Seeking stimulus

Membership learns how federal funds could help the Tribe

By Ron Karten

Smoke Signals staff writer

Tribal Planning and Grants Manager Kim Rogers gave a PowerPoint presentation describing Tribal efforts to secure federal stimulus dollars as they become available at the April 5 General Council meeting held at the Tribal Community Center in Grand Ronde.

Rogers said that Tribal Council priorities included six building projects, six road projects and seven infrastructure projects. (See sidebar on page 3)

All, as required by the American Recovery Reinvestment Act — are shovel ready and can be completed by 2010.

This potential windfall was made possible, said Tribal Chairwoman Cheryl A. Kennedy, because Native Americans across the country pulled together.

“The Tribes were not included to participate” initially, Kennedy said of the stimulus package. “It took considerable lobbying and Tribes coming forward from across the country.”

Now included, Tribes see funding coming “mostly through existing programs,” Rogers said. Some are allocated by formula. Some are competitions against other Tribes or local governments. And while most are grants, loan programs also are available as part of the stimulus, Rogers said.

New voter signatures needed

By Dean Rhodes

Smoke Signals editor

Grand Ronde voters soon will be receiving new signature verification forms in the mail as the Election Board starts the process of following a new Election Ordinance amendment.

The new Election Ordinance amendment adopted by Tribal Council requires mailing of a new signature verification form to each voter “who has a signature verification form on file with the Board which is five years old or more in order to obtain an updated signature.”

The form must be signed and requires voters have it notarized or that they provide a legible copy of a valid Tribal identification card, driver’s license, state-issued identification card or passport that bears the voter’s signature.

The signature verification form also gives voters the option of opting out of having their name, city and state listed on the voters list provided to Tribal Council candidates, as well as having their complete address provided to a mailing service that Tribal Council candidates can use to send out campaign material.

Unlike previous years, the Election Board will distribute a copy of the voters list and official campaign mailing instructions to all Tribal Council candidates at the June meeting at which nominations are accepted.

Voters must have a signature verification form on file to receive an absentee ballot. ■

LettersDear Smoke Signals:

Carl and Betty Lambert would like to thank family and friends for the cards and support in the loss of our grandson, Alan Johnson, who suffered a fatal seizure on March 31 and leaves behind a daughter.

Betty Lambert
 Roll #2104

Dear Smoke Signals:

I am speaking for all the Native brothers incarcerated in the three minimum prison facilities in Salem — Mill Creek Correctional Facility, Santiam Correctional Institute and Oregon State Penitentiary minimum. We are in need of a volunteer to come in and run or just sit in while we run our sweat lodge ceremony like a chaperone.

We have a lot of Natives from a lot of great nations looking for spiritual guidance and balance to walk the Red Road in prison and to continue to walk it upon our release. Learning our Native culture for some is so important. There are Natives who never had the opportunity to learn our sacred ways to better themselves and maybe save their lives.

The inmates at the three prisons circle up for our sweat lodge ceremony at Santiam Correctional Institute since it is the only prison out of the three that has a sweat lodge, once a month or sometimes once every two months. It is not enough. There are other spiritual programs that have meetings three times a week. The Native Circle is always cut short on our rights of our ceremonies because a lack of volunteers to come in.

We have one volunteer who is a great man who we have all the love and respect for, but he is getting up on his age, plus because of transportation problems he cannot make it all the time.

So please, we are asking for help, for a volunteer. To become a volunteer, contact Dr. Richard Roy, Lead Chaplain, SCI/MCCF, 4005 Aumsville Highway S.E., Salem, Ore. 97317, or 503-378-2144, ext. 423, or fax 503-378-8520.

Aho!

Tim Kneeland
 Roll #920

Dear Smoke Signals:

This letter is regarding the sale of the Grand Ronde Reservation as of June 27, 1901, and approved April 28, 1904. This was for 25,791 acres, which sold for $28,500. That is approximately $1.10 an acre. The vote was 60 adult men voting out of the 107 adult men on the reservation. The payment was to be made to adults share and share alike and the children could not receive their share until they reached the age of 18 years. The information does not include that 440 acres were saved for government purposes and when no longer needed would either be allotted to minor beneficiaries who had not received allotments of land or sold for the benefit of the Indians at the discretion of the Secretary.

The information regarding the sale of the Grand Ronde Reservation in the state of Oregon is documented on pages 435, 436 and 437 in the book "Documents of American Indian Diplomacy" by Vine DeLoria, Raymond J. DeMallie and Daniel Inouye.

When our membership argues about voting for Tribal Council membership and how few voted for the amendments to our Constitution and bylaws (Re: Membership), let us remember 1901 and when only 60 adult men were able to sell our reservation. I suppose there are documents somewhere in the archives on how this sale was approached, discussed and concluded. Our official Tribal government has gone through changes over the years after the establishment of the Grand Ronde Reservation on June 30, 1857. I am not able to find the documentation of when or how a formal Tribal government organization took place. I believe it was the Indian Reorganization Act, June 1, 1934, that made the Grand Ronde Tribes a formal organization recognized by the federal government. However, with the lack of a formal Tribal organization, it appears in print that a convening of the adult men of Grand Ronde took place in 1901 and the agenda was to conclude the sale of the reservation to the U.S. government. The land was subsequently available for other purposes rather than the future benefit of the Grand Ronde Indian Tribal membership.

I strongly suggest that the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde develop a history class to research documents of our beginning to the present time. It should prove helpful to our youth to know their Tribal history. American history is taught that way.

