov. Garrard's administration. She was a large and handsome woman, and possessed of amiability of disposition and Christian piety.

Judge William Chesnut was born June 5, 1826, in Laurel County, Ky.; died in Platte City March 7, 1895. His parents were Abraham Chesnut and Elizabeth Blakley. He received a good education and became a successful merchant. His latter years were spent, in part, on his farm, and subsequently in Platte City, as a dealer in horses, mules, and cattle. His sound judgment, quiet demeanor, and independence of thought made him a successful dealer. He accumulated money, and invested in choice lands, which he deeded to his children. He raised a part of a company for Winston's Confederate regiment, but soon tired out, and returned home at the end of a short enlistment. In November, 1878, Mr. Chesnut was elected a county court justice, and reelected in 1880 and 1882. He resigned March 1, 1884, and R. L. Waller (i) was appointed to the vacancy. In 1880, and again in 1881, he was president of the County Agricultural Association. For several terms he was an alderman of Platte City, and did more, without compensation, for the town than any other officer we have ever had. He expended much labor and his own money for the improvement of the streets. He lived on his farm, five miles east of Platte City, until June 8, 1884, when he moved into town. He survived his wife but a short time, and died March 7, 1895. His estate, including advancements, amounted to $150,000. Ch:

FREDERICK KRAUSE

Died at Platte City. He was a son of Gottlieb Krause and Augusta Hesse, and was born in Prussia March 27, 1837. He came to America in 1852; was at St. Louis in 1855, at Memphis in 1857, and finally settled at Platte City March 26, 1859. Here he engaged in the business of a butcher. He prospered, and married Elizabeth Christy, who died childless. He then married September 26, 1866, Nannie Duncan, daughter of the venerable Geo. P. Duncan, of Clinton County, and sister of the sainted elder, John H. Duncan. (See.) She was born April 18, 1847.

No other man did so much for the improvement of Platte City. It is studded with substantial buildings erected by his enterprise. The finest and costliest business houses on Main Street were built by him, and his rent accounts are now the chief support of his family. His public spirit was continually planning new improvements. A few miles east of Platte City he had a large farm, which occupied his attention during his latter years.

Mr. Krause was a zealous member of the Christian Church. His religion was not only sentimental, but energetic. He attended the conventions of the church, and gave earnest attention to the evangelistic work. He read much, and he carried with him tracts and papers for distribution. He was an ardent Prohibitionist, and never pretended to be a member of any other party. His votes were always cast for good men and proper measures, without party feeling. His religion controlled his politics, and at the next session after his death an eulogy was pronounced upon his character. This duty was assigned to me, as one of his particular friends in his lifetime. His will left all his property to his widow, in trust for herself and children. At his funeral I read a poem, from which I reproduce a stanza:

Where 's the man so true and faithful
 To the Savior's holy cause?
 Where 's the man so firm and loyal
 To the State—its courts and laws?
 In the word of God he trusted,
 And its precepts were obeyed.
 He was true to faith and conscience,
 And he voted as he prayed.

Mrs. Krause still occupies the family mansion in Platte City
 Her children:

DEATH OF NEWTON WINN.

Aug. 16—Newton Winn is shot in the court-room at Platte City by Watson Reed. A feud had existed between the families for many years. On a former occasion, Reed had shot Winn, and the bullet was removed by the surgeons who operated on him at the second shooting. In 1893 Winn claimed 11 hogs found in his mark, and in the pen of Reed. The latter refused to give them up, and Winn replevined them in the circuit court of Clinton County, and the sheriff delivered him the hogs. The case was brought, by change of venue, to Platte, and was set for trial at the August term in 1895. There were many witnesses, and trouble was anticipated. The evidence was through, and the attorneys were addressing the jury. Col. Cross, attorney for Reed, was criticising the testimony of a son of Winn, and used about these words: "I have sons at home, whom it has always been my ambition to bring up honest, sober, and industrious; and not for every hog in Clinton County would I have one of them to testify from signs given him by his father." Instantly, with a cry of rage, Winn, the father, sprang forward, striking at Cross with one hand, and grabbing him by the collar with the other. The first stroke, it is thought, missed Cross, but the next struck him on the back of the head. F. M. Wilson sprang forward, with a view of parting them, when Watt Reed's revolver sent forth, in quick succession, three balls—a fourth was stopped by a deputy sheriff. Reed held the pistol with both hands, and determination was depicted in his face. Winn whirled half round, clasped his abdomen, and emitted a cry of pain upon receiving the first shot. A second shot passed through Winn's arm, and the third missed. The three shots left their marks on table, floor, and wall. With assistance, Winn went down stairs, and the trial progressed. He was operated upon by surgeons, and the wound in the abdomen pronounced mortal. After giving his statement before an officer, he died, and the next day was removed to Clinton County. The jury gave the hogs to Reed, but a motion for a new trial was filed, and taken by Judge Herndon under advisement. Reed is now imprisoned at Kansas City. A new trial of the hog case was granted. There lies my dear daughter, for such I esteemed her,

Her spirit has gone to the Lord who redeemed her,
And with Him forever in rapture shall stay.
All pain and afflictions, all sickness and sorrow,
Are changed into peace, in the life without end;
No cares for to-day, and no fears for to-morrow,
Shall ever again her sweet spirit offend.

No feeling of scorn, and no glance of derision,
 Was ever expressed in her soul-beaming eye;
 But all who approached her, whatever their mission,
 Were charmed by her grace, and could boldly draw nigh.
 To God she was faithful in prayers and in labors,
 And worship was always her greatest delight.
 Admired by strangers, and loved by her neighbors,
 Her name will be dear, and her memory be bright.