Corrections: In the April 1 Smoke Signals, Tribal Elder Leonette Galligher's parents were identified as Yakama Tribal members. In fact, Leonette's mother, Margaret Hoptowitz Vivette, was Yakama, but her father, Leonard Vivette, was Grand Ronde.

Also, a cutline in the March 15 Smoke Signals incorrectly identified Arianna Nava-Sanchez as a Tribal member. She is a Tribal descendant.

Smoke Signals regrets the errors.

$1.6 million already allocated to Tribe

Kim Rogers, Tribal Planning and Grants Manager, speaks to the Tribal membership at the April 5 General Council meeting.

Most notices for proposals are just now coming out, and Rogers said that the Tribe is taking advantage of these opportunities.

The Tribe also is looking for possible stimulus funding sources to help site leftover Federal Emergency Management Agency trailers from the December 2007 Vernonia flood.

Tribal representatives plan to look over the trailers and evaluate their condition, said Tribal Council member Valerie Sheker. In fact, the Tribe already has looked into using some of these trailers as transitional housing for Tribal members who are homeless or otherwise in transition, she said.

Tribal member Perri McDaniel asked about the Tribe's use of renewable energy technology, particularly related to Tribal construction funded by federal stimulus funds.

"The Tribal Housing Authority is in the process of retrofitting the Housing Authority office with solar panels to help evaluate their value to use in the future on our rental projects here in town," Sheker said.

"We are looking at putting solar panels in Elder Rentals Phase II, which will benefit from getting the bugs out of any maintenance or operational problems that may arise from the Housing Authority project."

The Tribe has been allocated $301,000 for energy efficiency and conservation, Rogers said. The Tribe is reviewing how best to use those funds, but no decision has yet been made.

Tribal Elder and former Tribal Council member Wesley Buddy West asked why the Tribe hasn't applied for federal funds available for using alternative energy.

"There's a lot of potential that we could take advantage of," West said.

"The money is there" for renewable projects, said Tribal member Bryan Mercier, who works as a Tribal Account Executive for the Bonneville Power Administration. "(Through the stimulus), they have $5 billion looking for projects."

Tribal member Ashton Castle, a "venture capital broker," gave a short presentation, including a video about HydraCool, an emerging company seeking a partner in the Tribe. HydraCool makes "zero emission" cooling systems for refrigerator trucks and other cooling uses, and with a Tribal investment could generate 20 jobs for the Tribe, Castle said.

"We're moving forward with our economic development package," Kennedy said, "with an analysis of what investments would be best for the Tribe." The Tribe also is currently considering investment proposals from the Bend area and from California.

Renewables questions also applied to Rodney Ferguson, Spirit Mountain Gaming chief executive officer, who attended to greet the community. In an interview after the meeting, Ferguson said that as systems wear out at the casino, they look at money- and energy-saving alternatives, but due diligence efforts are necessary for every proposal to prevent big money mistakes.

Tribal member Debi Bernardo asked about broadcasting Tribal Council meetings to the Portland and Eugene offices.

A related project on the Tribe's list is one to extend the current network infrastructure in the Grand Ronde community, Rogers said. Broadcasting is not part of the proposed project.

"We expect more money coming along," Rogers said, "and we're trying to position ourselves to be ready."

"What are we doing to keep the rivers clean?" Tribal Elder and Culture Committee member Carol Logan asked.

"Tribal members sit on many boards responsible for keeping the water clean and the land clean," Kennedy said. "We have a great presence on the Willamette River (cleanup)," she added, naming Natural Resources and Cultural Resources staff members as participants. "It's a great shared responsibility."

"We can reach the same goals without pollution," said Tribal Council Secretary Jack Giffen Jr. "Our task is educating the public that 'You can clean up, or maintain production levels, without pollutants.' We've proved it. The water leaving the reservation is clean."

"The Tribe has a great story to tell," said Tribal Vice Chair Reyn Leno. "We've really changed the Yamhill (River). Fish are coming back. We did it right."

"I would like to see us grow organic food on the free land here," said Tribal Elder CeCe Kneeland. She asked why the Tribe interprets federal guidelines in ways that hurt Tribal members.

"Let's re-look at the federal regulations," she said, with an eye toward finding ways to benefit Tribal

Grand Ronde stimulus funding

Stimulus formula funding already (or soon to be) allocated to the Tribe: $1.96 million.

Here's the breakdown:

- $1.09 million: Housing and Urban Development Indian Housing Block grant;
- $509,000: Federal Highways – BIA Indian Reservation Roads (estimate);
- $301,100: Department of Energy, energy efficiency and conservation
- $32,000: Child Care Development Funds (estimate)
- $8,930: Elders Meals program

Priority projects

The Tribal Council list of projects for which stimulus funding is being sought includes:

Priority Building Projects:

- Fire Station: Two-bay station with dormitory space for six firefighters. Estimated cost: $1 million
- ICW Building: Location: East end of the Community Center, including renovation of the Community Center's office space to house the rest of the Social Services Department. Estimated cost: $667,000, with a 2006 Indian Community Development Block grant of $500,000 already awarded.
- Dental Clinic addition: Estimated cost: $750,000. Already awarded for the project: $500,000 from 2008 Indian Community Development Block grant and $82,314 from 2008 IHS Medical Equipment grant. Seeking other funding to supplement the project for things like improved X-ray equipment.
- Clinic renovation project: Replacing the roof, carpets and HVAC system. Remodeling the entry for ADA access and the lobby for confidentiality. Estimated cost: $821,178.
- Governance Center roof replacement: Estimated cost: $260,000.
- Recreation/Prevention and Wellness Center: Indoor swimming and therapy pools, training rooms and counseling area; outdoor recreation area; small sports complex. Estimated cost: $5 million. Existing and potential sources of money for this project: $500,000 from a 2005 Indian Community Development Block grant for a neighborhood part, including baseball field, bathrooms and park area; 2004 Indian Housing Plan amendment request now pending for $300,000.

Priority Road Projects:

- Grand Ronde Road offset of Tribal commitments: Estimated offset: $870,000.
- Grand Ronde Road Project: South Yamhill Bridge Impact panels. To prolong the life of the road; not in original budget due to cost. Estimated cost: $115,000.
- Fire Station access improvement: Excavation and grading to reshape the road bank south of McPherson Road. Estimated cost: $70,000.
- Agency Creek Road pavement restoration: Regrade and pave surface. Estimated cost: $845,259.
- Government Center/ Tribal campus pavement overlay: Parking lots for the clinic, Community Center and Governance Center. Estimated cost: $366,773.
- Reservation BIA Road maintenance projects: Repair three bank sloughs, replace failed culverts, repair storm damage, install rubber water diverters. Estimated cost: being prepared.
- Paving parking lots at Natural Resources Division: Estimates being prepared.

Priority Infrastructure/Utility projects

- Elder Housing and Family Housing: Rerouting sewer mains to Tribal treatment systems, drain field expansion, reuse piping, lift stations and green space enhancements, including paving for parking at the Elders' Activity Center. Estimated cost: $1.92 million.
- Ackerson Road Sewer Pump station: Design and build new pump station and add a backup generator. Estimated cost: $273,080.
- Tyee Road Sewer and utilities: Sewer, stormwater and telecommunications for undeveloped Tribal property planned for housing and recreation; connects 36 HUD housing units and offices to Tribal sewer plant. Estimated cost: $410,000.
- Home ownership family housing infrastructure: Development of infrastructure for buildable lots including excavation, roadway, sewer, water and utilities. Estimated cost: $1.53 million.

members in terms of employment and housing, rather than penalizing them with the results of background checks and so on.

As part of an ongoing cultural contribution to General Council meetings, Tribal members and cousins Eirik Thorsgard and Greg Archuleta sang a power song. Thorsgard is Cultural Protection coordinator for the Tribe and Archuleta has provided many cultural services to the Tribe.

The Elders Committee held a 50/50 drawing with winners Tribal Elder Marcella Selwyn and Tribal member Desiree Allen each winning $26.

The $100 door prize went to Tribal member Dorothy Leno, and the $50 prizes went to Tribal Elders Sylvia Fuller, Butch LaBonte and Louise Coulson.

Among announcements, Tribal Vice Chair Reyn Leno noted that his uncle, Tribal Elder Russ Leno, 81, had recently retired from his long-held job taking care of the Tribal Cemetery.

"I want to pat Uncle Russ on the back. He's been there for a lot of different people during a lot of hard times," Reyn Leno said.

Kennedy opened and closed the meeting and Tribal Elder Val Grout gave the invocation. ■

2004 — Tribal member Frank Hostler Jr. had just returned from Iraq after serving with the Army National Guard's 52nd Engineers Construction Battalion out of Albany. The son of Frank Hostler Sr., he specialized in demolition and construction. "I assemble things that go boom," he said. "I can build a bridge, then blow it up."

1999 — Tribal member Roger Harrison, who created the Tribe's logo after Restoration, was awarded the first Pendleton blanket created with the Tribe's logo on it at the April 11 General Council meeting. Tribal Council had 500 logo blankets made that will be available for sale to Tribal members.

1994 — Tribal Chairman Mark Mercier and Vice Chair Kathryn Harrison presented testimony on the budgets of the Bureau of Indian Affairs and Indian Health Service for fiscal year 1995 to the Appropriations Subcommittee on Interior and Related Agencies in Washington, D.C.

1989 — The Tribal Council started negotiations with the Tribal Corporation to regain use of the Depot for Tribal office space. The Corporation was asking $26,000 for the facility, but Tribal programs originally paid $31,806.26 for the purchase and renovation of the building.

1984 — Chuck Williams, author of "Bridge of the Gods, Mountains of Fire," was thanked for donating his book to the Tribal Library. Also, volunteers who were working "very hard" to get the Depot ready for converted office spaces also were thanked.

Casino donates to Oregon Food Bank

Spirit Mountain Casino has donated almost 400 vouchers for a free ham or turkey to the Oregon Food Bank in an effort to alleviate some of Oregon's hunger issues.

Oregon Food Bank representative Dan Crunican said that Oregonians are aware of the increasing need for food assistance and are increasing donations of food and cash. However, the need for emergency food assistance has doubled this year, causing a substantial food shortage at Oregon's food banks.

"We are happy to help put food on the table for those in need," said Tribal member James Buxman, Advertising and Public Relations manager for Spirit Mountain Casino. "Supporting the efforts that help a family in need makes a donation like this special to the Spirit Mountain Family." ■

State heritage award honors Tribe

By Ron Karten

Smoke Signals staff writer

The Owl Ridge Trails Project will receive an Oregon Heritage Excellence Award from the Oregon Parks and Recreation Department.

The project took a multi-disciplinary approach to "increasing knowledge and understanding of the prehistory and history of the South Santiam and Blue River headwaters," according to the award letter from the Parks Department's Heritage Programs division.