CROPS AND FRUITS.

The successive freezing and thawing throughout the past winter killed many crops of wheat, especially in the northern portion of the county; and many crops are plowed up and the ground planted in corn. In low bottoms of the Missouri and the Platte wheat is destroyed by high waters. Every kind of fruit promises an abundant harvest.

April 19—The Missouri River attains the height of 22½ feet above low water. The melting snows above, with abundant rains in this locality, put the Missouri over the low bottoms, and stopped the railroads for a week. Mails came by the Rock Island and the Maple Leaf roads. Platte River covered the low bottoms, was three feet on the turnpike west of the Platte City bridge, and in places touched the rails of the Rock Island road at Tracy. But little damage was done to farmers, as all the land became ready for the plow in ample season. The Platte was highest April 25th.

But the clerk does not add up the warrants issued. The figures are mine. His statement seems to be copied, in part, at least, from the treasurer's books, and is no check upon the treasurer. He sets forth separately, each fund, and ends with a recapitulation of all. He mixes the Beverly Drainage Fund, the Lee and Waldron road funds, of which the county is only trustee, with the revenue funds. He charges receipts from fines and penalties, and transfers part of them to the school fund. The jury fund gets from unclaimed fees $200, from interest fund, $1,600, and from State insurance fund, $100, and these latter funds are charged with the same. The amounts so transferred increase both receipts and expenditures. The clerk charges the county not with warrants drawn, but with warrants paid. My statement, therefore, shows our expenses several thousand dollars less than appears from the clerk's statement.

May 27—Ascension Day observed by Weston Commandery, No. 2, and Belt (Platte City) Commandery, No. 9. The Knights met at Woodruff, and went to Weston, saluting resident knights by the way. At Weston, after a banquet at the opera house, the commanderies had an oration by Sir Knight C. B. Powers.

W. C. Wells has erected upon his cemetery lot at Platte City a family monument of marble weighing 30,000 pounds.

May 29—Observed as Decoration Day at Platte City. Five hundred people visited the cemetery, and found nearly all the graves beautifully adorned with flowers.

The financial power of Park College is a wonder! In the last week $790 have been generously contributed to its various funds, in small sums, the donors numbering 422, and hailing from twenty States. And an additional sum of $5,000 was offered on easy conditions. That little two-column, 7 by 10 paper, the Park College Record, enters weekly into many thousand families, and elicits their sympathies and their contributions.

June 7—The skies are cloudless, the atmosphere is mild and balmy, the wheat-fields are white to the harvest, the farmer sings as he plows his corn, the pastures are green, the brook carols as it winds its way, the cattle take their rest in the shade, health prevails, happiness smiles in every face, and all omens are propitious.

CONCLUSION.

My volume of heraldry is now complete. The labors of a life-time are ended. God lengthened out my days to seventy and nine years, that I might preserve the names and record the deeds of my early companions—the pioneers of Platte. Sixty years ago ten thousand people of many States, countries, and nationalities settled upon our lovely prairies and charming woodlands. A friendless youth, I came among them. I was a stranger, without relative or friend. Upon this fertile soil I made my home, and the sturdy backwoodsmen around me became my companions and friends. My memory embalms them, and my book records their virtues. Their hands broke the prairies and subdued the forest. A tribute of gratitude is due them for the farms and mansions we now enjoy. In this book the aspirations of my life are fulfilled. The names of my companions were fading into forgetfulness. My volume is the first, but it will not be the last, monument erected to their memory. Upon the foundations I have laid, posterity will add memorials of each family, as precious stones in the rising temple of our heraldry. I have framed the warp, and intermarriage will supply the woof of the checkered damask of our society. We will form one family and be all akin. The branches of the various family trees will be so interwoven as to make one banian, affording delicious shade for the whole people. Each youth will be able to trace a lineage to a hundred pioneers. As the great Mississippi commingles the waters of a thousand brooks, so each youth will be able to show that his blood descends from a thousand sources. Pride of ancestry is a virtue. The man that has none is but little above the brute. It is the associate of honor and the companion of truth. It inspires emulation, encourages enterprise, and insures triumph. When our children's children read the records of their ancestors, they will be proud of their names and grateful for their estates. Each will be anxious to add a sprig of laurel to the garland already upon his escutcheon. To hail from Platte will be an honor. No other county in our State has a book of heraldry.

My volume is a chronicle. It is a record of the events of my own day. Of course there are many errors; but they are innocent, and I hope will be pardoned. I expect criticism and apprehend censure. But I have been candid, and under condemnation will be patient.

I am old, but hope yet to serve my beloved people. I have ordered an interleaved copy of my book to be prepared, that while I live I may continue my county's record, and leave it when I die to the historical association that some day will be formed. My files of newspapers shall also be handed down to posterity. I solicit carefully prepared sketches and genealogies of our people, that they may be preserved in good form.

I add my patriarchal blessing upon the people of Platte County!

INDEX.

[Females are indexed by their maiden names. The letters a, b, c, and d, refer, respectively, to the 1st, 2d, 3d, and 4th quarters of the pages they follow. Holiday observances are not indexed because they will be found under the stated days. School and municipal elections will be found under April 1st of each year; so the result of general elections will be found August 1st or November 1st of alternate years. Graduates of colleges will be found June 1st and under "Graduates" in the index. County finances are shown May 1st. Lists of officers and of the business men of the towns and cities are shown every 1st day of January. The towns, cities, banks, country churches, steamboats, Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, Good Templars, etc., are sub-indexed. County officers, crops, prices, bank deposits, etc., are tabulated.]