The project was funded principally by the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde and the effort was conducted by staff members at Cultural Resources and other Tribal departments.

The project provided history and geography from the Santiam and Molalla Tribes. It named rivers, creeks, peaks and other landmarks and destinations, as well as showed the primary trail network in the area and seasonal use patterns. It described cultural plant use and management, fish and game products, and included a discussion with hypotheses and recommendations.

"Owl Ridge is a key feature of an ancient 250,000-acre or larger camas prairie, berry patch, beargrass meadow, old-growth conifer, summer home, hunting grounds, campground, wetland, beaver marsh fishing hole and ridgeline trail complex that dates back millennia before white discovery and occupation," according to the executive summary of the final report.

"The well-defined patterns of land use, management and occupation were likely maintained by Santiam Molalla, Santiam Kalapuya, Calapooia Kalapuya, Klamath, Wasco, Paiute and Cayuse families and communities and their predecessors, ancestors, friends and neighbors for perhaps 2,000 to 3,500 years, or even longer."

In addition to the Grand Ronde Tribe, other contributors to the project included Oregon Websites and Watersheds Project Inc., N.W. Maps Co., U.S. Forest Service's Sweet Home Ranger District, Cascade Timber Consulting Inc., Phoenix Reforestation Inc. and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

In addition, many Grand Ronde Tribal members and Elders were cited for their contributions: Tribal Above, visitors check out the Gordon Meadows area of the Owl Ridge Trails Project last summer. The project, which was funded principally by the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde, will receive an Oregon Heritage Excellence Award from the Oregon Parks and Recreation Department. At left, Tribal members from the Eugene, Salem and Portland area communities take part in a day hike in Owl Ridge Trails Project area.

Elder and former Culture Committee member Pat Allen; Tribal Elder Bob Tom; Tribal member and Cultural Resources Department Manager David Lewis; Tribal Elder and Cultural Resources Site Protection Specialist Don Day; Tribal member and Cultural Resources Cultural Protection Coordinator Eirik Thorsgard; Volker Mell, Tribal GIS specialist; Kim Rogers, Tribal Planning and Grants manager; Tribal member and Tribal Director of Program Operations John Mercier; Tribal member and Tribal Executive Officer Chris Leno; Tribal member and former Cultural Resources staff member Khani Schultz; and former Tribal Executive Officer Greg Archuleta.

Tribal members from the Eugene, Salem and Portland area communities took part in day hikes into the project area.

The day hikes principally took place in Gordon Meadows, a vast meadow situated at 4,000-foot elevation. Gordon Meadows contains a diversity of food plants like huckleberries and camas, and opportunities to hunt game, including elk, that make it a central gathering place for Santiam Molalla peoples in the area.

Project area mountains and watersheds contain the possibility of a diverse network of trail systems capable of providing easy travel throughout the region to other resource areas.

"The database produced from this project will help the Tribe in the future to plan and organize additional landscape restoration projects in collaboration with the Sweet Home Ranger District, the federal manager of this area of the Willamette National Forest," said David Lewis.

"The Cultural Resources and Natural Resources departments are working now with the Sweet Home District ranger and staff to restore additional areas of the wilderness and bring back annual cultural use patterns for Tribal members.

"This long-term project intersects well with previous and ongoing collaborations between the Tribe and Sweet Home Ranger District to restore camas at Camas Meadows, and to restore huckleberries at Cougar Rock.

"The Tribe now has a multitude of projects above Sweet Home that attract Tribal members every year to harvest traditional cultural resources the way their ancestors did." ■

Tribe names an Oregon Zoo condor chick

Effort is part of a larger push to re-establish condors in the Pacific Northwest

By Ron Karten

Smoke Signals staff writer

Oregon Tribal Elders and cultural specialists, including those from the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde, have provided the names for condor chicks hatched in 2008 at the Oregon Zoo under the California Condor Recovery Program.

The Grand Ronde name, Tuality (the preferred spelling is atfa'lat'i), refers to "a group of Kalapuya folks that lived up around Gaston and Forest Grove," says Tony Johnson (Chinook), Education Coordinator for the Tribe's Cultural Resources Department.

The Tribe has long known about condors in the Willamette Valley. In fact, indigenous people are go-to sources on condors in the area back through history, says Oregon Zoo Condor Conservation specialist David Moen, an AmeriCorps worker.

Moen has been in touch with Tribal members in the Grand Ronde Cultural Resources Department for the last few years to learn about "our history of condors," said Cultural Resources Department Manager and Tribal member David Lewis.

"Not a lot of people think of the condor associated with the Northwest ecosystem," Moen said, "but it is a part of our vital ecology. Condors once ranged from Baja (California) to as far north as British Columbia in Canada. Part of restoring the bird is helping people understand that it's missing."

"All the Tribes have oral histories of their relations with condors," Lewis said. "Lewis and Clark reported on condors in the Gorge."

Ultimately, though, late 19th century settlers altered the environment enough that condors nearly disappeared from the area.

The zoo wants to see if condors can be revived in the Northwest. In that regard, Tribal Elder and Culture Site Protection Specialist Don Day has joined the effort by looking for condor nesting areas.

"We're on an upswing of the population now," Moen said, "with about 300 birds (half free-flying and half in captivity in four breeding facilities, one being the Oregon Zoo), but the number was down to 27 birds in 1987. We pulled that bird out of the jaws of extinction." Today, the Oregon Zoo has 31 birds with room for 64 total birds, including 16 breeding pairs.

In the 1980s, saving condors meant rounding up the remaining birds to establish breeding pairs to help increase their population.

"It was very controversial rounding up those last birds in the mid-1980s," Moen said.

The recovery plan calls for "two or three distinct populations with 150 birds and a minimum of 15 breeding pairs in each population," Moen said.

Christening condor chicks

From David Moen, Condor Conservation specialist, Oregon Zoo:

- Female chick No. 496 was named Yak'Mo by the Yakama Nation in central Washington. This is a Sahaptin diminutive name for Yakama that means "Our little one" or "Young one of us." Yak'Mo was hatched to Woy and Wiloq and foster-reared by Atishwin and Ojai.

- Female chick No. 481 was named Ewauna (U-wana) by the Coquille (Ko-kwell) Indian Tribe at Coos Bay. She was named after a special Siskiyou woman who came to the coast with her father for a potlatch at Bandon. Ewauna was hatched to Mali and No. 174 and she was foster reared by two great parents, Tama and Mandan.

- Our lone male chick No. 479 was named Tuality by the Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde in the northwest Oregon. The preferred spelling is atfa'lat'i and is the name of a Kalapuya Tribe that knew condors in the Willamette Valley. Atfa'lat'i's parents are Paxa and Sawlu, but after Paxa accidentally smooched the egg last minute, Atfa'lat'i had to be puppet reared.

- Our female chick No. 487 was named Kalak-ala by the Confederated Tribes of Siletz Indians in the central Oregon coast range. She was named this Chinuk Jargon bird name for the sounds that birds make. Kalak-ala's parents are Nos. 137 and 147.

"Currently, we release them at sites in central and southern California, Arizona at the Grand Canyon. Tuality is bound for Arizona, probably next year, after he spends some time maturing at our holding site."

Tuality will be 2 years old then.

Condors are very good parents and both mother and father are very attentive, Moen said.

"Even after a chick fledges, they feed it and take care of it for a year of parental care," he said. "They generally skip a breeding season to teach the chick to look for food and socialize. They lay one egg every other year in order to teach juveniles their condor culture."

But the zoo is doing everything it can to increase the number of chicks hatched. "We put chicks with adult mentor birds so parents are free to breed every year," Moen said. "Parents and chicks are in flight pens next to each other, though, so they all have visual and auditory contact."

Condors are a long-lived bird and do not have a lot of natural predators. "There's one in captivity that lived 70 years," Moen said.

"He told me about the chicks," Lewis said, "and while I was on the phone, I said that I thought I could come up with a couple names right off the top of my head."

Lewis suggested Tuality, from the Tualatin Band, a group that ultimately landed in Grand Ronde as one of the Kalapuyan Tribes, and Chemeketi, both the original place-name spellings, he said. He received mutual agreement on the names from Johnson and Tribal member and Language & Culture Specialist Bobby Mercier.

"Restoring the condor will promote wellness to the whole landscape," Lewis said.

More about condors in Oregon can be found at www.oregonzoo.org/Condors/index.htm. Except by special invitation, the zoo's condor breeding program is not open to the public.

However, the zoo recently received funds for a condor exhibit on zoo grounds that will be developed in the next couple of years to help create public support for these special residents. With breeding programs ongoing, no condors are currently on exhibit. ■

Grand Ronde Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program

The Grand Ronde Tribe is operating its own Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) to assist Grand Ronde Tribal member households with energy payments (utility bills, firewood, etc.), energy emergencies and weatherization (e.g. furnace repairs). Income eligible households within Polk, Yamhill, Marion, Washington, Multnomah and Clackamas counties with a Grand Ronde Tribal member are eligible to apply. CTGR members in these counties need to contact Grand Ronde to receive assistance instead of from the community action agency in their area. Grand Ronde's program enables more CTGR members to be served than would otherwise have been possible.

If you are interested in obtaining services contact Social Services at 1-800-242-8196 for energy assistance and the Grand Ronde Tribal Housing Authority at 503-879-2405 for weatherization. The Tribe's LIHEAP program also serves all income eligible Indians on Grand Ronde Reservation or trust land.

Community Resource Center seeking donations

The Grand Ronde Community Resource Center has a few fundraisers and other projects planned this year and is seeking donations, etc., for the following:

- Spaghetti Feed and Auction in September: Seeking donated items for a live and silent auction and/or food donations for the meal. The center will provide documentation of your donation for tax purposes.

- Community Cookbook: Looking for your favorite recipe. If you have a recipe you'd like to share, please e-mail it to grcrc@hotmail.com or mail to GRCRC, P.O. Box 55, Grand Ronde, OR 97347. Please include the name of dish, recipe, your name for publication in the cookbook and a phone number to contact you if there are any questions. The center will advertise sale of the Community Cookbook as soon as they become available.

- Food Preservation: The center is still seeking food dehydrators for its food preservation program. If you have one you'd like to donate, please e-mail or call and leave a message at 503-879-5731.

- Coupon Program: The center is looking for food and non-food item coupons for its coupon program. The coupons are for client and Community Resource Center use.

The center greatly appreciates all the community support for the Community Resource Center. With your help, it is able to assist those in need within our community. ■

Coordination of benefits saves the Tribe money

The Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde provides health coverage to Tribal members under the Skookum Health Plan. Because the Skookum Health Plan is entirely funded by Tribal dollars, the plan must be as efficient as possible. One of the ways that we can be more efficient is to verify if Tribal members have other health coverage. If a Tribal member has other insurance coverage such as an employer's health plan, Medicare or any other private insurance, those plans should pay for health care services before the Tribal plan pays. This saves the health plan money and ultimately benefits all Tribal members. As a result, CTGR will be working with Shasta Administrative Services, the Tribe's new health care claims administrator, to verify health care coverage for all Tribal members. In most cases, any other coverage you may have, whether it is with an employer, a spouse's employer, other commercial insurance coverage or Medicare, should always be primary to Skookum. Tribal funds should always be the payor of last resort. In the next month, you will be receiving an audit letter from Shasta via the mail regarding other coverage. All Tribal members are required to return the completed form to Shasta. If your completed form is not returned to Shasta, within the designate time frame on the letter, then your claims will be denied until the information is received. Our ultimate goal is to reduce the cost of health care for the Confederated Tribes of the Grand Ronde and make sure resources are spent efficiently and effectively. If you have questions about anything you receive from Shasta or you need help with your health care claims, please contact them at 800-880-5877, e-mail to question@shastatpa.com or on the Web at www.shastatpa.com. Your help is appreciated. ■

'Taking our children back home'

Smoke Signals staff writer

The one-and-a-half day Native Youth Leadership Conference held April 9-10 at the Tribal gymnasium focused on the idea of sustainability "to help you walk and live in a good way," said Jillene Joseph (Gros Ventre from Montana), executive director of Gresham-based Native Wellness Institute.

"Thinking about sustainability," Joseph said, "is another way of thinking about your future."

She was joined by Neetsaii Gwich'in Tribal member Evon Peter from northeast Alaska. Peter, 33, served as the 130-member Tribe's youngest chief, starting when he was 24, for three years. He stepped down to pursue graduate studies and is now in his last semester at the University of Alaska, Fairbanks. He anticipates earning a master's degree in Rural Development later this year.

Peter has been teaching youth about indigenous rights, sustainability and natural resource preservation, he said, since he was 17. In recent years, working with an international team, he traveled to Africa, India, Polynesia, South and Central America and across the United States with his messages. He also was guest speaker for Grand Ronde's first Youth Leadership Conference in 2004.

"My path leads me all over the place," he said.

The guts of the conference came from "thinking that comes out of the culture," Peter said.

Tribal descendant Joey Holmes was impressed with the lesson on the seventh generation. "They said to think about seven generations out," he said, "and the effect of your actions on the future."

Talking about sustainability is another way of seeking one's identity, Peter said. "Who are we as Native Americans? Who are we as human beings?"

"If we have that foundation strong," he said, "then we have the ability to go out and deal with larger issues."

Youth made agreements with the facilitators to respect self and others, to listen, participate and enjoy "healthy risk taking," in Joseph's words, and have fun.

Subsequently, the group split into eight "clans." The first tasks for each group were naming their clan and coming up with a "call."

Those names and calls returned through the sessions, reinforcing the importance of identity.

Clan systems were developed, Peter said, for marital systems, so that people would not mistakenly marry a close cousin.

"Clan systems provided a sense of belonging," Joseph said.

Lessons were designed to bring youth out of themselves, encourage them to meet others and to talk about themselves and their ambitions — all leadership skills.

And they were placed in light party games, like an adaptation of musical chairs. Except in this version, the player left out took center stage and "said something true about themselves."

For everybody sitting down, if the statement was also true about them, they had to get up and find another seat. And the one left out took center stage.

"We're successful when youth are engaged," said Joseph, "when they are participating, when they are taking direction. We can have fun and we can still learn."

Peter sees success in future terms: "To continue to be able to work and build with young people."

"It made me think about the loss of my heritage and culture," said participant Appalonnia David (Klamath).

"It feels good to be here," said Tribal member Leland Brother Butler, "learning about different cultural things."

"To come here and see other kids interested in their culture is empowering," said Juanita Whitebear, who works for Lincoln County Schools in the Indian Education Program. She brought a group from the Confederated Tribes of Siletz.

"It feels good stepping out," said Leland Butler's cousin, Ron Butler (Siletz), "when you're not too nervous."

Organized by Tribal member and Youth Education and Culture specialist Travis Stewart, this year's event again incorporated the successful community component, where "there is an opportunity for each group to introduce itself to the community with stories from their area," Stewart said.

In deference to the ongoing financial crisis, however, this year organizers lopped a day off the normal 2.5-day event.

Still, more than 50 eighth-through 12th-graders from Grand Ronde, Siletz and Klamath Tribes participated.

"I've been coming (and bringing Siletz youth) since they started here," said Whitebear. "What I see them doing in Grand Ronde is taking our children back home."

"I always come to these," said Tribal Council member Wink Soderberg. "I figure this is a very important time in their lives. These exercises are going to play an important part in their lives. Anyone who hasn't been over here to see what's going on is missing something." ■

Tribe accepting Hatfield Fellowship applications

The Confederated Tribes of Grand Ronde is accepting applications for the Mark O. Hatfield Congressional Fellowship.

Every year, a Hatfield fellow serves as an intern for a member of Oregon's congressional delegation. The fellow is selected from adult Native American applicants who are enrolled members of a federally recognized Tribe in Oregon.

If there are no qualified applicants from Oregon, enrolled members of federally recognized Tribes in Washington, Idaho and Montana will be considered.

The selected Hatfield fellow will intern in Washington, D.C., for nine months and receive a monthly stipend, relocation and travel expenses, and tuition for the American Political Science Association orientation. New for 2009, fellowship applications must be completed and submitted via the Internet.

Deadline for applications is 5 p.m. Friday, April 24. Applicants will then be notified if they qualify for interviews. Late applications will not be accepted.

To access the new online application process, visit www.thecommunityfund.com. For additional questions, contact Program Officer Louis King at Spirit Mountain Community Fund at 503-879-1462 or louis.king@thecommunityfund.com or by mail at 9615 Grand Ronde Road, Grand Ronde, OR 97347.

The fellowship honors Mark Hatfield for his accomplishments as a U.S. senator from Oregon, former Oregon governor and for his mentorship of many leaders in their own communities. ■

GRAND RONDE GAMING COMMISSION POSITIONS

The Grand Ronde Gaming Commission is seeking applications for two positions for 3-year terms expiring in June 2012. The Grand Ronde Gaming Commission regulates all gaming-related activities associated with Spirit Mountain Casino. The Tribal Gaming Ordinance requires one of the positions to be filled by a Tribal member and one to be filled by a non-Tribal member. In addition, one of the positions must be filled with a person with at least 10 years of law enforcement experience, or with a bachelor's degree in criminal justice or related field and at least five years of law enforcement experience. Applicants must be at least 21 years of age. Commissioners may not hold elective or managerial Tribal positions, and may not be employed in or own any interest in or gamble in a gaming operation authorized by the Tribal Gaming Ordinance. Commissioners are independent contractors and expend approximately 30-40 hours per month to fulfill their responsibilities. The commission generally meets on the second and third Fridays of each month. Appointment is contingent upon successful completion of a background investigation. Applications may be obtained by calling Kathy Doane at 503-879-2393.

Closing date is 5 p.m. on April 30.

Skookum Health Plan benefit update effective July 1, 2009

There will be an emergency room benefit change to the Skookum Health Plan occurring on July 1, 2009. Currently, the health plan covers a non-emergency visit to the emergency room with a 50 percent co-insurance; after July 1, 2009, non-urgent/non-emergent use of the emergency room will no longer be a covered benefit. Tribal members who go to an emergency room to receive non-urgent/non-emergent services will be responsible for the entire charge.

The reason for this change is over utilization of the emergency room. Many of the claims received from emergency room visits are for services that should be received through a physician's office or an urgent care setting. For non-emergency service, the average cost of an emergency room visit is close to $500, while the same service in a provider's office or urgent care setting is only around $100. Use of the emergency room for non-urgent/non-emergent services results in higher costs to the Tribe.

If you or someone you know is in need of medical attention and you do not know if you should go to the emergency room or not, take the time to contact the 24-hour Nurse Line at 800-970-7138 or your personal physician.

If you are instructed to seek services at the emergency room by the Nurse Line or by your physician's office, it will be covered by the Skookum Health Plan.

If you have questions about this important benefit change, contact Barbara Steere at 503-879-2487 or Jim Holmes at 503-879-2221. ■

You Should Know: Crime Victims Have Rights

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

April 27, 2009

Thanks to popular culture, the rights of criminal defendants are well known in the United States. Unfortunately, the public is less familiar with the rights of crime victims. Those rights are enshrined in the Oregon Constitution and under Oregon law. Crime victims have the right to be informed of all legal proceedings, to be present, to be consulted, and to be heard.

During this year's Annual Crime Victims' Rights Week, April 26 – May 2, our country will celebrate the 25th anniversary of the federal Victims of Crime Act (VOCA). Victims services funded by VOCA help millions of victims recover from the impact of crime on their lives.

Please join us in honoring the work made possible by VOCA and the dedication of victims' rights advocates by increasing awareness of crime victims' rights. Crime Victims' Rights Week activities will be held throughout Oregon. Please see www.OregonCrimeVictimsRights.org for more information.

Sincerely,

JOHN R. KROGER
Attorney General

EDUCATION OPPORTUNITIES

Applicants for Superintendent's Youth Advisory Team wanted

During Susan Castillo's first campaign for Superintendent of Public Instruction, the idea of a student advisory board for the Oregon Department of Education was put forward by several of her volunteers. Susan embraced the idea of giving students a way to voice their concerns about Oregon's educational future. To this end, we created a Youth Advisory Team for Superintendent Susan Castillo. This group of Oregon public school students plays an important role in changing and improving public education in Oregon.

We are in the process of recruiting approximately 20 new members for the 2009-10 year. We're looking for a diverse group of high school students ready to take on the challenge of advising the Superintendent of Public Instruction. Members must attend four to five meetings in Salem and should have an interest in using their personal experiences to advise the Superintendent and other state leaders, students, educators and community members.

Education professionals are encouraged to advise a student to apply to the Youth Advisory Team. Please feel free to visit our Web site at www.ode.state.or.us/superintendent/yat/ for more information about the Youth Advisory Team.

Applicants will be asked to address the following in their applications:

- Why you want to be on the Youth Advisory Team.
- Three things you will bring to the team.
- A brief explanation of your involvement in public school (both curricular and extracurricular activities).
- An accurate idea of your ability to attend the meetings held in Salem, given that the department cannot provide transportation.

For more information or to request an application form, please contact Diane Roth at the Oregon Department of Education, 503-947-5791, or by e-mail Diane.Roth@state.or.us. All applicants will be notified of their selection by May 8, 2009.

Cost for a workshop is $150 and eligible Tribal members can apply to the Noncredit Program (formally Short Term Training) for assistance with registration costs. Space is limited to the first 15 who register.

To register, contact Joshua Clift, Adult Vocational Training Coordinator, at 503-879-1635 or e-mail joshua.clift@grandronde.org.

Accenture American Indian Scholarship Program

The Accenture American Indian Scholarship fund meets a vital need for American Indian and Alaska Native students seeking higher education and requiring financial assistance. Accenture will award three types of scholarships to high-achieving American Indian and Alaska Native students seeking degrees and careers in fields of study including: various engineering, computer science, operations management, finance, marketing and other business oriented fields.

Accenture Scholars — Three undergraduate scholarships, of $20,000 each (each award at $5,000 per year for four years), will be awarded to students pursuing a four-year degree.

Accenture Fellows — Two graduate scholarships, of $15,000 each (each award at $7,500 per year for two years), will be awarded to students pursuing a master's or doctorate degree.

Finalist Scholarship — Two undergraduate scholarships, of $8,000 each (each award at $2,000 per year for four years) and two graduate scholarships, of $5,000 each (each award at $2,500 per year for two years).

In addition to the funding, scholarship recipients are eligible for summer internships with Accenture, as first-year graduate students or junior-year undergraduate students. Applicants will be evaluated based on academic excellence, demonstrated leadership ability, commitment to preserving American Indian culture and communities and proof of enrollment in a federally recognized American Indian/Alaska Native Tribe.

The deadline to submit a 2009-10 AY application will be May 1 for undergraduate and June 1 for graduates. Please visit www.aigc.com for an application.

Summer internships for high school students

The Apprenticeships in Science and Engineering (ASE) Program matches high school students interested in the sciences with mentors for an eight-week paid summer internship. CMOP internships provide a $1,000 stipend to the student, as well as an experience that will provide professional training and look great on college and job applications. Students from low-income families (qualify for the federal free or reduced lunch program) will receive a $2,000 stipend.

We are seeking Native American high school students for four summer internship positions with the Center for Coastal Margin Prediction and Observation (CMOP). There are four positions: Carbon Cycling in the Columbia River Estuary, Environmental Sensor Development, Internship in Ocean Observatories and Remediation of Environmental Contaminants.

Students must submit a preliminary application form, two letters of recommendation from adults, a copy of their official school transcripts, an essay targeted for their desired positions (up to three positions), a final application form and a $25 application fee. The application fee is waived for all students who qualify for federal free or reduced lunches. For more information on how to apply, please visit the ASE Web site www.saturdayacademy.org/ASE/StudentInfo/HowToApply/tabid/71/Default.aspx.

Wells Fargo American Indian Scholarship Program

This scholarship is funded by the Wells Fargo and administered by American Indian Graduate Center. To be considered for the Wells Fargo scholarship, an applicant must:

- Be an enrolled member of a federally recognized American Indian Tribe or Alaska Native group;
- Be pursuing a career and degree in fields relating to banking, resort management, gaming operations, management and administration, including accounting, finance, information technology and human resources;
- Be a college junior or senior, or graduate student at a U.S. accredited college or university as full time and degree seeking;

Undergraduate: Must have a cumulative average GPA of a 3.00 on a 4.00 scale at the time of application and must be in your college junior or senior year.

Graduate: Must have maintained a 3.00 GPA as an undergraduate student or have maintained a 3.00 GPA as a graduate student at the time of application.

- Demonstrate financial need.

The deadline to submit a 2009-10 AY application will be May 1 for undergraduate and June 1 for graduates. Please visit www.aigc.com for an application.

Tribal Council encourages all Tribal members living within the Willamina School District to vote "yes" on the upcoming bond.

YES

Willamina Schools
Bond Facts: Ballot Measure 21-91

Willamina School District • 324 SE Adams St. • Willamina 97396
503-876-4525 • www.willamina.k12.or.us

Willamina School District is seeking approval of a $3,000,000.00 bond in the May 19, 2009 election

- The Bond Committee and the Board of Directors recognizes and is aware of the current economic condition;
- The Bond Committee and the Board of Directors recognizes and is aware of the current economic conditions in our schools.
- The Bond Committee and the Board of Directors recognizes and is aware of the current efficiencies and savings that will happen if this bond is passed.

This District is seeking approval of 7 new classrooms at the elementary school, 2 classrooms at the high school, a new welding / ag shop, a multi purpose facility for physical education, weightlifting classes, wrestling (with community use of the facility) and repair of the track surface to once again allow home track meets which is currently not allowed due to the unsafe condition of the track.

It was the consensus of the Bond Committee and approved by the Board of Director to address the current conditions of the facilities where the students are located during the regular educational day. Accordingly this recommendation does not include any funding for the Washington Street facility.

Passage of this bond will mean:

1. Increased instructional time for the 6th grade by ninety hours per year
2. Drama production space for high school students
3. Classroom space for the elementary music program
4. Adequate space for out physical education program(s)
5. Increased classroom size for our elementary programs currently housed in modular buildings to include Title I Speech and on Third Grade class
6. Classroom for all high school teachers (teachers currently share rooms)
7. Adequate welding, mechanical and classroom space for ag/welding program
8. Increased supervision and regular educational program access for alternative education students who will be located on the Oaken Hills campus
9. Increased instructional time for wood shop students who will be located on the Oaken Hills campus

Monetary Savings:

1. Reduction in heating cost at the middle school by moving out of two very old modular buildings
2. A saving of over $86,527 over the course of 20 years (today's cost) in middle school transportation by not transporting 6th grade students to Grand Ronde
3. A savings of over $179,480 over the course of 20 years (today's cost) in wood shop transportation by elimination of bus run to the old site

26% of the students attending Willamina Schools are Native and a large number of them are Grand Ronde Tribal members

If you live in Tribal housing, the bond measure will have no financial impact on you so a yes vote is easy and important
